Cruise Ship Saves Two

The cruise ship Royal Viking Sea rescued a Victoria man and woman Thursday who had spent 12 hours drifting helplessly in a 12-foot runabout.

Janet Kinnear, 21, and Lawrie Wilkins, 26 were rescued close to Race Rocks about 6 a.m.

They had originally been sighted by the Japanese vessel Taisha Maru, which reported the couple's position to the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt about 8 p.m. Wednesday. The runabout had been without power since before 6 p.m.

A centre spokesman said a Canadian Coast Guard vessel was sent to the scene but could not find the drifting boat. The Royal Viking Sea discovered the boat shortly after sunrise.

After being rescued the couple told an officer they had seen the coast guard vessel looking for them through the night but had been unable to get the attention of the crew.

The couple had left the Inner Harbor about 11 a.m. on Wednesday.

The student-operated coast guard inflatable based at Ganges on Salt Spring Island was also involved in two marine incidents on Thursday.

They picked up two people near Saturna Island after their rowboat overturned and minutes later rescued a small girl who had fallen off the stern of a cruiser motoring out of a bay near the island.

WAC BACK IN HOSPITAL

KELOWNA (CP) — Former premier W. A. C. Bennett, 75, returned to the intensive care unit at the Kelowna General Hospital early today, just two days after being released.

R. J. Bennett, son of the former premier and brother of the present premier, said today his father had more pains in his arms and chest during the night and was taken back to the hospital.

W. A. C. Bennett first entered hospital about two weeks ago after suffering a minor heart attack.

IOC Threatens To Quit Games

Times News Services

LAUSANNE—Hours before the first of 10,000 athletes were to arrive in Montreal, the International Olympic Committee threatened to withdraw its name from the Summer Olympics because Canada refuses to accept entries from Taiwan.

In a prepared statement, the IOC stopped just short of threatening to call off the games, scheduled for July 17-Aug. 1, but a spokesman said the committee was considering disassociating itself from the games by insisting the word "Olympic" be removed and halting all medal awards.

The IOC charged Canada with bad faith and a breach of "fundamental Olympic principles in which no discrimination is permitted against any country, or person, on the grounds of race, religion or political affiliation."

The IOC pointed out that on April 11, 1975, the Canadian government approved the issuing of an invitation to Taiwan and that when Montreal was awarded the games at the 1970 congress in Amsterdam, Canada "gave all assurances that there was nothing to hinder or restrict in any way the attendance of athletes."

"Had there been any reservations, Montreal would not have been awarded the games in favor of Los Angeles or Moscow," the statement said.

In Montreal, officials of the Olumpic Organizing Committee (COJO) said they would have no comment today on whether the issue of admitting athletes from Taiwan to Canada could jeopardize the 1976 summer games.

"The situation is so unclear and so confusing that we have absolutely no comment to make," official Olympic spokesman Louis Chantigny said.

Chantigny said he did not know what would happen if the Taiwan delegation arrived in Montreal today or Saturday or whether they would be allowed to stay at the Olympic Village.

Chantigny said two athletes from Taiwan arrived in Kingston, Ont. last week to bring a boat from the United States for use in sailing events being staged there.

He said they stayed only a couple of days and returned to Honolulu.

"As far as we know, they left of their own free will," Chantigny said.

In Taipei, Shen Cia-ming, president of Taiwan's Olympic Committee, said today Taiwan will defy Canada and fly its flag at Montreal, taking part in the games as usual.

The 42 athletes from Taiwan have entered 10 Olympic events and the Canadian government has no right to bar them from the games, he said.

In a statement Thursday the IOC said it had been advised on June 27 by Mitchell Sharp, Canada's acting secretary of state for external affairs, that the Taiwanese would be blocked because "the Canadian government now recognizes the People's Republic of China."

In Ottawa, external affairs department spokesman Glen Shortliffe said athletes from Taiwan were welcome to participate in the games provided

U.S. BACKS DEATH

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court upheld the death penalty today but struck down laws in states that make death mandatory for certain crimes.

The court approved death penalty laws in Florida, Georgia and Texas but invalidated laws in Louisiana and North Carolina.

The laws the court upheld leave the death penalty decision in the hands of judges or jurors but provide guidelines for them.

An Associated Press survey shows 572 men and 10 women were on death rows in 30 states awaiting the court's decision.

Marchand Linked To Campaign Cash?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A new mystery surfaced in the Jean Marchand resignation today.

Marchand, who quit the federal cabinet Wednesday, said he was leaving government because of the air-bilingualism issue. However, it now appears that a letter sent to Prime Minister Trudeau by New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent concerning actions by Marchand when he was in charge of collecting campaign money for the Liberal Party in Quebec may have played a role in the resignation.

Trudeau today admitted the existence of the Broadbent letter but said he would have nothing more to say on the subject until Parliament reconvenes on Monday.

Marchand resigned his environment portfolio at a meeting of Quebec Liberal MPs Wednesday evening.

Because of the settlement reached earlier in the week between Transport Minister Otto Lang and representatives of the Canadian Air Line Pilot's Association and the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, he said in his letter "it would be impossible for me to respect the principle of cabinet solidarity."

Marchand will continue to sit as a private member for the Quebec City riding of Langelier, but his resignation ends a 10-year term in the cabinet — dating back to his first federal election in 1965 — that includes portfolios in environment, transport, regional economic expansion, manpower and immigration, citizenship and forestry and rural development.

In accepting Marchand's resignation, Trudeau wrote Thursday:

"You will continue to make your unique voice heard and to stand firm as a true Quebecer and Canadian against all these distortions and misinterpretations by which some would try to undermine Quebec and divert Canada from its destiny."

Marchand's resignation may put an end to a ministerial career that dates back to 1965 when he first ran successfully for Parliament.

Considered a major catch by former prime minister Lester Pearson's Liberal government, the former labor leader joined the party with his prominent friends Pierre Trudeau and Gerard Pelletier.

Now Trudeau is the last of the "three wise men" from Quebec still in government. Pelletier, also long a minister, is ambassador to France.

Pilots, Controllers Playing Air Games

QUEBEC (CP) — French-speaking air controllers are forcing anti-bilingual pilots to give position reports in a bid to fight what they call "racism," a director of L'Association des Gens de l'Air du Quebec said Thursday.

"Position reports are not usually necessary because of radar," Michel Charlebois said Thursday in a telephone interview.

The controllers' selective work-to-rule campaign, to last "more than 48 hours," began early Thursday against airlines which refused to fly during the English-speaking pilot's recent nine-day strike.

About 150 of the association's controllers work at Dorval International Airport while another 20 work at Mirable International Airport.

Charlebois said controllers were taking "special measures to ensure the safety of pilots under stress because they are flying in bilingual air space."

"You have to fight absurdity with absurdity," said Charlebois.

The protest, requiring pilots to maintain holding patterns as far away as possible from airports, is expected to cause delays in landing and departing.

"They say bilingual air space is not safe, so we are countering the effects of their stress," Charlebois said.

"We have to take care of the pilots. They are men who are above the law and they are closer to God than we are."

Meanwhile, English-speaking pilots are continuing their own harassment of French-speaking controllers — they repeat instructions wrong.

"A pilot must repeat instructions, so instead of repeating, 'go to 10,000 feet,' he'll change it to 12,000," Montreal controller Noel Salomon said Thursday.

AUDIT FOUND PITFIELD GRANT

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's top civil servant, cabinet secretary Michael Pitfield applied for and got a $1,000 first-time homeowners grant from the Ontario government, according to the Globe and Mail.

Pitfield applied the grant — supposed to go to persons buying their first home — on a $180,000 colonial-style mansion in the capital's exclusive Rockcliffe Park area.

A routine audit revealed Pitfield, who earns in excess of $45,000 a year, was ineligible for the grant because he had previously owned another home in the capital.

He has since returned the money.

Hijackers Bargaining For 110

KAMPALA (AP) — Negotiations resumed today for the release of the 110 passengers and crew members of a hijacked Air France plane still held by pro-Palestinian extremists at Uganda's Entebbe airport.

Most of all of the 98 passengers still held were Israelis or Jews of other nationalities. The hijackers released 148 hostages from other countries Wednesday and Thursday.

The hijackers are demanding the release of 40 prisoners in Israel and 13 others they say are held in West Germany, Switzerland and Kenya. They threaten to kill the hostages if the prisoners are not delivered to them by 7 a.m. EDT Sunday.

Israel, breaking a seven-year policy of refusing to give in to the demands of terrorists, agreed to negotiate an exchange.

A military rebellion erupted in Sudan against President Jaafar Numeiry today as he returned from a trip to the United States. But a government announcement said loyalist forces crushed the attempted coup in Africa's largest country.

Heavy fighting was reported to have raged in Khartoum streets between insurgent and loyalist troops, the sources said. It was the second uprising against Numeiry in 10 months.

Over to Unions, CLRA Head Says

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The next move in the province-wide lockout which has tied up $2 billion in construction projects is up to the unions, Construction Labor Relations Association chairman George Wheaton said today.

"There is nothing more the companies can do," he said.

"We have to wait until the unions can agree among themselves on some formula for a wage settlement."

The unions were meeting today to discuss the issue.

Wheaton said no negotiations on a wage package can begin until the unions form a common front or at least agree on some forumla for a province-wide agreement.

The lockout of 40,000 union workers officially started at 4 p.m. Wednesday but the first effects were felt today.

In Victoria, hardest hit by the labor dispute was Farmer Construction.

The company has had to close down $15.5 million worth of projects, putting more than 300 men out of work.

Construction work was just starting on the huge provincial government office complex at Broughton and Courtenay after the completion of excavation. There were 20 structural workers on the site this week and this was scheduled to reach a peak of 50 if work had proceeded. Value of

Ney Out-Bulls Everyone

Ney's heave dashed the hopes of Mayor Jim Fraser of Williams Lake who was trying for his third title in five years. Fraser finished fifth.

Meet officials said Ney's effort could have been a record-breaker. However, they added they were unable to measure the toss because the discus of recycled fodder sailed well beyond the confines of the arena.

Alderman John Paul of Williams Lake was second with a throw of 21 metres. Highways Minister Alex Fraser (SC — Cariboo) and Alderman Tom Barr of Williams Lake tied for third.

The bull-throwing competition is open only to politicians.

Beaches Going Clean

The annual list of beaches and lakes in the Capital district classified as clean by regional health authorities shows pollution is in gradual retreat — or at least being dumped farther away.

There are only four spots listed as polluted and unsafe in contrast to more than 40 locations, from part of Sooke harbor to the Sidney waterfront, which are approved for bathing after a series of water tests.

The four are:

The outer shore of Esquimalt Lagoon, where there is another sewage outfall serving Belmont Park housing.

The creek mouth along the shore of Mount Douglas Park where discredited "sand filters" from residential sewage systems continue to pollute the creek.

The bay at the foot of Marne Street in Oak Bay, a small area which does not get adequately flushed by tides.

With contracts let for the first stages of an $8 million outfall at Clover Point, it appears likely that area will also be on the clean list a couple of years from now. The outfall will carry sewage more than a mile out into

Dead Girl Tied to Tree

MISSION (CP) — The body of a missing nine-year-old girl was found early today tied to a tree in a remote, forested area of the Fraser Valley, 30 miles northeast of here.

Jeanna Doove, who lived with her parents in a Mission trailer court, was last seen by her playmates Wednesday night playing with a half-way house resident on parole on a rape conviction.

Police and volunteers combed the area. During the search a suspect was taken into custody. Police said he would be charged with murder, punishable by life imprisonment.

Trailer court residents were outraged to learn that the halfway house, located less than 50 yards from the dead girl's home, had been housing a sexual offender.

Jack Doove, father of the dead girl, said in an interview before his daughter's body was found that it was about 9 p.m. when he noticed she was missing.

Doove was also angered at learning the half-way house accommodated a sexual offender.

"I can't see how they could let something like that go. Even the police admit that it's stupid, but they can't do anything about it until something drastic has happened," he said.

The half-way house is owned and operated by the Genesis Society, a non-profit charitable organization based on Christian principles but not affiliated with any particular denomination. The house started about a year ago.

When asked whether the house was suitable for a sexual offender, Peter Cronin, executive director of the society, said: "If a guy is out of jail and lives in the area, I would rather try and do something for him than leave him by himself."

Christians Storm Camp

Times News Services

BEIRUT, Grenade-throwing Christians stormed into a burning Palestinian refugee camp in south east Beirut today and fought defending guerrillas hand-to-hand in the fiercest battle of the Lebanes civil war.

Palestinian sources charged that the Christian forces are engaging in an orgy of rape and slaughter in their attacks on the camp.

Christian spokesmen said the attacking force of 6,000 militiamen supported by 130 tanks and armored cars penetrated the defences of the Tal Zaatar camp from two sides and was making a house-to-house advance.

"The penetration is well under way," said one Christian spokesman. "More than 300 Palestinian guerrrillas already have surrendered."

The Palestinians denied the camp had fallen, but admitted their situation was desperate.

"Half of it is burning as a result of a murderous barrage of incendiary bombs that set the stage for the right-wing assault," said a Palestinian spokesman. "But the camp is steadfastly fighting off the attackers."

The 75-acre camp, the last Palestinian stronghold in Christian eastern Beirut, has been hit by more than 15,000 shells since it came under siege June 22. Its commander said the camp was critically short of food and water.

"The Christians will pay henfold in blood" unless they withdraw from the camp, a Palestinian source said.

Retaliating leftists bombarded Beirut's commercial and Christian quarters with rocket and artillery fire Thursday, giving Lebanon one of its worst days of carnage in 15 months of civil war: More than 225 dead and 500 wounded in 24 hours.

No Mass Holiday Exodus

There was no rush to get off the Island for the Dominion Day holiday, according to B.C. Ferries officials who report unusually light traffic loads.

The only dock-side line-up reported at the Swartz Bay terminal Thursday was for the first early morning sailing. Otherwise most ferry runs left only half-full.

Business was brisker on Wednesday, but there was no heavy congenstion reported.

Ferry officials report it was the quietest Dominion Day they can remember and say contributing factors are the ferry fare increases and the fact the holiday occured mid-week.

Olympic Games In Doubt

they did not "use the flag, anthem or any other symbol of the Republic of China or use a team designation which uses the world 'China.'"

It is now too late to stop Montreal's troubled $1.4 billion games, but the IOC threat meant the "Festival of Youth" may go on without the usual pageantry and medal winners may not receive Olympic awards.

The first batch of athletes — from the Soviet Union, Britain and Italy — were in mid-Atlantic Thursday when the committee made known its disagreement with the Canadian government.

Reached in Dublin by telephone late Thursday, IOC president Lord Killanin said "I am worried about the dangerous precedent set when a country can decide which countries compete under which flag at the Olympics."

The action by the Canadian government was the second time in the history of the Olympic movement that a government has challenged the Olympic charter.

Adolph Hitler tried it in 1936 when the games were staged in Berlin, but he backed off when the IOC told him to keep out of its affiars.

Meanwhile in Kampala, President Idi Amin told Uganda's Olympic team Thursday they should not take part in the Montreal Olympics if New Zealand participates.

Amin, in a statement broadcast by the official Uganda radio, accused New Zealand of co-operating with the white-minority regime in South Africa by permitting a rugby team to tour South Africa.

Uganda's stand was also backed by Kenya.

Kenya's Olympic athletes leave for the games in Montreal Monday but will pull out of the Olympics if the dispute over New Zealand's participation is not resolved before competition starts, a Kenyan sports official said Thursday.

Unions' Turn Next

the srtuctural portion of the contract is $4.6 million.

Work has been halted on the $5 million federal mail-sorting plant near Royal Oak, putting another 75 men on the street.

An additional 50 men were employed on finishing touches of the Clerihue Building at University of Victoria and this project has also been halted in the labor dispute.

Another 40 men where scheduled to be hired for the $3.3 million Clover Point Pumping Station project but this has als obeen shelved.

The lockout became inevitable Wednesday morning when the largest union, the carpenters, went on strike.

The CLRA had been hopeful the 600-member Cement Masons Union would halt its selective strike on the Lower Mainland so negotiations could resume but the sudden walkout by the 12,000 carpenters brought the dispute to a head.

Cy Stairs, president of the Trades Council, said he is disapopinted by the strike-lockout situation and will continue to try to get the unions together in a common front to negotiate with the companies.

There are 21 unions involved, 15 of which are in direct negotiations.

Some negotiations are continuing with individual unions on questions that affect them alone but no talks on a wage package will begin until some formula is arranged for a package deal.

The highest-paid unions are seeking a percentage increase while the lower-paid trades are seeking a flat rate so they can close the gap with the top-rated trades. The electricians and plumbers are at the top while the carpenters and cemet masons are among the lower-paid workers.

On Wedesday Labor Minister Allan Williams assured the legislature he would not use a section of the Labor Code Amendment Act to force the formation of a council of unions in the construction industry.

"At this particular time it would be most inappropriate for me to use Section 57 (the relevat section)" in the construction industry dispute.

Beaches Cleaner

Juan de Fuca Strait. A similar outfall at Macaulay Point in Esquimalt has ended beach pollution there.

One health inspector said today that while water tests show a number of formerly polluted beaches cleaned up, some people have told him they will never again swim in the saltchuck because of the outfalls.

For the first time health inspectors have tested some locations in Sooke this year and beaches at the foot of Charters Road, Kaltasin Road and in Sooke harbor at Bell Vista Place are now approved.

Approved bathing areas elsewhere:

In Victoria, at the foot of Cook and Lewis Streets.

In Saanich, at Mount Douglas Park except for areas north and south of the creek mouth, Cadboro Bay, Sayward Beach, Prospect Lake Park, Beaver Lake Park, Eagle's and Hamsterley beaches on Elk Lake.

In Central Saanich, Island View Beach and Boyce Park, formerly posted, in Brentwood.

While they could not be confirmed with the local health inspector, other sources indicated Roberts Bay and Tulista Park as well as beaches at the foot of Beacon Avenue, Ocean Avenue and Rothesay Avenue in Sidney were again approved, as well as Patricia Bay and Coles Bay in North Saanich.

THREE DAYS IN RAFT FOR BALLOON MAN

United Press International

Karl Thomas, "a little bit on the sore side" with cracked ribs and perhaps a bruised ego from his splash into the sea, doubts he'll make another try at becoming the first man to pilot a balloon across the Atlantic Ocean.

"I think we've given it our shot. We'll let someone else make it. I'm sure someone will," the 27-year-old adventurer said Thursday in a radio-telephone interview from a Russian vessel which plucked him from a life raft.

Speaking with radio station CJCH, Halifax, Thomas said he plunged into the ocean from his 10-storey high red, white and blue balloon, then swam to a life raft he had released, after being caught in a thunderstorm early last Sunday about 550 miles southeast of New York City.

"I had to jump 200 feet from the gondola to the sea and I cracked a few ribs on the right side," he said. "I suffered some internal bleeding in the right lung, but it's stopped."

Thomas floated in the raft with no food or fresh water, until Wednesday night, when he sighted and signalled the 423-foot Russian steamer Dekabrist, which picked him up.

The boat is scheduled to arrive July 8 in Rotterdam.

When asked what he was thinking about during his time in the raft, Thomas said, "I worried about sharks and wondering 'what am I doing here?' "

Yacht Race Canadian Missing After Fierce Atlantic Storm

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A Canadian yacht which was in a race across the Atlantic with only its skipper aboard has been found drifting and abandoned at sea, it was disclosed Thursday.

Officials of the Royal Western - London Observer singlehanded transatlantic race feared Michael Flanagan — a 42-year-old Canadian citizen and Hartford, Conn., businessman — may be the quadrennial race's first death.

Flanagan's monohull Galloping Gael — apparently the victim of a treacherous North Atlantic storm with 30-foot waves and 70 mph winds — was found Wednesday midway across a stormy Atlantic by the Greek motor vessel Nema.

"There may be others (missing or dead) in this race because they had a very rough time of it," said Commodore A. J. Odling-Smee of the Royal Western Yacht Club.

There hasn't been a fatality since the race began in 1960 with five yachts.

At least 30 vessels among the 129 starters in this year's race were forced from the 3,000-mile solo voyage by a variety of problems, many caught in the storm. Several skippers were rescued by passing ships as their vessels sank.

Polish skipper Kazimierz Jaworski said he had 10 days in a row when the wind blew at least 35 mph and two days when his wind indicator stuck at 60 mph.

"This is the kind of thing a singlehanded skipper dreads most," said Alain Colas, second-place winner in his 236-foot schooner Club Mediterranee. "I'm very sad."

The position where Galloping Gael was found is about 1,000 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

"There is no search at the moment. Novody knows where to search," said Odling-Smee.

"We aren't presuming anything yet, people can draw their own conclusions. We just have to take it as it is and see if there is any more information later," he said.

Firing Alleged Over Criticism

NDP MLA Bob Skelly charged Wednesday that a fish and wildlife branch clerk in Nelson was fired from his job recently because of statements he made as regional president of SPEC.

Skelly (Alberni) said that Mike Jessen was fired shortly after he publicly criticized the government's energy policy and called for the resignation of B.C. Hydro chairman Robert Bonner.

Jessen said from Nelson that on May 18 he was told that his job was to be continued, but on June 9 he received a call from the fish and wildlife branch in Victoria informing him that his position was to be discontinued in two days.

Jessen says he is taking action through the union with the hopes of getting his job back.

"I certainly believe that the things I've been saying publicly played some role," in the firing, he said.

He said he believed Jessen had been fired simply because "he criticized a member of the Social Credit party who was appointed to a high office."

Bonner was a cabinet minister under the W. A. C. Bennett administration. He was appointed Hydro head Dec. 30.

Skelly also produced a copy of a memo that he said had been circulated to fish and wildlife offices around B.C.

The memo, which Skelly said had been sent by branch management, stated that, "It has been brought to our attention that leaks of an embarrassing nature will be dealt with severely."

He said other government departments had received similar notices.

Mrs. McCarthy denied any knowledge of such a memo saying "It's all news to me."

'. . . Soft Bargain'

The provincial government's new sale and leasing arrangement for three new ferries will save $18.6 million corporate taxes for eastern financiers, an NDP MLA claims.

Dave Stupich (Nanaimo) said Transport Minister Jack Davis "drives a very soft bargain" for B.C. under the arrangement while eastern financiers will net $46 million in the deal.

Stupich said the deal will require B.C. Ferries to pay for all maintenance costs, repairs and modifications.

The arrangement, Stupich said, will more than double the original $46.5 million capital cost of the vessels to $95 million under the 18-year leasing arrangement and shortchange provincial income tax revenues by $4.6 million.

Open Fire Doors Set for Tunnel

DELTA (CP) — A Highways department spokesman said Thursday that locking pins will be removed from fire doors in the George Massey tunnel between Richmond and Delta.

The spokesman said that closed circuit television is being considered as is improving emergency wrecker service.

Some of the improvements were being planned before a special safety inspection of the tunnel on Wednesday, the spokesman said, but others will result from recommendations of fire officials.

Richmond fire chief Mike Byrne said Wednesday that conditions in the tunnel "are ripe for a disaster."

Alderman Lorne Hope of Delta said Tuesday that the tunnel is a fire trap and the highwas department has attempted to cover up the situation.

Highways Minister Alex Fraser said after the inspection Wednesday that he is satisified that there is no cover-up.

$720,081 Salaries

Salary costs for the provincial government's 75 job-finders and welfare fraud investigators will be $720,081 for the last nine months of this fiscal year, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm says.

But Vander Zalm also said that 142 people were charged last year with fruads totalling $235,842 and 67 were convicted of $61,832 in welfare frauds.

He was answering questions by Conservative Leader Scott Wallace. In his written answer Vander Zalm, said the numbers "... represent charges that were laid as a result of only a few staff being available to investigate alleged fraud. There has not been sufficient staff available to do all the necessary investigation in proper detail every time there is a suggestion of overpayments."

TAXMAN CLAMPS OVER QUICKIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers in the United States who slip in and out of marriage with annual quickie divorces that save taxes may find the Internal Revenue Service has something to say about their marital status.

In a move to shut off what a spokesman called a "sham transaction," the IRS said Thursday it no longer will recognize a divorce obtained merely to pay lower federal income taxes.

The issue arose when taxpayers discovered that under some circumstances the tax bill for a working married couple was higher than if they had stayed single and earned the same amount of money.

The solution for some was to obtain a divorce late in December and then remarry early in January. The IRS said it does not know how many couples employed the tactic.

It worked because tax law says an individual is considered unmarried in a ptrticular tax year if he or she is divorced anytime before the year ends, even on the last day.

Under tax rate changes enacted in 1969, a working couple earning $30,000 a year might have saved hundreds of dollars in taxes by divorcing.

If they both earned $15,000 and got a divorce, their tax bill would have been $5,113, a savings of $391 over what they would have paid had they stayed married the entire year.

Is the Vendetta Over Yet?

Would it be too unpleasant to go over some old business regarding the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia? We don't want to be accused of harping unduly on what was said six months ago; and of course we promise not to say I told you so.

ICBC had a deficit of $181 million because of the NDP government's ineptitude, was the word from the new Social Credit administration. Therefore Autoplan premiums were jacked up by more than 100 per cent. All strictly necessary, and just to put the corporation on a break-even basis, said Education Minister Pat McGeer, responsible for ICBC.

Social Credit "was elected to help clean-up that mess," he said in January, adding that "the public when it realizes the true state of financial affairs in B.C. will accept the moves we're undertaking as essential."

Okay. After the outrage and shock died away, people accepted the increases on that basis. Even though ICBC director Byron Straight, who carried out the new government's crash study of ICBC's finances, said the Socreds had chosen the harshest of three alternatives to get ICBC out of the woods.

But what happens late in March? The public is told that it's absolutely necessary for ICBC to have a loan of $181 million to meet its deficit, even though it has hundreds of millions on hand from premium income. The government makes the loan one day, then borrows the money back again — presumably at 10 or 11 per cent interest — for its own purposes. Why the funny money manoeuvre?

Then came the carefully-worded promises that if we're all good little drivers, we may all get a rebate at the end of the year, not just under-25 drivers who avoid accidents. Then the news last week that ICBC probably will end the year with an enormous surplus — maybe $150 million, according to Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson, who can be considered a neutral bystander.

That's about as far from the "actuarial realities" talked of six months ago by McGeer as the ocean of red ink incurred by ICBC under the NDP. Far from putting the corporation "on a sound financial basis for the first time," McGeer seems to have turned it into a great little gouger and excess profit-maker.

Or as the premier himself put it a year ago, while still opposition leader, to a meeting of the Insurance Agents Association of B.C.: "Is there no cabinet minister who can add a column of figures?"

Some more questions. When does the games-playing and the political interference with ICBC end? When will it be allowed to perform a necessary job purely as a public utility without the political carrot-and-stick act?

Call us when the vendetta's over.

Help the Handicapped

Almost exactly a year ago we wrote that the new Greater Victoria Activity Centre for the Handicapped needed just $300,000 more to finish off its new building on Darwin in Saanich. Now, the centre faces the same money problem — compounded by the change in governments.

In October, the centre applied to the province for a $333,000 grant from the community recreational facilities fund but the election intervened and lately all applications have been held in abeyance. It's explained that all the money's been spent.

For heaven's sake, this is no ice arena or curling rink (facilities which the handicapped cannot usually enjoy it should be noted, a luxury item any municipality would like to have. The handicapped activity centre has been planned for years, and it's no option or frill — it's a heart-felt necessity in the Victoria region.

The present inadequate facilities cannot come close to helping all those who need help, who want to help.

The need for such a centre should not have to be demonstrated all over again. The organizers of the centre now are watching the third provincial government since they began working a decade ago. They shouldn't have to perform another selling job on the new proprietors.

The activity centre should head the list of projects approved for funds when the new administration gets around sooner or later, to loosening the purse strings. The handicapped hope it will be sooner.

RICHARD GWYN

'Deep, Underlying Mistrust'

OTTAWA — Except that the planes are flying again, the settlement of the strike of pilots and air controllers settles almost nothing. Untouched is what Prime Minister Trudeau called "the most divisive issue in 34 years," or since the conscription crisis almost tore the country apart in the Second World War.

Like a large lumbering animal, a St. Bernard dog, say, that is powerful enough but normally amiable and sleepy, English Canada awoke suddenly over the bilingualism issue, snapping and snarling. Trudeau aides reckon that 80-90 per cent of English-Canadians backed the strike, and showed, as the prime minister put it, "a deep and underlying mistrust of the principle of bilingualism."

Somehow, English Canada has to be put back, not to sleep but into a mood of sympathy and understanding. If this doesn't happen, Canada as we now know it just isn't going to last.

Transport Minister Otto Lang has made a rotten start towards recovery. Absent on a trip to France through most of the crisis, Lang helped erode whatever little trust existed between pilots and government by misleading them into believing bilingualism was planned only for visual landings and take-offs and not, as now admitted, also for the much more complicated instrument landings and take-offs.

Lang Misled Airmen

To end the strike Lang made concessions that just about destroy the government's own policy. To add a third member, federal court Judge Don Heald, to the commission was sensible. But to amend the terms of reference to require the commission to "justify beyond a reasonable doubt why any contrary view by the pilots and controllers should not prevail" is to submit to blackmail by the installment plan.

To disprove, beyond reasonable doubt, the judgment of experts like pilots and controllers, will be almost impossible. Even if the commission does reach a unanimous conclusion in favor of bilingual air control, the pilots and controllers still can protest.

In a year or so the commission will publish its report. If this document advocates bilingualism the pilots have the right, and at a press conference made plain they will use it, to issue their own conflicting report. By a "free vote" — this was Lang's most incredible concession, and a measure of his desperation — parliament then will have to decide between the two reports.

By this tortuous procedure, the government has made certain that Canada's most divisive national issue in three decades will stay alive until late in 1977, and will then burst out in a parliamentary debate over technicialities that not a single MP will understand. It has made certain also that bilingualism in the air will be the centrepiece of the 1978 election.

The government's single benefit is that it has bought itself time. How this time gets used now becomes the issue.

There are some reasons, in a blessed relief, to be optimistic.

First, the government is reviewing its bilingualism policy — not the principle of the policy, that is, but its implemention. "We know that adjustments need to be made," says Treasury Board President Jean Chretien, "that some stupidities exist." Chretien is taking a hard took at the 60,000 bilingual positions in the civil service, three times the number originally forecast, and far more, it is widely recognized, than are needed.

Undecided yet is the government's response to language commissioner Keith Spicer's recommendation that funds be shifted from civil service training into second language education in the schools. However, the reason behind Ottawa's attempt to gain a say in university policy-making is precisely its recognition that bilingualism belongs in the classrooms of the nation.

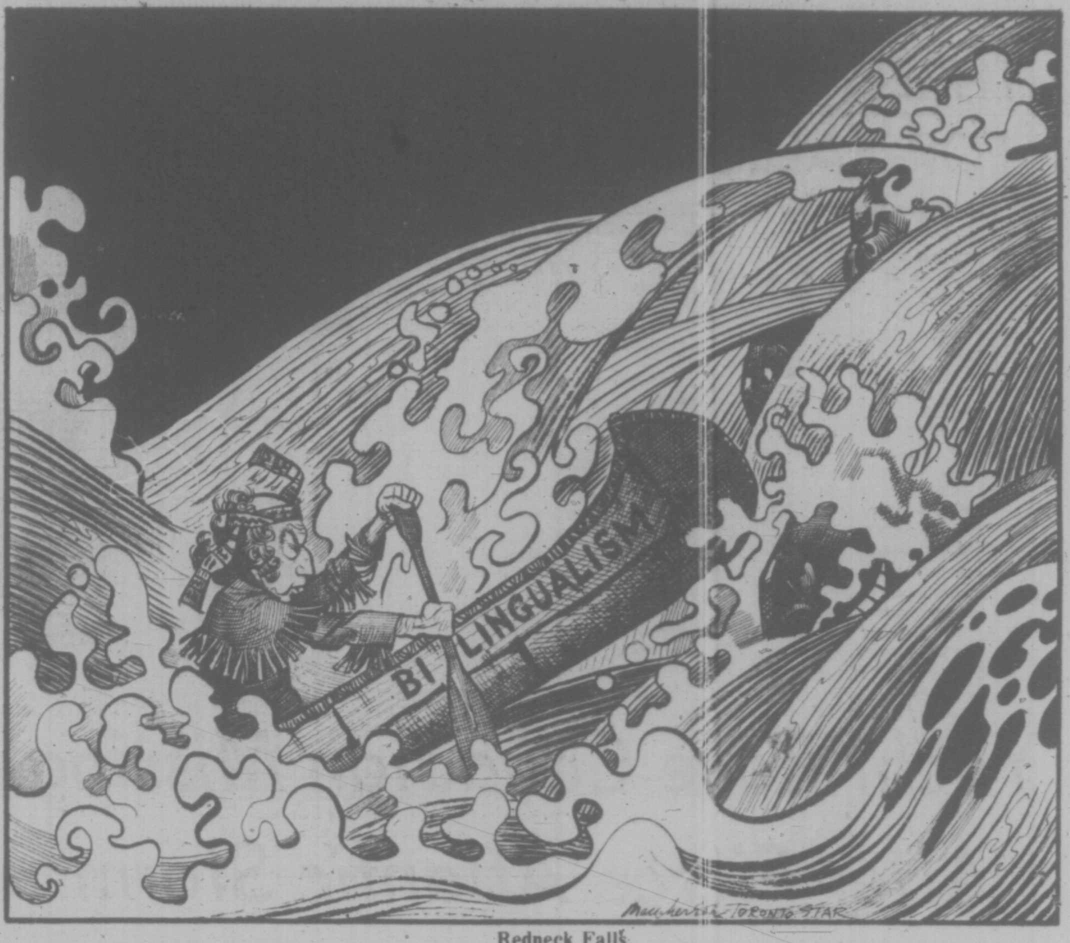
Second, plans are being laid for a bilingual blitz by ministers and MPs. "We'd forgotten we needed to sell bilingualism, its been around so long," says a Trudeau aide. "It's pretty shattering, mind you, to realize that after 10 years we have to start all over again, almost from the beginning."

Shattering perhaps, but essential. In recent years, bilingualism has been implemented, not so much arrogantly as absent-mindedly. Those who protested, whether unilingual civil servants or Vancouverites upset about the sudden appearance of a French television channel, were dismissed as bigots when often their complaint was only that they no longer knew what was going on, or why.

Amiable Majority

Will bilingualism reform and public relations work? If you listened to the CBC's Cross-Country Check-Up radio program last Sunday you'd believe they will. Asked their opinions about bilingualism, fewer than a half-dozen callers from Halifax to Yellowknife opposed the policy as such. The great majority grumbled about the way it is being applied, said that they didn't understand what was going on, or, most encouraging of all, were angry that their children weren't being taught proper French.

Taken for granted, as they have been, English-Canadians will snap and snarl, as they have done. These outbursts, as in the conscription crisis, aside, the fact remains that English Canadians have been an amiable majority for 109 years new which demonstrates, to rephrase Trudeau, a deep and underlying trust in Confederation.



Redneck Falls.

W. A. WILSON

Ottawa Was Humiliated

OTTAWA — Either from genuine worry over aviation safety or lack of sympathy for the pace of bilingualism, there will be many English-Canadians ready to applaud the airline pilots and the controllers for the tough line they took with the government.

Before anyone applauds too warmly, however, they would be wise to ponder the various reasons for viewing this settlement with great uneasiness. Essentially, the government has made very significant concessions, some humiliating to itself and damaging to its own authority, to bring two illegal strikes to an end.

The airline pilots have been able to dictate, not merely that parliament must approve any eventual conclusions by the three-man commission, but to dictate as well how the House of Commons is to proceed when it comes to deal with the issue. That smacks in the most unpleasant way of the approaches colonels often take in less stable countries to demonstrate their contempt for politicians.

To pacify the illegal strikers, the government has agreed that the commission will operate under a rule of unanimity, each member having the power of veto over any particular recommendation or over the general conclusions reached in the end.

Banana Republic?

If the government had, in the beginning, decided to form a three-man commission operating under a rule of unanimity and announced that even those findings would be subject to a free vote in parliament, the public might have been able to take it just as a demonstration of an administration's all-out concern with safety in the air. But since that is not how these extraordinary ground rules were developed that comfortable view is not reasonable.

A precedent has been set. Great concessions have been made to men whose campaign had an illegal foundation. The question to be asked now is which group in society will note the lessons the pilots have taught the country and follow their example, seeking to humiliate a government and to dictate the procedures of parliament. Once lessons of this sort have been taught, there is almost always someone to act on them.

It is to be hoped that most of the men who guide the affairs of the Canadian Labour Congress are too level-headed to follow the pilots' example, although that would not be true of all of them. But anyone rushing to applaud the pilots and controllers should speculate a little on what would happen if the CLC leaders did take a lesson from their book.

The CLC is involved in a determined fight against the government's anti-inflation policies, doing its utmost by argument and protest to get the government to reverse its position and abandon price and wage controls. There has been talk within the CLC of a general strike as one possible means of driving home to the government labor's intense opposition to the controls. The wiser heads in the CLC have kept the situation under control, letting this sort of talk serve as a safety valve and refusing to be swayed by it.

The CLC leaders will probably continue as they have been going, sticking to legitimate methods of persuasion. If they were to follow the pilots' example however, many of those applauding today would immediately be howling in protest. And the demonstration is now there — illegal methods will win concessions from government in this country today. The best reason for not taking this sort of first step is simply because there is no way of knowing what the next one may be and the second step may be intensely unpalatable to the very people who applaud the first one.

JIM LIVINGSTON

It is doubtful whether Ken Maley of the pilots trade union, or Jim Livingston of the air traffic controllers have contributed anything at all to aviation safety in Canada. If pilots and controllers really were the best judges of safety there would be no need for the large body of government rules and regulations through which safe procedures are established in all countries and directorates of civil aviation would be unnecessary. While their contribution to air safety may be minimal, these two men have, however, struck a blow of some seriousness at our political institutions.

The primary reason for concern over this settlement is its effect on the political system and the way in which it invites similar actions from others later on. There are two other reasons for uneasiness. One is the effect on opinion within French Canada. Many in the rest of the country would like to ignore this but the weight of numbers alone makes this impossible. The other reason is that the present government is, at this point, weak in terms of public acceptance—exceptionally so. That may delight its opponents but for the rest of the country it poses a problem.

We are in all probability two years away from an election. Those two years are going to be, so far as anyone can see now, problem-filled. The present assortment of problems is serious. An abnormally weak government—speaking not of its own will but of its acceptance by the nation—is not desirable at this mid-term point, whether one approves or disapproves the government per se.

Problem-filled Years

Already low in public esteem, the administration must surely have lost a little further ground through this affair. Maley and Livingston set out to humiliate and succeeded. The government, however, played into their hands in the earlier stages of the dispute. Had it set up the present commission, with the extremely cautious approach inherent in the rule of unanimity, these trade unions would have found it far harder to defy both the law and the government. The delay in replacing John Keenan after his resignation contributed to the government's weakness because it created a vacuum which Mr. Livingston was a skilful enough tactician to move in and fill.

The effect on opinion in French Canada is bound to be serious. It may not be a great crisis among ordinary people in Quebec but it is bound to increase the skepticism with which they view English-Canada. In his latest report Keith Spicer, the official languages commissioner, commented that French-Canadian cynicism towards the policy of bilingualism is probably a greater danger to the nation than English backlash.

Little Reprimand

Tut, tut, a little reprimand, dear editor, if you please. In your June 26 Editor's Notebook, The Canadian Mirror: An Uneasy Reflection, a question or so and do let me go hang my head if I'm proven a hopelessly mixed-up dodderer.

For the life of me I at first failed to get the real impetus on reading your "to the point." So with strengthened curiosity I hurriedly flipped over to page seven to discover a rather very interesting conglomeration of local persons' letters on Why We're Glad to Be Canadians.

As I understand it, the Times had specifically invited its readers to comment on why they were glad to be Canadians. Okay. But now it turned out you were disappointed with "bland perceptions" as revealed in letters, especially by the young students.

Holy mackerel, man, wasn't the question asked meant to be favorably orientated and not negatively critical as Canadian citizens? Or where did I go wrong in figuring this one out? Since I happened to respect you as one of my editor-heroes, I feel rather humble in pursuing this to an answerable conclusion.

Truthfully I thought page seven most attractively laid out in arrangement of the letters, contents of which embodied the theme in all honesty for the question asked. And so appropriately centred with quote from Sir John A. Macdonald.

The children's naivete was perhaps leavened with natural pride of one's country of birth or preferred adoption. What else?

Without being facetious may I offer a friendly suggestion? Perhaps another future Times invitation to readers under a caption, say such as, What I find Irritating In Canada As a Citizen, or, Gross Canadian Problems, As a Citizen, How I'd Like Trying to Solve Some. — M. Anderson, 640 Dallas Road.

Glazier Applauded

Recently in the Times I read an account of a Victoria city council meeting. Among other items, I read of Ald. Murray Glazier's rather obvious observation that developers should be informed that "blockbusting" was not the approved method for successfully rezoning an area. This statement was challenged by Ald. Bob Wright.

It is difficult to imagine any developer powerful enough, arrogant and astute enough to blatantly make a case for "block-busting" in a city council meeting. But it did happen!

It is of great importance that every neighborhood association throughout the city take note of this, that every citizen's group, every conservation, heritage and ecological group be aware that the going is very rough for our friends in public office. Recently Mr. Glazier had to resign from an important committee, and now a simple observation is immediately challenged.

Mr. Glazier and other public servants who speak truth to power deserve our ongoing support. — H. Hagbarth Sorensen, 1564 Gladstone Avenue.

Cruise Ship Saves Two

The cruise ship Royal Viking Sea rescued a Victoria man and woman Thursday who had spent 12 hours drifting helplessly in a 12-foot runabout.

Janet Kinnear, 21, and Lawrie Wilkins, 26 were rescued close to Race Rocks about 6 a.m.

They had originally been sighted by the Japanese vessel Taisha Maru, which reported the couple's position to the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt about 8 p.m. Wednesday. The runabout had been without power since before 6 p.m.

A centre spokesman said a Canadian Coast Guard vessel was sent to the scene but could not find the drifting boat. The Royal Viking Sea discovered the boat shortly after sunrise.

After being rescued the couple told an officer they had seen the coast guard vessel looking for them through the night but had been unable to get the attention of the crew.

The couple had left the Inner Harbor about 11 a.m. on Wednesday.

The student-operated coast guard inflatable based at Ganges on Salt Spring Island was also involved in two marine incidents on Thursday.

They picked up two people near Saturna Island after their rowboat overturned and minutes later rescued a small girl who had fallen off the stern of a cruiser motoring out of a bay near the island.

WAC BACK IN HOSPITAL

KELOWNA (CP) — Former premier W. A. C. Bennett, 75, returned to the intensive care unit at the Kelowna General Hospital early today, just two days after being released.

R. J. Bennett, son of the former premier and brother of the present premier, said today his father had more pains in his arms and chest during the night and was taken back to the hospital.

W. A. C. Bennett first entered hospital about two weeks ago after suffering a minor heart attack.

IOC Threatens To Quit Games

Times News Services

LAUSANNE—Hours before the first of 10,000 athletes were to arrive in Montreal, the International Olympic Committee threatened to withdraw its name from the Summer Olympics because Canada refuses to accept entries from Taiwan.

In a prepared statement, the IOC stopped just short of threatening to call off the games, scheduled for July 17-Aug. 1, but a spokesman said the committee was considering disassociating itself from the games by insisting the word "Olympic" be removed and halting all medal awards.

The IOC charged Canada with bad faith and a breach of "fundamental Olympic principles in which no discrimination is permitted against any country, or person, on the grounds of race, religion or political affiliation."

The IOC pointed out that on April 11, 1975, the Canadian government approved the issuing of an invitation to Taiwan and that when Montreal was awarded the games at the 1970 congress in Amsterdam, Canada "gave all assurances that there was nothing to hinder or restrict in any way the attendance of athletes."

"Had there been any reservations, Montreal would not have been awarded the games in favor of Los Angeles or Moscow," the statement said.

In Montreal, officials of the Olympic Organizing Committee (COJO) said they would have no comment today on whether the issue of admitting athletes from Taiwan to Canada could jeopardize the 1976 summer games.

"The situation is so unclear and so confusing that we have absolutely no comment to make," official Olympic spokesman Louis Chantigny said.

Chantigny said he did not know what would happen if the Taiwan delegation arrived in Montreal today or Saturday or whether they would be allowed to stay at the Olympic Village.

Chantigny said two athletes from Taiwan arrived in Kingston, Ont. last week to bring a boat from the United States for use in sailing events being staged there.

He said they stayed only a couple of days and returned to Honolulu.

"As far as we know, they left of their own free will," Chantigny said.

In Taipei, Shen Cia-ming, president of Taiwan's Olympic Committee, said today Taiwan will defy Canada and fly its flag at Montreal, taking part in the games as usual.

The 42 athletes from Taiwan have entered 10 Olympic events and the Canadian government has no right to bar them from the games, he said.

In a statement Thursday the IOC said it had been advised on June 27 by Mitchell Sharp, Canada's acting secretary of state for external affairs, that the Taiwanese would be blocked because "the Canadian government now recognizes the People's Republic of China."

In Ottawa, external affairs department spokesman Glen Shortliffe said athletes from Taiwan were welcome to participate in the games provided

U.S. BACKS DEATH

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court upheld the death penalty today but struck down laws in states that make death mandatory for certain crimes.

The court approved death penalty laws in Florida, Georgia and Texas but invalidated laws in Louisiana and North Carolina.

The laws the court upheld leave the death penalty decision in the hands of judges or jurors but provide guidelines for them.

An Associated Press survey shows 572 men and 10 women were on death rows in 30 states awaiting the court's decision.

Marchand Linked To Campaign Cash?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A new mystery surfaced in the Jean Marchand resignation today.

Marchand, who quit the federal cabinet Wednesday, said he was leaving government because of the air-bilingualism issue. However, it now appears that a letter sent to Prime Minister Trudeau by New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent concerning actions by Marchand when he was in charge of collecting campaign money for the Liberal Party in Quebec may have played a role in the resignation.

Trudeau today admitted the existence of the Broadbent letter but said he would have nothing more to say on the subject until Parliament reconvenes on Monday.

Marchand resigned his environment portfolio at a meeting of Quebec Liberal MPs Wednesday evening.

Because of the settlement reached earlier in the week between Transport Minister Otto Lang and representatives of the Canadian Air Line Pilot's Association and the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, he said in his letter "it would be impossible for me to respect the principle of cabinet solidarity."

Marchand will continue to sit as a private member for the Quebec City riding of Langelier, but his resignation ends a 10-year term in the cabinet — dating back to his first federal election in 1965 — that includes portfolios in environment, transport, regional economic expansion, manpower and immigration, citizenship and forestry and rural development.

In accepting Marchand's resignation, Trudeau wrote Thursday:

"You will continue to make your unique voice heard and to stand firm as a true Quebecer and Canadian against all these distortions and misinterpretations by which some would try to undermine Quebec and divert Canada from its destiny."

Marchand's resignation may put an end to a ministerial career that dates back to 1965 when he first ran successfully for Parliament.

Considered a major catch by former prime minister Lester Pearson's Liberal government, the former labor leader joined the party with his prominent friends Pierre Trudeau and Gerard Pelletier.

Now Trudeau is the last of the "three wise men" from Quebec still in government. Pelletier, also long a minister, is ambassador to France.

Pilots, Controllers Playing Air Games

QUEBEC (CP) — French-speaking air controllers are forcing anti-bilingual pilots to give position reports in a bid to fight what they call "racism," a director of L'Association des Gens de l'Air du Quebec said Thursday.

"Position reports are not usually necessary because of radar," Michel Charlebois said Thursday in a telephone interview.

The controllers' selective work-to-rule campaign, to last "more than 48 hours," began early Thursday against airlines which refused to fly during the English-speaking pilot's recent nine-day strike.

About 150 of the association's controllers work at Dorval International Airport while another 20 work at Mirable International Airport.

Charlebois said controllers were taking "special measures to ensure the safety of pilots under stress because they are flying in bilingual air space."

"You have to fight absurdity with absurdity," said Charlebois.

The protest, requiring pilots to maintain holding patterns as far away as possible from airports, is expected to cause delays in landing and departing.

"They say bilingual air space is not safe, so we are countering the effects of their stress," Charlebois said.

"We have to take care of the pilots. They are men who are above the law and they are closer to God than we are."

Meanwhile, English-speaking pilots are continuing their own harassment of French-speaking controllers — they repeat instructions wrong.

"A pilot must repeat instructions, so instead of repeating, 'go to 10,000 feet,' he'll change it to 12,000." Montreal controller Noel Salomon said Thursday.

AUDIT FOUND PITFIELD GRANT

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's top civil servant, cabinet secretary Michael Pitfield applied for and got a $1,000 first-time homeowners grant from the Ontario government, according to the Globe and Mail.

Pitfield applied the grant — supposed to go to persons buying their first home — on a $180,000 colonial-style mansion in the capital's exclusive Rockcliffe Park area.

A routine audit revealed Pitfield, who earns in excess of $45,000 a year, was ineligible for the grant because he had previously owned another home in the capital.

He has since returned the money.

Hijackers Bargaihing For 110

KAMPALA (AP) — Negotiations resumed today for the release of the 110 passengers and crew members of a hijacked Air France plane still held by pro-Palestinian extremists at Uganda's Entebbe airport.

Most of all of the 98 passengers still held were Israelis or Jews of other nationalities. The hijackers released 148 hostages from other countries Wednesday and Thursday.

The hijackers are demanding the release of 40 prisoners in Israel and 13 others they say are held in West Germany, Switzerland and Kenya. They threaten to kill the hostages if the prisoners are not delivered to them by 7 a.m. EDT Sunday.

Israel, breaking a seven-year policy of refusing to give in to the demands of terrorists, agreed to negotiate an exchange.

Rebellion Crushed

United Press International

A military rebellion erupted in Sudan against President Jaafar Numeiry today as he returned from a trip to the United States. But a government announcement said loyalist forces crushed the attempted coup in Africa's largest country.

Heavy fighting was reported to have raged in Khartoum streets between insurgent and loyalist troops, the sources said. It was the second uprising against Numeiry in 10 months.

Over to Unions, CLRA Head Says

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The next move in the province-wide lockout which has tied up $2 billion in construction projects is up to the unions, Construction Labor Relations Association chairman George Wheaton said today.

"There is nothing more the companies can do," he said.

"We have to wait until the unions can agree among themselves on some formula for a wage settlement."

The unions were meeting today to discuss the issue.

Wheaton said no negotiations on a wage package can begin until the unions form a common front or at least agree on some forumla for a province-wide agreement.

The lockout of 40,000 union workers officially started at 4 p.m. Wednesday but the first effects were felt today.

In Victoria, hardest hit by the labor dispute was Farmer Construction.

The company has had to close down $15.5 million-worth of projects, putting more than 300 men out of work.

Construction work was just starting on the huge provincial government office complex at Broughton and Courtenay after the completion of excavation. There were 20 structural workers on the site this week and this was scheduled to reach a peak of 50 if work had proceeded. Value of

Ney's heave dashed the hopes of Mayor Jim Fraser of Williams Lake, who was trying for his third title in five years. Fraser finished fifth.

Meet officials said Ney's effort could have been a record-breaker. However, they added they were unable to measure the toss because the discus of recycled fodder sailed well beyond the confines of the arena.

Alderman John Paul of Williams Lake was second with a throw of 21 metres. Highways Minister Alex Fraser (SC — Cariboo) and Alderman Tom Barr of Williams Lake tied for third.

The bull-throwing competition is open only to politicians.

Beaches Going Clean

The annual list of beaches and lakes in the Capital district classified as clean by regional health authorities shows pollution is in gradual retreat — or at least being dumped farther away.

There are only four spots listed as polluted and unsafe in contrast to more than 40 locations, from part of Sooke harbor to the Sidney waterfront, which are approved for bathing after a series of water tests.

The four are:

The outer shore of Esquimalt Lagoon, where there is another sewage outfall serving Belmont Park housing.

The creek mouth along the shore of Mount Douglas Park, where discredited "sand filters" from residential sewage systems continue to pollute the creek.

The bay at the foot of Marne Street in Oak Bay, a small area which does not get adequately flushed by tides.

With contracts let for the first stages of an $8 million outfall at Clover Point, it appears likely that area will also be on the clean list a couple of years from now. The outfall will carry sewage more than a mile out into

Dead Girl Tied to Tree

MISSION (CP) — The body of a missing nine-year-old girl was found early today tied to a tree in a remote, forested area of the Fraser Valley, 30 miles northeast of here.

Jeanna Doove, who lived with her parents in a Mission trailer court, was last seen by her playmates Wednesday night playing with a half-way house resident on parole on a rape conviction.

Police and volunteers combed the area. During the search a suspect was taken into custody. Police said he would be charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment.

Trailer court residents were outraged to learn that the halfway house, located less than 50 yards from the dead girl's home, had been housing a sexual offender.

Jack Doove, father of the dead girl, said in an interview before his daughter's body was found that it was about 9 p.m. when he noticed she was missing.

Doove was also angered at learning the half-way house accommodated a sexual offender.

"I can't see how they could let something like that go. Even the police admit that it's stupid, but they can't do anything about it until something drastic has happened," he said.

The half-way house is owned and operated by the Genesis Society, a non-profit charitable organization based on Christian principles but not affiliated with any particular denomination. The house started about a year ago.

When asked whether the house was suitable for a sexual offender, Peter Cronin, executive director of the society, said: "If a guy is out of jail and lives in the area, I would rather try and do something for him than leave him by himself."

Christians Storm Camp

Times News Services

BEIRUT, Grenade-throwing Christians stormed into a burning Palestinian refugee camp in south east Beirut today and fought defending guerrillas hand-to-hand in the fiercest battle of the Lebanes civil war.

Palestinian sources charged that the Christian forces are engaging in an orgy of rape and slaughter in their attacks on the camp.

Christian spokesmen said the attacking force of 6,000 militiamen supported by 130 tanks and armored cars penetrated the defences of the Tal Zaatar camp from two sides and was making a house-to-house advance.

"The penetration is well under way," said one Christian spokesman. "More than 300 Palestinian guerrrillas already have surrendered."

The Palestinians denied the camp had fallen, but admitted their situation was desperate.

"Half of it is burning as a result of a murderous barrage of incendiary bombs that set the stage for the right-wing assault," said a Palestinian spokesman. "But the camp is steadfastly fighting off the attackers."

The 75-acre camp, the last Palestinian stronghold in Christian-eastern Beirut, has been hit by more than 15,000 shells since it came under siege June 22. Its commander said the camp was critically short of food and water.

"The Christians will pay henfold in blood" unless they withdraw from the camp, a Palestinian source said.

Retaliating leftists bombarded Beirut's commercial and Christian quarters with rocket and artillery fire Thursday, giving Lebanon one of its worst days of carnage in 15 months of civil war: More than 225 dead and 500 wounded in 24 hours.

No Mass Holiday Exodus

There was no rush to get off the Island for the Dominion Day holiday, according to B.C. Ferries officials who report unusually light traffic loads.

The only dock-side line-up reported at the Swartz Bay terminal Thursday was for the first early morning sailing. Otherwise most ferry runs left only half-full.

Business was brisker on Wednesday, but there was no heavy congenstion reported.

Ferry officials report it was the quietest Dominion Day they can remember and say contributing factors are the ferry fare increases and the fact the holiday occured mid-week.

Olympic Games In Doubt

they did not "use the flag, anthem or any other symbol of the Republic of China or use a team designation which uses the world 'China.'"

It is now too late to stop Montreal's troubled $1.4 billion games, but the IOC threat meant the "Festival of Youth" may go on without the usual pageantry and medal winners may not receive Olympic awards.

The first batch of athletes — from the Soviet Union, Britain and Italy — were in mid-Atlantic Thursday when the committee made known its disagreement with the Canadian government.

Reached in Dublin by telephone late Thursday, IOC president Lord Killanin said, "I am worried about the dangerous precedent set when a country can decide which countries compete under which flag at the Olympics."

The action by the Canadian government was the second time in the history of the Olympic movement that a government has challenged the Olympic charter.

Adolph Hitler tried it in 1936 when the games were staged in Berlin, but he backed off when the IOC told him to keep out of its affiars.

Meanwhile in Kampala, President Idi Amin told Uganda's Olympic team Thursday they should not take part in the Montreal Olympics if New Zealand participates.

Amin, in a statement broadcast by the official Uganda radio, accused New Zealand of co-operating with the white-minority regime in South Africa, by permitting a rugby team to tour South Africa.

Uganda's stand was also backed by Kenya.

Kenya's Olympic athletes leave for the games in Montreal Monday but will pull out of the Olympics if the dispute over New Zealand's participation is not resolved before competition starts, a Kenyan sports official said Thursday.

Unions' Turn Next

the srtuctural portion of the contract is $4.6 million.

Work has been halted on the $5 million federal mail-sorting plant near Royal Oak, putting another 75 men on the street.

An additional 50 men were employed on finishing touches of the Clerihue Building at University of Victoria and this project has also been halted in the labor dispute.

Another 40 men where scheduled to be hired for the $3.3 million Clover Point Pumping Station project but this has als obeen shelved.

The lockout became inevitable Wednesday morning when the largest union, the carpenters, went on strike.

The CLRA had been hopeful the 600-member Cement Masons Union would halt its selective strike on the Lower Mainland so negotiations could resume but the sudden walkout by the 12,000 carpenters brought the dispute to a head.

Cy Stairs, president of the Trades Council, said he is disapopinted by the strike-lock-out situation and will continue to try to get the unions together in a common front to negotiate with the companies.

There are 21 unions involved, 15 of which are in direct negotiations.

Some negotiations are continuing with individual unions on questions that affect them alone but no talks on a wage package will begin until some formula is arranged for a package deal.

The highest-paid unions are seeking a percentage increase while the lower-paid trades are seeking a flat rate so they can close the gap with the top-rated trades. The electricians and plumbers are at the top while the carpenters and cemet masons are among the lower-paid workers.

On Wedesday Labor Minister Allan Williams assured the legislature he would not use a section of the Labor Code Amendment Act to force the formation of a council of unions in the construction industry.

"At this particular time it would be most inappropriate for me to use Section 57 (the relevat section)" in the construction industry dispute.

Beaches Cleaner

Juan de Fuca Strait. A similar outfall at Macaulay Point in Esquimalt has ended beach pollution there.

One health inspector said today that while water tests show a number of formerly polluted beaches cleaned up, some people have told him they will never again swim in the saltchuck because of the outfalls.

For the first time health inspectors have tested some locations in Sooke this year and beaches at the foot of Charters Road, Kaltasin Road and in Sooke harbor at Bell Vista Place are now approved.

Approved bathing areas elsewhere:

In Victoria, at the foot of Cook and Lewis Streets.

In Saanich, at Mount Douglas Park except for areas north and south of the creek mouth, Cadboro Bay, Sayward Beach, Prospect Lake Park, Beaver Lake Park, Eagle's and Hamsterley beaches on Elk Lake.

In Central Saanich, Island View Beach and Boyce Park, formerly posted, in Brentwood.

While they could not be confirmed with the local health inspector, other sources indicated Roberts Bay and Tulista Park as well as beaches at the foot of Beacon Avenue, Ocean Avenue and Rothesay Avenue in Sidney were again approved, as well as Patricia Bay and Coles Bay in North Saanich.

THREE DAYS IN RAFT FOR BALLOON MAN

United Press International

Karl Thomas, "a little bit on the sore side" with cracked ribs and perhaps a bruised ego from his splash into the sea, doubts he'll make another try at becoming the first man to pilot a balloon across the Atlantic Ocean.

"I think we've given it our shot. We'll let someone else make it. I'm sure someone will," the 27-year-old adventurer said Thursday in a radio-telephone interview from a Russian vessel which plucked him from a life raft.

Speaking with radio station CJCH, Halifax, Thomas said he plunged into the ocean from his 10-storey high red, white and blue balloon, then swam to a life raft he had released, after being caught in a thunderstorm early last Sunday about 550 miles southeast of New York City.

"I had to jump 200 feet from the gondola to the sea and I cracked a few ribs on the right side," he said. "I suffered some internal bleeding in the right lung, but it's stopped."

Thomas floated in the raft with no food or fresh water, until Wednesday night, when he sighted and signalled the 423-foot Russian steamer Dekabrist, which picked him up.

The boat is scheduled to arrive July 8 in Rotterdam.

When asked what he was thinking about during his time in the raft, Thomas said, "I worried about sharks and wondering 'what am I doing here?' "

Yacht Race Canadian Missing After Fierce Atlantic Storm

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A Canadian yacht which was in a race across the Atlantic with only its skipper aboard has been found drifting and abandoned at sea, it was disclosed Thursday.

Officials of the Royal Western - London Observer single-handed transatlantic race feared Michael Flanagan — a 42-year-old Canadian citizen and Hartford, Conn., businessman — may be the quadrennial race's first death.

Flanagan's monohull Galloping Gael — apparently the victim of a treacherous North Atlantic storm with 30-foot waves and 70 mph winds — was found Wednesday midway across a stormy Atlantic by the Greek motor vessel Nema.

"There may be others (missing or dead) in this race because they had a very rough time of it," said Commodore A. J. Odling-Smee of the Royal Western Yacht Club.

There hasn't been a fatality since the race began in 1960 with five yachts.

At least 30 vessels among the 129 starters in this year's race were forced from the 3,000-mile solo voyage by a variety of problems, many caught in the storm. Several skippers were rescued by passing ships as their vessels sank.

Polish skipper Kazimierz Jaworski said he had 10 days in a row when the wind blew at least 35 mph and two days when his wind indicator stuck at 60 mph.

"This is the kind of thing a singlehanded skipper dreads most," said Alain Colas, second-place winner in his 236-foot schooner Club Mediterranee. "I'm very sad."

The position where Galloping Gael was found is about 1,000 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

"There is no search at the moment. Novody knows where to search," said Odling-Smee.

"We aren't presuming anything yet, people can draw their own conclusions. We just have to take it as it is and see if there is any more information later," he said.

Firing Alleged Over Criticism

NDP MLA Bob Skelly charged Wednesday that a fish and wildlife branch clerk in Nelson was fired from his job recently because of statements he made as regional president of SPEC.

Skelly (Alberni) said that Mike Jessen was fired shortly after he publicly criticized the government's energy policy and called for the resignation of B.C. Hydro chairman Robert Bonner.

Jessen said from Nelson that on May 18 he was told that his job was to be continued, but on June 9 he received a call from the fish and wildlife branch in Victoria informing him that his position was to be discontinued in two days.

Jessen says he is taking action through the union with the hopes of getting his job back.

"I certainly believe that the things I've been saying publicly played some role," in the firing, he said.

He said he believed Jessen had been fired simply because "he criticized a member of the Social Credit party who was appointed to a high office."

Bonner was a cabinet minister under the W. A. C. Bennett administration. He was appointed Hydro head Dec. 30.

Skelly also produced a copy of a memo that he said had been circulated to fish and wildlife offices around B.C.

The memo, which Skelly said had been sent by branch management, stated that, "It has been brought to our attention that leaks of an embarrassing nature will be dealt with severely."

He said other government departments had received similar notices.

Mrs. McCarthy denied any knowledge of such a memo saying "It's all news to me."

'. . . Soft Bargain'

The provincial government's new sale and leasing arrangement for three new ferries will save $18.6 million corporate taxes for eastern financiers, an NDP MLA claims.

Dave Stupich (Nanaimo) said Transport Minister Jack Davis "drives a very soft bargain" for B.C. under the arrangement while eastern financiers will net $46 million in the deal.

Stupich said the deal will require B.C. Ferries to pay for all maintenance costs, repairs and modifications.

The arrangement, Stupich said, will more than double the original $46.5 million capital cost of the vessels to $95 million under the 18-year leasing arrangement and shortchange provincial income tax revenues by $4.6 million.

Open Fire Doors Set for Tunnel

DELTA (CP) — A Highways department spokesman said Thursday that locking pins will be removed from fire doors in the George Massey tunnel between Richmond and Delta.

The spokesman said that closed circuit television is being considered as is improving emergency wrecker service.

Some of the improvements were being planned before a special safety inspection of the tunnel on Wednesday, the spokesman said, but others will result from recommendations of fire officials.

Richmond fire chief Mike Byrne said Wednesday that conditions in the tunnel "are ripe for a disaster."

Alderman Lorne Hope of Delta said Tuesday that the tunnel is a fire trap and the highwas department has attempted to cover up the situation.

Highways Minister Alex Fraser said after the inspection Wednesday that he is satisified that there is no cover-up.

$720,081 Salaries

Salary costs for the provincial government's 75 job-finders and welfare fraud investigators will be $720,081 for the last nine months of this fiscal year, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm says.

But Vander Zalm also said that 142 people were charged last year with fruads totalling $235,842 and 67 were convicted of $61,832 in welfare frauds.

He was answering questions by Conservative Leader Scott Wallace. In his written answer Vander Zalm, said the numbers "... represent charges that were laid as a result of only a few staff being available to investigate alleged fraud. There has not been sufficient staff available to do all the necessary investigation in proper detail every time there is a suggestion of overpayments."

OFFICIAL APPOINTED

Labor Minister Allan Williams has appointed Donald R. Munroe, a Vancouver Lawyer, as vice-chairman of the Labor Relations Board of B.C. effective Spt. 1.

TAXMAN CLAMPS OVER QUICKIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers in the United States who slip in and out of marriage with annual quickie divorces that save taxes may find the Internal Revenue Service has something to say about their marital status.

In a move to shut off what a spokesman called a "sham transaction," the IRS said Thursday it no longer will recognize a divorce obtained merely to pay lower federal income taxes.

The issue arose when taxpayers discovered that under some circumstances the tax bill for a working married couple was higher than if they had stayed single and earned the same amount of money.

The solution for some was to obtain a divorce late in December and then remarry early in January. The IRS said it does not know how many couples employed the tactic.

It worked because tax law says an individual is considered unmarried in a ptrticular tax year if he or she is divorced anytime before the year ends, even on the last day.

Under tax rate changes enacted in 1969, a working couple earning $30,000 a year might have saved hundreds of dollars in taxes by divorcing.

If they both earned $15,000 and got a divorce, their tax bill would have been $5,113, a savings of $391 over what they would have paid had they stayed married the entire year.

Is the Vendetta Over Yet?

Would it be too unpleasant to go over some old business regarding the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia? We don't want to be accused of harping unduly on what was said six months ago, and of course we promise not to say I told you so.

ICBC had a deficit of $181 million because of the NDP government's ineptitude, was the word from the new Social Credit administration. Therefore Autoplan premiums were jacked up by more than 100 per cent. All strictly necessary, and just to put the corporation on a break-even basis, said Education Minister Pat McGeer, responsible for ICBC.

Social Credit "was elected to help clean up that mess," he said in January, adding that "the public when it realizes the true state of financial affairs in B.C. will accept the moves we're undertaking as essential."

Okay. After the outrage and shock died away, people accepted the increases on that basis. Even though ICBC director Byron Straight, who carried out the new government's crash study of ICBC's finances, said the Socreds had chosen the harshest of three alternatives to get ICBC out of the woods.

But what happens late in March? The public is told that it's absolutely necessary for ICBC to have a loan of $181 million to meet its deficit, even though it has hundreds of millions on hand from premium income. The government makes the loan one day, then borrows the money back again — presumably at 10 or 11 per cent interest — for its own purposes. Why the funny money manoeuvre?

Then came the carefully-worded promises that if we're all good little drivers, we may all get a rebate at the end of the year, not just under-25 drivers who avoid accidents. Then the news last week that ICBC probably will end the year with an enormous surplus — maybe $150 million, according to Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson, who can be considered a neutral bystander.

That's about as far from the "actuarial realities" talked of six months ago by McGeer as the ocean of red ink incurred by ICBC under the NDP. Far from putting the corporation "on a sound financial basis for the first time," McGeer seems to have turned it into a great little gouger and excess profit-maker.

Or as the premier himself put it a year ago, while still opposition leader, to a meeting of the Insurance Agents Association of B.C.: "Is there no cabinet minister who can add a column of figures?"

Some more questions. When does the games-playing and the political interference with ICBC end? When will it be allowed to perform a necessary job purely as a public utility without the political carrot-and-stick act?

Call us when the vendetta's over.

Help the Handicapped

Almost exactly a year ago we wrote that the new Greater Victoria Activity Centre for the Handicapped needed just $300,000 more to finish off its new building on Darwin in Saanich. Now, the centre faces the same money problem — compounded by the change in governments.

In October, the centre applied to the province for a $333,000 grant from the community recreational facilities fund but the election intervened and lately all applications have been held in abeyance. It's explained that all the money's been spent.

For heaven's sake, this is no ice arena or curling rink (facilities which the handicapped cannot usually enjoy it should be noted, a luxury item any municipality would like to have. The handicapped activity centre has been planned for years, and it's no option or frill — it's a heart-felt necessity in the Victoria region.

The present inadequate facilities cannot come close to helping all those who need help, who want to help.

The need for such a centre should not have to be demonstrated all over again. The organizers of the centre now are watching the third provincial government since they began working a decade ago. They shouldn't have to perform another selling job on the new proprietors.

The activity centre should head the list of projects approved for funds when the new administration gets around sooner or later, to loosening the purse strings. The handicapped hope it will be sooner.

RICHARD GWYN

'Deep, Underlying Mistrust'

OTTAWA — Except that the planes are flying again, the settlement of the strike of pilots and air controllers settles almost nothing. Untouched is what Prime Minister Trudeau called "the most divisive issue in 34 years," or since the conscription crisis almost tore the country apart in the Second World War.

Like a large lumbering animal, a St. Bernard dog, say, that is powerful enough but normally amiable and sleepy, English Canada awoke suddenly over the bilingualism issue, snapping and snarling. Trudeau aides reckon that 80-90 per cent of English-Canadians backed the strike, and showed, as the prime minister put it, "a deep and underlying mistrust of the principle of bilingualism."

Somehow, English Canada has to be put back, not to sleep but into a mood of sympathy and understanding. If this doesn't happen, Canada as we now know it just isn't going to last.

Transport Minister Otto Lang has made a rotten start towards recovery. Absent on a trip to France through most of the crisis, Lang helped erode whatever little trust existed between pilots and government by misleading them into believing bilingualism was planned only for visual landings and take-offs and not, as now admitted, also for the much more complicated instrument landings and take-offs.

Lang Misled Airmen

To end the strike Lang made concessions that just about destroy the government's own policy. To add a third member, federal court Judge Don Heald, to the commission was sensible. But to amend the terms of reference to require the commission to "justify beyond a reasonable doubt why any contrary view by the pilots and controllers should not prevail" is to submit to blackmail by the installment plan.

To disprove, beyond reasonable doubt, the judgment of experts like pilots and controllers, will be almost impossible. Even if the commission does reach a unanimous conclusion in favor of bilingual air control, the pilots and controllers still can protest.

In a year or so the commission will publish its report. If this document advocates bilingualism the pilots have the right, and at a press conference made plain they will use it, to issue their own conflicting report. By a "free vote" — this was Lang's most incredible concession, and a measure of his desperation — parliament then will have to decide between the two reports.

By this tortuous procedure, the government has made certain that Canada's most divisive national issue in three decades will stay alive until late in 1977, and will then burst out in a parliamentary debate over technicialities that not a single MP will understand. It has made certain also that bilingualism in the air will be the centrepiece of the 1978 election.

The government's single benefit is that it has bought itself time. How this time gets used now becomes the issue.

There are some reasons, in a blessed relief, to be optimistic.

First, the government is reviewing its bilingualism policy — not the principle of the policy, that is, but its implemention. "We know that adjustments need to be made," says Treasury Board President Jean Chretien, "that some stupidities exist." Chretien is taking a hard took at the 60,000 bilingual positions in the civil service, three times the number originally forecast, and far more, it is widely recognized, than are needed.

Undecided yet is the government's response to language commissioner Keith Spicer's recommendation that funds be shifted from civil service training into second language education in the schools. However, the reason behind Ottawa's attempt to gain a say in university policy-making is precisely its recognition that bilingualism belongs in the classrooms of the nation.

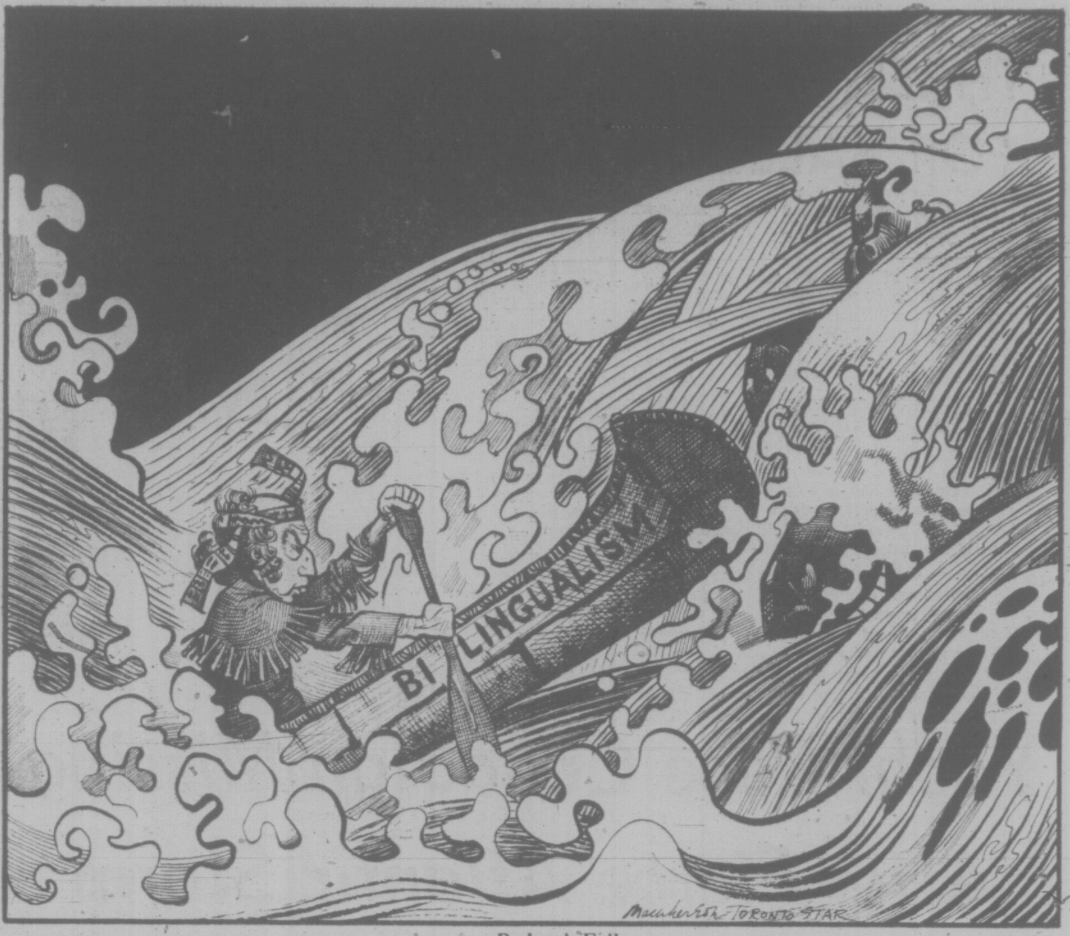
Second, plans are being laid for a bilingual blitz by ministers and MPs. "We'd forgotten we needed to sell bilingualism, its been around so long," says a Trudeau aide. "It's pretty shattering, mind you, to realize that after 10 years we have to start all over again, almost from the beginning."

Shattering perhaps, but essential. In recent years, bilingualism has been implemented, not so much arrogantly as absent-mindedly. Those who protested, whether unilingual civil servants or Vancouverites upset about the sudden appearance of a French television channel, were dismissed as bigots when often their complaint was only that they no longer knew what was going on, or why.

Amiable Majority

Will bilingualism reform and public relations work? If you listened to the CBC's Cross-Country Check-Up radio program last Sunday you'd believe they will. Asked their opinions about bilingualism, fewer than a half-dozen callers from Halifax to Yellowknife opposed the policy as such. The great majority grumbled about the way it is being applied, said that they didn't understand what was going on, or, most encouraging of all, were angry that their children weren't being taught proper French.

Taken for granted, as they have been, English-Canadians will snap and snarl, as they have done. These outbursts, as in the conscription crisis, aside, the fact remains that English Canadians have been an amiable majority for 109 years now which demonstrates, to rephrase Trudeau, a deep and underlying trust in Confederation.



Redneck Falls.

W. A. WILSON

Ottawa Was Humiliated

OTTAWA — Either from genuine worry over aviation safety or lack of sympathy for the pace of bilingualism, there will be many English-Canadians ready to applaud the airline pilots and the controllers for the tough line they took with the government.

Before anyone applauds too warmly, however, they would be wise to ponder the various reasons for viewing this settlement with great uneasiness. Essentially, the government has made very significant concessions, some humiliating to itself and damaging to its own authority, to bring two illegal strikes to an end.

The airline pilots have been able to dictate, not merely that parliament must approve any eventual conclusions by the three-man commission, but to dictate as well how the House of Commons is to proceed when it comes to deal with the issue. That smacks in the most unpleasant way of the approaches colonels often take in less stable countries to demonstrate their contempt for politicians.

To pacify the illegal strikers, the government has agreed that the commission will operate under a rule of unanimity, each member having the power of veto over any particular recommendation or over the general conclusions reached in the end.

Banana Republic?

If the government had, in the beginning, decided to form a three-man commission operating under a rule of unanimity and announced that even those findings would be subject to a free vote in parliament, the public might have been able to take it just as a demonstration of an administration's all-out concern with safety in the air. But since that is not how these extraordinary ground rules were developed that comfortable view is not reasonable.

A precedent has been set. Great concessions have been made to men whose campaign had an illegal foundation. The question to be asked now is which group in society will note the lessons the pilots have taught the country and follow their example, seeking to humiliate a government and to dictate the procedures of parliament. Once lessons of this sort have been taught, there is almost always someone to act on them.

It is to be hoped that most of the men who guide the affairs of the Canadian Labour Congress are too level-headed to follow the pilots' example, although that would not be true of all of them. But anyone rushing to applaud the pilots and controllers should speculate a little on what would happen if the CLC leaders did take a lesson from their book.

The CLC is involved in a determined fight against the government's anti-inflation policies, doing its utmost by argument and protest to get the government to reverse its position and abandon price and wage controls. There has been talk within the CLC of a general strike as one possible means of driving home to the government labor's intense opposition to the controls. The wiser heads in the CLC have kept the situation under control, letting this sort of talk serve as a safety valve and refusing to be swayed by it.

The CLC leaders will probably continue as they have been going, sticking to legitimate methods of persuasion. If they were to follow the pilots' example, however, many of those applauding today would immediately be howling in protest. And the demonstration is now there — illegal methods will win concessions from government in this country today. The best reason for not taking this sort of first step is simply because there is no way of knowing what the next one may be and the second step may be intensely unpalatable to the very people who applaud the first one.

JIM LIVINGSTON
.. controllers president

It is doubtful whether Ken Maley of the pilots trade union, or Jim Livingston of the air traffic controllers have contributed anything at all to aviation safety in Canada. If pilots and controllers really were the best judges of safety there would be no need for the large body of government rules and regulations through which safe procedures are established in all countries and directorates of civil aviation would be unnecessary. While their contribution to air safety may be minimal, these two men have, however, struck a blow of some seriousness at our political institutions.

The primary reason for concern over this settlement is its effect on the political system and the way in which it invites similar actions from others later on. There are two other reasons for uneasiness. One is the effect on opinion within French Canada. Many in the rest of the country would like to ignore this but the weight of numbers alone makes this impossible. The other reason is that the present government is, at this point, weak in terms of public acceptance—exceptionally so. That may delight its opponents but for the rest of the country it poses a problem.

We are in all probability two years away from an election. Those two years are going to be, so far as anyone can see now, problem-filled. The present assortment of problems is serious. An abnormally weak government—speaking not of its own will but of its acceptance by the nation—is not desirable at this mid-term point, whether one approves or disapproves the government per se.

Problem-filled Years

Already low in public esteem, the administration must surely have lost a little further ground through this affair. Maley, and Livingston set out to humiliate and succeeded. The government, however, played into their hands in the earlier stages of the dispute. Had it set up the present commission, with the extremely cautious approach inherent in the rule of unanimity, these trade unions would have found it far harder to defy both the law and the government. The delay in replacing John Keenan after his resignation contributed to the government's weakness because it created a vacuum which Mr. Livingston was a skilful enough tactician to move in and fill.

The effect on opinion in French Canada is bound to be serious. It may not be a great crisis among ordinary people in Quebec but it is bound to increase the skepticism with which they view English-Canada. In his latest report Keith Spicer, the official languages commissioner, commented that French-Canadian cynicism towards the policy of bilingualism is probably a greater danger to the nation than English backlash.

Little Reprimand

Tut, tut, a little reprimand, dear editor, if you please. In your June 26 Editor's Notebook, The Canadian Mirror: An Uneasy Reflection, a question or so and do let me go hang my head if I'm proven a hopelessly mixed-up dodderer.

For the life of me I at first failed to get the real impetus on reading your "to the point." So with strengthened curiosity, I hurriedly flipped over to page seven to discover a rather very interesting conglomeration of local persons' letters on Why We're Glad to Be Canadians.

As I understand it, the Times had specifically invited its readers to comment on why they were glad to be Canadians. Okay. But now it turned out you were disappointed with "bland perceptions" as revealed in letters, especially by the young students.

Holy mackerel, man, wasn't the question asked meant to be favorably orientated and not negatively critical as Canadian citizens? Or where did I go wrong in figuring this one out? Since I happened to respect you as one of my editor-heroes, I feel rather humble in pursuing this to an answerable conclusion.

Truthfully I thought page seven most attractively laid out in arrangement of the letters, contents of which embodied the theme in all honesty for the question asked. And so appropriately centred with quote from Sir John A. Macdonald.

The children's naivete was perhaps leavened with natural pride of one's country of birth or preferred adoption. What else?

Without being facetious may I offer a friendly suggestion? Perhaps another future Times invitation to readers under a caption, say such as, What I find Irritating In Canada As a Citizen, or, Gross Canadian Problems, As a Citizen, How I'd Like Trying to Solve Some. — M. Anderson, 640 Dallas Road.

Glazier Applauded

Recently in the Times I read an account of a Victoria city council meeting. Among other items, I read of Ald. Murray Glazier's rather obvious observation that developers should be informed that "blockbusting" was not the approved method for successfully rezoning an area. This statement was challenged by Ald. Bob Wright.

It is difficult to imagine any developer powerful enough, arrogant and astute enough to blatantly make a case for "block-busting" in a city council meeting. But it did happen!

It is of great importance that every neighborhood association throughout the city take note of this; that every citizen's group, every conservation, heritage and ecological group be aware that the going is very rough for our friends in public office. Recently Mr. Glazier had to resign from an important committee, and now a simple observation is immediately challenged.

Mr. Glazier and other public servants who speak truth to power deserve our ongoing support. — H. Hagbarth Sorensen, 1564 Gladstone Avenue.

'Sharing' a Continent: Canada Can't Afford It

U.S. Imports Must Be Cut Or Country Will Go Broke

By MEL HURTIG

(An article excerpted by The Globe and Mail from the June issue of International Perspectives, published by the Department of External Affairs.)

HURTIG . . . raps expediency

There are three serious problems for the future of Canadian-American relations; not the takeover of Saskatchewan potash, not the protracted demise of Time Canada, not the border television dispute, not the Foreign Investment Review Act, not the auto pact, not the projected Mackenzie Valley pipeline or increasing Canadian natural gas prices or decreasing oil exports. All of these are comparatively lesser problems, all are manifestations of the real difficulties. The real basic problems have been around for a very long time, but, for a number of reasons, only recently have they caused much friction between the United States and Canada. Things are likely to get worse before they get better. Unless there are some important changes they could get much worse. Here are the three serious problems:

'Unfortunate Ignorance'

- An unfortunate ignorance about Canada on the part of U.S. politicians, policy-makers, businessmen and the population in general, largely due to indifference, but also because of
- the failure of the Canadian government to understand, to respond adequately to and to interpret to non-Canadians the reasons for the changing mood in Canada, much of which stems from the dawning realization of
- the debilitating economic results, for Canada, of the kind of "continent-sharing" we have engaged in for the past quarter of a century.

Let me deal with the third item first. Canada simply cannot afford to continue the same type of economic relations with the United States as we have maintained during the past 25 years. During this period we have had a whopping deficit of some $30-billion in our balance of goods and services with the United States, and a deficit of over $6-billion in our merchandise trade. At the same time U.S. ownership and control of Canadian industry and natural resources has increased by tens of billions of dollars over and above American investment in Canada while the cost to Canada in interest payments, dividend payments and "service charges" has been more than double the total of foreign capital entering the country.

From 1950 to 1974 the total and short-term inflow into Canada, from all countries, was $20,341,000,000. During the same 25-year period, the cost of servicing foreign investment in Canada looked like this:

Interest payments	$ 7,011,000,000
Dividend-payments	17,383,000,000
"Service charges"	16,489,000,000
	$40,893,000,000

In 1975 the outflow reached a record $6-billion, and 1976 will be worse — minimum average outflow of $18-million every day of every week. The long-term effect on Canaidan current accounts has been disastrous. Canada has had a current account deficit for 22 of the last 25 years, for a total of about $21.5-billion. By the end of 1976 this figure will grow to at least $25-billion and likely more. (It is interesting to note here that some countries, in computing their current account deficits, add in the retained earnings of resident foreign coporations. Were Canada, as it should, to employ such a practice, a more accurate measurement of the extent of our disastrous economic relations with the United States would be available.)

While our total current account deficit for the past quarter century has been $21.5-billion, our deficit with the United States alone has been $24.7-billion. In other words, during the same period the sum of our trade in goods and services with the rest of the world has been a small surplus of just over $3-billion.

Rising Astronomically

For most of the last 25 years (1975 was a major exception) Canada has had good merchandise trade surpluses, but all the while our imports, overwhelmingly from the United States, have been rising astronomically. In 1975, our imports from the United States increased to a record $23.5-billion.

What is more important is the nature and destination of both our imports and exports. It is no secret that finished products have been coming into Canada at record rates in recent years. In 1970 our end products deficit was about $3-billion; last year it was a staggering $11-billion. Most of this deficit was with the United States and most of that involved trade between parents and subsidiaries obviously at other than arms-length. As our imports of manufactured goods have accelerated, we have tried to keep up by exporting. As it turns out, much of our exports have been in the form of badly needed non-renewable natural resources, including large quantities of our cheapest and most accessible oil and natural gas. As almost everyone knows by now, Canadian reserves of oil and gas are not exactly what the foreign-controlled petroleum industry told us they were a few years ago.

This year, and for many years into the future, not only will Canada have billions of dollars to pay every year to finance the burgeoning costs of foreign direct investment (about 80 per cent American), not only will Canadians have to pay many billions of dollars every year for our manufactured imports (about 85 per cent from the United States), but we will somehow have to finance a $2-billion 1976 oil deficit, and an increasing annual oil deficit that will surely cost us $35-billion, at least, during the next decade.

There is one small problem. We simply can't manage it. We can't bring these enormous costs into balance no matter how often we send Mr. Jamieson to Indonesia, the Prime Minister to Europe and Latin America, and Mr. Gillespie to Japan. Canada is clearly faced with deficits that could bankrupt the nation. Worse still, to finance our present deficits, we're being irresponsibly expedient by maintaining excessively high interest rates (instead of limiting the supply of money otherwise) so as to attract even more foreign capital and, with it more foreign control of the Canadian economy. To finance our huge deficits, principally caused by payments servicing the unique-in-the-world foreign ownership we already have, we invite in even more of the same.

Since the publication of the Gray Report, foreign ownership has grown by the greatest amount in any equivalent period in Canadian history. So much for the Foreign Investment Review Agency. Despite the quite silly comments about FIRA by former Ambassador William J. Porter, The Wall Street Journal, and, more recently, by Richard Vine, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state for European affairs (among others), U.S. ownership of Canada has grown by the greatest amount ever since the Foreign Investment Review Act was introduced in Parliament. Barron's, the U.S. financial weekly, put it rather nicely:

"It is difficult to imagine a legitimate business venture which would be impeded by the Foreign Investment Review Act . . . the only U.S. business which wouldn't be cordially welcomed to Canada is Murder Inc."

Foolish Comparisons

(In the "silly comments" class Porter joined many prominent Canadians when he referred to the supposedly heavy per capita Canadian investment in the United States (see also page 34 of the November-December issue of International Perspectives). The Stanford Research Institute, as part of their Long Range Planning Service, last year produced a private document entitled Foreign Direct Investment in the U.S. At the end of 1973 all foreign direct investment in the United States totalled only $17,751-million, of which $4,003-million came from Canada. But, only about $2.6-billion of this was really Canadian investment, the balance being mostly American capital re-invested back into the United States. Based on either GNP or population, were the United States to have as much foreign ownership as Canada (over $70-billion book value in 1975) foreign direct investment in the United States would have to be about $700-billion to be equivalent. Instead, in 1975 it was only about $20-billion, or less than 3 per cent of the equivalent amount! In turn the Canadian share of the 3 per cent was less than one quarter. Porter and others contribute nothing but obfuscation when they make such foolish comparisons.)

In 1974 Canada had an all-time record current account deficit of over $1.6-billion. In 1975 that record deficit increased by some 320 per cent to $5.1-billion. Nineteen seventy-six will be almost as bad. Conventional wisdom has it that we had such a bad year because of the down-turn in the world and U.S. economies. This is a bit hard to explain, though, when one considers that the value of our exports actually increased by 2 per cent. It is even harder to explain when one considers that in 1975, while Canada had its largest ever merchandise trade deficit, at the same time the U.S. was enjoying its largest ever trade surplus, over $11-billion.

Canada simply must curtail imports from the United States, and curtail them sharply. There is no other alternative. However, there is a bit of a problem. Over 60 per cent of the "Canadian" manufacturing industry, which would have to make up for at least some of the decreased imports, is foreign owned and controlled, mostly in the form of American branch plants, and most rely very heavily on parts and components they import from head office or their foreign affiliates. Is it any wonder then, that as American ownership of our manufacturing has grown, the "Canadian" manufacturing industry has become less competitive? During the past 10 years Canada's export deficit in manufactured goods has increased in every major category of finished products. For the decade of the Seventies our growth rate of national productivity will probably be lower than that of any other industrialized country in the world. Greece and Ireland apparently employ a smaller percentage of their work-forces in manufacturing, but no other "Western" nation does.

Canadians are by far the world's leading importers of manufactured goods, importing twice as much as the average European and four times as much as the average American. Good old Canada, relying as we do so heavily on the supposedly indispensable imported foreign technology, is now last in the world among "developed" nations in our net trading deficits in such categories as electronic components, machine tools, and plastics. (Surely only in Canada could such facts and the "Canadian" manufacturing industry's 22 per cent-behind-the United States productivity lag be ignored by a government-appointed organization such as the Economic Council of Canada.)

The Mood Is Changing

So, there it is, We must curtail imports from the United States, but it will be very difficult. We must cut back on future foreign direct investment, but instead we're doing precisely the opposite.

The mood in Canada has been and is changing. There is no major anti-Americanism here. And what is happening would hardly be thought of as nationalism in any other country. It is certainly not aggressive or chauvinistic or xenophobic or flag-waving or breast-beating super patriotism. Rather it is a maturing confidence combined with a realization that we have already sold off much more of our country that we should have, or could really afford to.

Much has been written in the past about sharing the continent. Many Canadians now believe it is we who have been doing the sharing and now is the time for some clear-cut friendly dividing instead.

The Million-Dollar Question: Is Everybody Happy?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

The Canada Council is making its first venture into the burgeoning field of mass psychoanalysis — and in a big way. The Council has awarded York University's institute for behavioral research a grant of nearly $1-million to find out whether Canadians are happy with the quality of their lives.

For five years, beginning next February, a team of five academics (including two sociologists, a political scientist, a psychologist and a geographer) will place the country on a couch in order to measure what psychologist Thomas Atkinson describes as "the extent to which people are satisfied with the state of their health, education, job opportunities, standard of living. We want to know how people perceive the quality of their services, goods and environment."

Having charted, if not quite domesticated, most of the great geographical frontiers, man is understandably turning his attention to more introspective pursuits. But we would have thought that the urge to probe the national consciousness would have reached the saturation point with the plethora of public opinion polls that already keeps Canadian door bells and telephones ringing non-stop.

Ah, but social scientists and statisticians are a voracious breed, only too anxious to tell us more about ourselves than most of us really want to know. And, since public attitudes have their obsolescence built in, the polls must continually be updated. Dr. Atkinson claims that the regular surveys which the York University team will be conducting will force people to rank their priorities in a way that most public opinion polls don't do. For example, the surveys will ask people to choose between a clean environment and their standard of living. That is, would you rather be rich and dirty or poor and clean? (Most would like to be rich and clean.)

Still, whether we like the $1-million price tag or not, we might as well lie back, close our eyes and enjoy the examination. Soon, the gently phrased questions the faint scribbling of pens will flutter from coast to coast: "Well, Doctor, it all began years ago, we loved our mothers, hated our fathers . . ."

And so, to an expensive sleep.

Played for a Sucker

As a baseball fan, I realize I am supposed to be dumb, and I try hard. Half the sports writers assume I am an idiot, the players hold me in contempt, those company finks who describe games on television assume I am too stupid to tell a real reporter from a swill, and the club owner — well, the club owners deserve a book on the subject of how to get rich by never underestimating the stupidity of the fans.

In Washington not long ago there was a club owner who regularly sold me cold hotdogs for 50 cents apiece. Did I throw the mustard pot at his limousine? Did I stop buying his frigid hotdogs? You bet your collection of World Series peanut shells I didn't. I knew that as a fan I was expected to be dumb enough not to make a scene.

In New York the club owners have just zapped the municipal treasury for $100 million and change to improve the Yankee Stadium. That's money the city could be using to increase the frequency of dog-dung removal from the sidewalk in front of my house, but I'm not kicking. I'm a fan. I am eager to rush up to the Bronx and lay out more cash to get into the stadium I'm paying the city to provide for the club owners.

If enough of us fans don't pay to get in, the club owners might move the team to Ashtabula. Then where would we be? And what is a fan's life without a home team to run up his taxes, sell him cold hotdogs and treat him like a prize ass?

So, as a fan I struggle to be as dumb as possible. There are limits, however, to what can be swallowed, and the hypocrisy of the whole baseball racket as displayed this past week puts a heavy burden on my powers to go on playing the sap.

For one thing, I am unable to shudder with dismay because Charles O. Finley sold three human beings he owned in Oakland to buyers in Boston and New York. My first reaction to the news that he had cleared a cool $3.5 million in the flesh market was a satisfied confirmation of my suspicion that Finley is the smartest operator in baseball.

Because of recent legal changes in the law governing club owners' ownership of people, Finley was about to lose the chance to market those three bodies for any price at all. By getting them sold before his title to them became void, he turned a total loss into a tidy sum of cash. Smart dealer, that Charlie O. Or so I thought.

It was the wrong thing for a fan to think. The next day's paper laid out the proper line in angry columns by sports writers and purple comment from other club owners and fans alike. Finley's sale was bad for baseball.

These are terrible words, the worst that tongue can utter among the faithful. I have never risen to them with true believer's zeal. It seems to me that almost everything that has happened in baseball lately, except last fall's World Series, has been disastrous for baseball. It is hard to get upset by something that is merely bad for baseball.

Nevertheless, the incantation had been uttered and, being a true fan, I put on my dunce cap and tried to follow the argument. It required mind-buckling labors at nincompoopery. First there was the uproar about its being disgraceful to sell players for cash, like so much baled cotton.

No fan with his half-a-brain could accept this. The great Babe Ruth himself was sold for a mere sheaf of bucks, by the Boston Red Sox to the Yankees. Did these whiners mean that the Babe's going to the Bronx and building the House that Ruth Built was bad for baseball? Connie Mack had trafficked widely in bodies almost as glorious, and was in the Hall of Fame. The Hall of Fame was bad for baseball?

Well, there was the complaint that rich teams which could afford to buy would end up owning all the talent and make it impossible for other teams ever to win championships. This was an unpersuasive argument for a fan who had paid 50 cents per stomach spasm to eat cold hotdogs in the realm of the Washington Senators, who hadn't won a championship since the bank holiday.

In some towns, the best the fans could hope for was a perpetual loser because, if your team started winning, the club owner promptly moved it to another town. Calvin Griffith did this with the Senators and Walter O'Malley with the old Brooklyn Dodgers. As a fan, you are resigned to the truth that money brings perpetual winners to some towns and that occasional winners in other towns means you will shortly see your team moved across the continent.

Finally, fans were asked to believe that sordid cash transactions would leave them cynical and embittered, that we would now look upon baseball as a crass commercial operation instead of the national pastime. I choked laughing on this one. Players are abandoning the home team franchise from town to town like carnivals in search of unjaded suckers, and they are afraid we might get the impression that somebody in baseball is interested in money.

This is the ultimate insult to the fan's intelligence. I am willing to work hard at being dumb enough to suit this gang of sharpsters, so long as they play the game occasionally between multimillion-dollar heists, but, even as a fan, I can't be stupid enough to weep at the discovery that they aren't the kind of folks who would rather be running a church supper.

New York

AT NEW YORK the stock market rebounded from Thursday's decline with a moderate rally Friday. Trading was fairly quiet on the eve of the extended Independence Day weekend.

Brokers said investors were pleased with the drop in the money supply reported by the federal reserve board late Thursday, reading it as a favorable omen for the interest rate outlook.

The U.S. government reported Friday morning that the unemployment rate had turned upward in June to 7.5 per cent.

But Ron Nessen, the White House press secretary, maintained that increase was "apparently largely, if not wholly, the result of faulty seasonal adjustment factors." And he said administration economists still foresee a rate below seven per cent by year-end.

Anaconda accounted for a big chunk of the Dow's gain, climbing three points to $29 on word of merger plans between the company and Atlantic Richfield. Arco shares lost 1⅛ to $102¾.

Skelly Oil jumped 5 to $86½. Business Week magazine said some investors have been buying the stock gambling that Getty Oil may seek to acquire the Skelly shares it doesn't already own.

Montreal

AT MONTREAL prices were slightly lower in light trading.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. was 156,200 shares compared with 262,600 traded up to the same time Wednesday.

London

At London prices were fractionally higher. The Financial Times index gained 3.0 to 389.5 in light trading. Industrial and banking stocks were firm with mining issues higher following the rise in the gold bullion price. Canadian stocks eased.

Block Brothers

Net earnings of Block Bros. Industries Ltd. were $1,278,000 in the quarter ended April 30, down from $1,363,000 in the same period last year despite an increase in gross income of 18 per cent to $25.5 million. An interim report to shareholders shows that earnings per share in the latest period were 22 cents based on an average of 5,924,000 shares outstanding versus 21 cents on 6,342,000 shares outstanding in the same period last year. Block has bought 539,752 of its shares on the market during the 12-month period under a share repurchase program. A comparison shows that the latest quarter has the lowest net earnings in the last five, although per share earnings have remained fairly stable because of the reduced number of shares outstanding.

Upward Market Move Forecast by Firm

The Canadian Press

The stock market, despite the inertia of the last few months, appears to be on the verge of an upward move, says Canadian Business Service, a division of Marpep Investment Reports, in a recent newsletter.

The Toronto-based investment service says the rate of eocnomic recovery has begun to slow.

"Capital spending, a steady source of buoyancy during past slowdowns, has begun to falter as well-potential spenders are making do with what they have until the uncertainties go away or are at least clarified."

But the long-term outlook remains optimistic.

"One reason for our optimism is the possibility of a decline in interest rates. The recent strength of the bond market, particularly for new issues, seems to be forecasting cheaper money."

The stronger Canadian dollar, "which must be restrained if Ottawa is to whittle away at the massive trade deficit we recorded last year," is another hopeful sign.

However, "not all stock groups will benefit equally from the rise in the market," it says.

"Banks have lived up to the lacklustre 1976 expectations we held for them at the start of the year. We still feel that they should be held but that there is no need to be in a hurry to add to holdings in this group."

Merchandising stocks also are not attractive for the intermediate term as a result of slower growth in consumer spending and in available new store space.

But these are balanced by oil and metal stocks that have much improved outlooks at present, although we still feel that investors should be choosy in both areas" and gold stocks also have become more appealing.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseeds and rye were sharply higher at the close of moderate trading today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Flax and Vancouver rapeseed were about 20 cents higher, and in the recently untraded thunder bay rapeseed advances were 30 cents in some futures.

The feed grains advances were confined to three or four cents.

Wednesday's trading volumes were 26,000 bushels of feed wheat, 827,000 of oats, 1,495,000 of barley, 398-000 of rye, 659,000 of flax and 186,000 of rapeseed.

mixed tone. Corn was up eight cents, but the final figure was about halved. Oats touched the limit of six cents then back heavily. Limit gains also were posted in soybean meal and oil early, but meal closed $7 higher and oil was up about 75 points, or ¾ cent a pound. Iced broilers were mixed under fairly moderate trade.

The government confirmed a Russian export purchase and said more exports would be forthcoming from European countries. The trade bought futures on that basis as well as on reports of a continued drought over much of Europe and failure of farmers in this country to market more of their grain. Farmers apparently are waiting out still higher prices.

Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures again closed with a limit gain of 20 cents a bushel on the Board of Trade Friday, but other form commodity futures that had posted limit gains fell under profit-taking.

The liquidation in the closing minutes was heavy. Soybeans had opened with a limit gain of 20 cents and maintained that level into the final bell. There were purchase orders for 15 million bushels at one time, but there were no sellers.

Wheat futures had been up from 15 cents, but closed on a

Mortgage Rates Beginning to Ease Off

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Public resistance to 12 per cent mortgages has brought the rate down to 11.75 per cent at Toronto-Dominion Bank and a further small reduction is possible, Victoria main branch manager Philip Pepin said today.

If the housing market remains weak, the interest rate could fall as low as 11.25 per cent over the next six months, he said.

"The market for houses is very soft and the main reason could be the high interest rate," he said.

"We are reducing the rate in hopes that will stimulate the real estate industry, particularly the sale of new homes."

Pepin said the low demand for mortgages had produced a surplus of funds available for lending.

Canada Trust also announced it was reducing its mortgage interest rate to 11.75 per cent from 12 per cent. These are all for five-year-term mortgages. Canada Trust reduced its two and three-year-term mortgages to 11.5 per cent from 11.75 per cent and its one-year-term mortgages to 11.25 per cent from 11.5 per cent.

Pepin said the Toronto-Dominion bank did not expect any large or dramatic drop in the mortgage interest rate.

"Personally I would like to see it fall by one full percentage point but it won't happen. One problem is we would have to reduce the amount we pay for deposits and that would create a problem for investors who rely upon interest for income."

He said the drop to 11.75 per cent may be enough to stimulate housing sales. But if the market remains soft a further small drop could come during the next two to six months.

"This does not mean people should sit back and wait for a further decline in the interest rate. To begin with, it might not come. Secondly, the cost of land and housing goes up month by month so what they might save in interest they lose in the price of the property."

In Vancouver, R. J. Kayser, B.C. chairman for the Canadian Bankers Association, said the mortgage market remains fairly stable despite the drop in interest rates by some financial houses.

Kayser said action by the Bank of Canada in forcing the prime bank rate to 10.25 per cent would keep mortgage interest rates from falling much below their present levels.

He predicted interest rates would remain "remarkably steady" over the next 18 months.

Kayser, manager of the main B.C. branch of the Bank of Montreal, said his company had no immediate plan to drop its mortgage interest rate below 12 per cent but this was subject to day-by-day study.

Any dramatic drop in the interest rate would have to be preceded by some signal from the Bank of Canada that interest rates should come down, he said.

The Bank of Canada has been holding interest rates high to help curb the demand for loans and thereby to keep inflation in check.

business

Maclean Hunter

Maclean Hunter Ltd., Toronto, showed a slightly-increased profit in the first five months of its current fiscal year, Donald Campbell, company president, told the firm's annual meeting that a profit of 30.5 cents a share in the five months ended may 31 was achieved, compared with 29.1 cents a year earlier. For the first five months, the company's Canadian publishing operation, which includes business publications, consumer magazines and the financial post sold 10,325 pages of advertising, compared with 10,209 in the corresponding period last year. Campbell said the company is ahead of budget, although profit from April and May was off six per cent from year-earlier levels, reducing the strong first-quarter profit.

Western B'casting

Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd. reports consolidated net earnings before extraordinary items of $3.3 million or 88 cents a share in the nine months ended May 31, 1976, compared with $2.1 million or 55 cents a share for the same period in 1975. Extraordinary income of $4 million in the latest period mainly represented profit on the sale of the company's interest in Harlequin Enterprises Ltd. Last year's extraordinary item was $675,000, primarily from sale of an investment in a cable television company. Total net earnings for the two periods were $7.3 million or $1.98 a share in 1976, and $2.8 million or 73 cents a share last year. Total net revenues from broadcasting and hockey amounted to $5.4 million in the latest nine months, up from $3.9 million a year earlier. Western has a 68.5 per cent interest in Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd., which owns Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League.

Rengold

Price Waterhouse Ltd. of Toronto, which has been operating Rengold Mines Ltd. of Toronto as a receiver for the Royal Bank of Canada since last March, says a Rengold subsidiary has received a payment of $582,555 from the Ugandan government. Last July, Rengold purchased a 72.8-per-cent interest in Kilembe Copper Cobalt Ltd. from Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. of Toronto. A year earlier, the Ugandan government had purchased Kilembe Mines, a copper mining company in Uganda, for $2.4 million, with payments spread over a period ending in March, 1978.

Brown Attended Meeting But Didn't Vote—McCarthy

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy admitted Tuesday that David Brown, communications-consultant to the government, attended discussions leading to a $100,000 publicity campaign contract to his old firm of Baker, Lovick, Vancouver.

But, she told the Legislature, he didn't have a vote when the award was made.

Brown joined the government as a special consultant shortly after the Dec. 11 provincial election to prepare a report on communication needs between the government, the press and the public.

His first appointment was for three months at $150 a day. Two extensions have been granted, the latest just a few days ago.

Before taking his consulting job, Brown worked with William Bennett on the election campaign as an independent public relations man. Before starting his own business two years ago Brown was an employee of Baker, Lovick.

Mrs. McCarthy said the final decision on which firm got the $100,000 contract to try to lure more tourists to Vancouver Island was made by a three-man committee comprised of a civil servant from her department, one from the department of travel, and Ted Balderson, manager of the Empress hotel.

SLADE GROUP PLAYING HERE

The British rock group, Slade, is touring B.C. this month and will appear at the Oak Bay Recreation Centre Saturday.

Slade soared to the top of the British charts in 1971 with a single, Coz I Luv You and was followed by a whole succession of hits. Their latest album entitled Nobody's Fool is receiving critical approval including a comment from Billboard that finds Slade lively as ever but with improved maturity in singing and musicianship.

Gaffney Harassed —Gibson

Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson said Wednesday that the Social Credit government is harassing Mason Gaffney, the consultant brought to British Columbia by the former New Democratic Party administration.

Gibson said Gaffney has been fired from his position on a three-member property tax advisory commission because the government has said it will not pay for his services.

Gibson said the other members are being paid the $150-a-day honorariums.

He said that by firing Gaffney, the government is "trying to pour some more ashes over Gaffney's head after yanking his institute out from under him."

Gaffney came to B.C. in July, 1973, to set up the government-funded Economic Policy Analysis Institute, popularly referred to as the Think Tank.

The present government has announced the institute will be phased out this year.

Gov't Trying To Sell B.C. Cel?

NDP MLA Graham Lea says that B.C. Cellulose president Ray Williston is looking for a buyer for the Crown corporation.

Lea (Prince Rupert) asked Mines Minister Tom Waterland Wednesday to confirm reports that Williston's first duty since taking over the presidency is to sell the corporation, which owns 81 per cent of Canadian Cellulose.

Waterland said he doesn't know of any move that has been made to sell the company since the new president has taken over. The board of directors, he said, has not met in the last three months.

Waterland added the provincial government has said in the past it doesn't want to continue as owner of the corporation.

Malaspina Able to Keep Gymnasium

NANAIMO — Malaspina College will be able to keep its gymnasium.

Highways department chief engineer Jim Dennison told city council this week the department no longer has plans to route its bypass highway through the college's grounds.

Plans now show the proposed bypass west of Westwood Lake.

There were reports earlier that the highway could not be located west of the lake because of severe environmental damage there.

However, it would appear that the problems have been solved and that if and when a bypass is built, it will go west of the lake, around the base of Mount Benson.

The highways department said earlier that a bypass would not be built here for at least 10 years.

Ferry Fare Cuts Urged

The Qualicum Beach Chamber of Commerce and Motel, Resort and Trailer Park Associations have requested a roll-back on B.C. Fessies fares to boost tourist traffic.

Representatives of 27 businesses and the accociations told NDP MLA Bob Skelly (Alberni) business has dropped 50 per cent and decrease is directly attributed to fare increases.

The group has sent telegrams to Transport Minister Jack Davis and Tourism Minister Grace McCarthy.

Chopper Project In Jeopardy

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Litton Industries, which has been pressing more than $500 million in claims against the United States navy, says work on a $1-billion helicopter assault ship program will stop Aug. 1 unless the government picks up all further costs.

"The key issue in this situation is not a question of profit to the contractor, but the question of how far the navy can go in forcing on the contractor and its 150,000 stockholders the burden of ship construction financing," said Litton President Fred O'Green

O'Green's complaint came in a letter to Vice-Admiral Robert Gooding, commander of the Naval Sea Systems Command.

It accompanied formal notice Tuesday of the firm's plans to halt work on the program at Litton's Ingalls Shipbuilding Division in Pascagoula, Miss.

Litton officials said the navy has already forced the company to finance at least $100 million of the five-ship program. Continuation of the program would require Litton to finance at least $400 million more, company officials said.

Litton said the ships were contracted for under a total-package procurement concept that the defence department abandoned in 1970.

Loan for S. Africa Turned Down

WASHINGTON (WP) — In a surprising move that may have considerable political repercussions, the U.S. Export-Import Bank has rejected an American application to construct a coal gasification plant in South Africa.

The bank's action, which became known his week, involves refusal of $450 million in guarantees to the Fluor Corporation of Los Angeles to build the plant in the Eastern Transvaal.

Earlier this year an application for a $225 million loan for the same project was rejected in line with the Export-Import Bank's 12-year policy of refusing direct financial aid for South African projects.

Since the bank has had no tradition of opposition to guaranteeing finance for South African industrial projects of benefit to the United States, the Fluor Corporation decided last spring to apply for the entire sum of $450 million to be guaranteed by the bank.

It was expected that the bank would approve the guarantee.

It has been learned that the bank has refused the application, though it will not say precisely why.

It is know that the bank's president and chairman, Stephen Dubrul, was due to meet senators familar with Arican affairs on June 16 to discuss the impending guarantee, but cancelled his meeting instead and saw President Ford at the White Hosse to discuss matters that have not been made public.

The decision by the bank came the next day.

Congressional feeling about the original loan application was generally hostile, largely because of the Angolan affair. Observers here thought that opposition to the guarantee application had softened somewhat over the year except, as someone from a pro-black Africa lobbying group said here "along came Someto and the Vorster-Kissinger meeting."

A spokesman for the Fluor Corporation in Los Angeles said that proposals for constructing the plant were announced in March 1975.

The clients, the South African Coal Oil and Gas Corporation, had estimated the cost of the factory at "over $1 billion."

Fluor said they thought that "if the Ex-Im bank has turned them down they'll have to go elsewhere for their finance."

A spokesman in Washington said that he learned the news without much surprise.

This was, he said, "a political year, after all."

Selassie Smothered —Grandson

ROME (Reuter) — The grandson of the late Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia says his grandfather was murdered by being smothered with cushions.

Prince David Makkonen, in interviews with the Italian news agencies ANSA and Agenzia Italia, said the murder took place last Aug. 27.

A group of officers arrived at the hut where the emperor was imprisoned, and sent his retinue away. He was never seen alive again, the prince was quoted as saying.

The Ethiopian government announced that the emperor had died of natural causes, but Prince Makkonen said their refusal to allow an autopsy was suspicious.

"The emperor was suffocated and his body, according to witnesses, was cremated," the 24-year-old prince said.

Regina Police Back After Rowdy Night

REGINA (CP) — Policemen returned to duty at about 8 p.m. EDT Thursday, ending a 19-hour strike and removing fears that this city of 150,000 would be subjected to a night of unchecked lawlessness.

A rash of theft, vandalism and youthful rowdiness broke out after police walked off their jobs about 1 a.m. Thursday, but the suddenness of the strike and its early-morning start seemed to limit the amount of crime.

There were no reports of significant violence during the strike.

However, more serious trouble was thought inevitable had the strike continued Thursday night.

Several groups were said to be preparing trouble, including some members of an out-of-province motorcycle gang who came to the city after hearing of the strike.

Instead, the city spent a peaceful day, with thousands attending Dominion Day events in sunny weather at Wascana Park where the small force of park police remained on duty.

About 3,000 young people listened peacefully to one open-air rock concert, a contrast to the scores of young car racers who took over the main north-south thoroughfare of Albert Street the night before.

During the first 12 hours of the strike, 41 break-ins were reported, includiing theft of $60,000 in cash and cheques from a supermarket safe and removal of fur coats from a fur store.

Despite the limited availability of policemen, three teenagers were caught filling a truck with goods from an auto supply store and were arrested.

Fifteen riot-equipped policemen also dispersed a mob of 200 youths that rampaged through a restaurant, causing more than $30,000 damage.

The 238 members of the policemen's association were available to respond to serious incidents, but refused to patrol the city or to handle cases involving only property damage or routine offences.

"City officials gave conflicting accounts of the contract settlement, which is to be voted upon by the association within 48 hours.

Mayor Henry Baker said the settlement involves a total increase of 16 per cent in pay, about halfway between the 14.5 and 18.5 percentages being proposed the previous day by the two sides.

But Ald. Wally Coates, a member of the poice commission, disagreed. He also said no details will be officially released until after ratification.

Earlier, the commission distributed statistics saying the $15,804 salary of a first-class constable with four years experience will increase to $17,388 retroactive to Jan. 1 under their 14.5-per-cent proposal. An RCMP constable with four years experience receives $16,200.

Union spokesmen said a key issue in the dispute was their feeling that the police commission would not bargain in good faith and would only make agreements conditional on city council approval. Ald. Coates, however, termed that a formality.

The strike was the first by Regina police and the third work stoppage this year by Canadian police. The others involved police in Fredericton and Sydney, N.S.

Canada Salutes Holiday

Canadian Press

Prime Minister Trudeau, who presented citizenship certificates to 48 New Canadians at a ceremony on Parliament Hill on Thursday, was among persons who participated in Dominion Day activities across the country.

In a brief speech, the prime minister praised multiculturalism and later mingled with tourists for 10 minutes, chatting and signing autographs.

In Montreal, a 21-gun salute was fired in honor of Dominion Day at the Olympic Park.

The Ontario government cancelled its birthday celebration, which included hot dogs and root beer selling for five cents each and a multi-cultural show, because of morning rain.

The 23,000 hot dogs were sent to welfare agencies.

Elsewhere in Toronto, about 8,500 persons visited the Metropolitan Toronto Zoo on the opening day of its 410-acre Canadian animal domain, which featured wolves, mule deer, plains bison, otters, redailed hawks and blue herrons.

A spokesman for the CN Tower said between 6,000 and 7,000 persons took the ride up the tower, the tallest free-standing structure in the world, which opened June 26.

Official ceremonies were held at the legislative buildings in Winnipeg with the Winnipeg symphony Orchestra performing after the ceremonies. The Inter-Lake Festival of the Arts started Thursday at Winnipeg Beach, 60 miles north of Winnipeg. The festival includes live theatre, an art gallery, concerts, workshops and a cabaret.

Workers Out In Thompson

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — About 120 city employees, members of the United Steelworkers of America, took strike action at noon Thursday to back wage demands.

The employees, members of two different locals of the same union, voted unanimously in favor of striking Wednesday night.

Local 7911, representing 87 maintenance, garbage, recreation and other public employees, has rejected a city offer increasing the average wage to $6.74 an hour from $5.95 an hour in the first year of a three-year contract.

The city's offer would boost wages to $7.21 an hour july 1, 1977 and to $7.56 an hour the same date in 1977. The union is demanding $7 an hour in the first year of a three-year pact, $7.30 in the second and $7.65 in the third.

Local 8226, representing 34 office, clerical and technical staff, are close to reaching an agreement with the city on a salary agreement, local vice-president Gary McMillan said.

He said job classifications are the main issue blocking a settlement. Ten of the employees would have new clasifications under the city's three-year contract offer, with some of the workers graded downward, he said.

Before the strike deadline was reached, the board of directors of Nickel Days announced that the event has been cancelled. The board made the decision after a direct appeal to Local 7911 president Keith Redman and a submission to Wednesday night's union meetings.

The three-day event was to have started July 9.

Bogus Bills Found

OTTAWA (CP) — Police Thursday in connection with a Thursday inconnection with a major counterfeiting operation they say might be spreading millions of dollars of bogus $100 United States bills throughout Canada.

"We think it's a pretty far-flung operation," said an Ottawa police detective.

Arrested and charged with uttering the counterfeit money were: Terrance Kelly, 41, of Aylmer, Que., and Paul Lauzon, 24, and Andred Piche, 23, both of Ottawa.

About $4,200 in bad bills was recovered, but the detective said police believe large amounts still are circulating in Ottawa. He advised businesses not to touch any U.S $100 bills. The serial numbers on the bills are all different.

The arrests culminated a long investivation by Ottawa and Ontario Provincial Police and the RCMP. The detective said the investigations would continue.

He added that it is believed the operation is aimed at the Montreal Olympics, where large amounts of American money are expected to be spent.

Sask. Still Deals Despite Charges

REGINA, Sask. (UPI) — Saskatchewan Premier Alan Blakeney said Wednesday the conspiracy indictment handed down in Chicago against eight potash companies would have no effect on the province's negotiations for the purchase of some of the properties involved.

Blakeney said the companies' troubles with the United States anti-trust laws were their own problems and had nothing to do with Saskatchewan.

Bay of Fundy Beach Smeared From Oil Spill

DIPPER HARBOUR, N.B. (CP) — A 1,000-foot private beach in this Bay of Funday community was the area hardest hit by oil washed up on shore from a spill Tuesday at Saint John, N.B., 20 miles northeast of here.

Thick brown oil collected on the beach, and crews from Irving Oil Co. Ltd. arrived with rakes, a tractor and dump trucks late Thursday morning to scoop up gravel and seaweed.

The oil, rock and seaweed was to be unloaded at a provincial dump about eight miles away.

Rocky shores elsewhere here along the two-mile harbor edge were hit with less oil during high tide late Wednesday and no clean up operations had started except on the beach.

About 2,000 gallons of light Arabian crude oil spilled from the Liberian tanker J. R. Gray on Tuesday during unloading at Canaport in Saint John.

G. B. Lawson, co-ordinating clean-up activity for the Irving company, said Thursday the main body of the slick has moved closer to Black's Harbour about 20 miles west of here where it remains offshore.

He said the light oil would be much easier to clean up than a heavy oil, such as bunker. The light oil would break down into light petroleum products which would evaporate naturally, he said, and heavier components, which would collect in blobs, could be picked up.

An Irving tug had been sent to the main body of the spill off Black's Harbour to continue to apply dispersants which would speed up the breakdown of the slick.

Mixed-Up Buffalo Likes People

ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Brutus is a good-natured, 500-pound yearling buffalo who prefers the company of people to buffalo and thinks his mother is a 27-year-old service station owner who feeds him milk from quart cartons.

Dennis Debler, Brutus's owner and substitute mother, says Brutus broke out of his barn pen several times this spring and trotted down the road to the nearest farmhouse.

"He doesn't like to be petted or touched by people but he enjoys their company," Debler said." That's why he heads for the nearest farmhouse."

"He is quite content when I'm with him. But when I try to leave, its just like taking his mother away."

Three years ago, Debler started raising a buffalo herd on a farm in this community about 25 miles northeast of Kingston. He later sold the farm and kept part of the herd on a friends farm.

Eventually, he bought a service station on a highway and about a year ago, began selling and slaughtering the remainder of his herd.

Brutus was the last calf born of the original herd. He was taken from his mother about two hours after birth and was fed from a bottle.

A full-grown buffalo will reach 1,700 pounds but Debler said he is confident Brutus will never intentionally harm anyone.

Last year, Brutus was kept roped to a stake in the grass beside the service station with signs encouraging motorists to drop in and see the baby buffalo. Debler also sells buffalo burgers and buffalo steak.

Debler says he is considering selling the service station and returning to buffalo ranching.

He now sells the buffalo steak at $4.75 a pound and $4 a pound for ground burger.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Tornadoes were reported in record numbers across the United States the first six months of 1976, the National Severe Storms Forecast Centre said Thursday. The centre said 773 tornadoes have been reported through June of this year, compared with the previous record of 707 in 1973 and the 26-year average of 440 for the first half of the year.

FOOD SWEEPS PLAN

It'll be called the B.C. Foodstakes and winners won't collect cash — but quantities of B.C. produced food.

The food sweepstakes — a plan to promote provincial food products — was announced by Agricultural Minister Don Phillips.

Although final details have yet to be worked out, to qualify, consumers will have to send in labels from a B.C. food item to a central location.

"The name of the game is buying, selling and marketing," Phillips said Wednesday in announcing the promotional campaign.

"It should concern all of us that our locally-produced foodstuffs be of top quality and quantity."

The minister's announcement came as Victoria Socred MLA Sam Bawlf suggested the government could improve food price competition by setting up a year-round food marketplace at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

Bawlf said the PNE would be an ideal location since it has ample parking and suitable buildings.

He said the idea has been put to Phillips and the minister is considering it.

Social Credit Weathers First Stormy Session

By BRUCE OBEE
Canadian Press

British Columbia's new Social Credit government has weathered its first legislative session but wounds from the political battles of last December's general election campaign have not all healed.

The session, which began March 17, adjourned Wednesday after 69 sitting days, leaving British Columbians with 58 new laws, some fulfilling campaign promises and others breaking them.

The Social Credit party based its election campaign on the financial status of B.C., claiming the NDP had thrown the province into economic ruin and promising to conduct the business of B.C. in a fiscally responsible manner.

The party's landslide victory was proof that the strategy worked. Standings in the legislature now are Social Credit, 35; NDP, 18; Liberal, 1, and Conservative, 1.

Both the NDP opposition and the government displayed obvious difficulty, at times, in adjusting to their new roles at the outset of the session.

While the NDP remained bitter over its devastating defeat, the Social Credit members, with their constant condemnation of the NDP's inability to manage the finances of the province, appeared unaware they'd formed a new government.

The animosity which set the tone of the session began on opening day when the NDP was joined by Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson and Conservative Leader Scott Wallace in opposing the election of Speaker Ed. Smith.

It was the first time since the Second World War that the Speaker in B.C. was not unanimously elected by the legislature.

Despite the opposition's insistence that B.C.'s economy was in fine shape, the government went ahead with its financial plans, seizing every opportunity to attack the NDP's fiscal policies.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe brought down a $3.6 billion budget on March 26 along with legislation to increase provincial sales tax to seven per cent from five and to boost personal income taxes to 32.5 per cent of the federal tax from 30.5 per cent.

Budget day also saw the introduction of bills to increase daily fees for hospital care, liquor prices, cigarette tax and Medicare payments.

Three days before the budget came down, Wolfe introduced the B.C. Deficit Repayment Act, allowing the government to borrow up to $400 million to pay a deficit which Social Credit members say was left by the NDP.

In its eagerness to put more money into the provincial coffers with the hopes of balancing the books at the end of the year, the government also increased Autoplan premiums for B.C. drivers by an average of 140 per cent over last year and doubled almost all B.C. ferry fares.

Although the government vowed not to raise taxes during the election campaign, Premier Bill Bennett said after the cabinet was sworn in Dec. 22 he didn't realize the province was in such a poor economic state.

To avoid future economic problems in B.C., the government passed an auditor-general act to appoint an independent person to keep tabs on government spending and provide regular reports to the legislature.

Much of the government's activity in the financial area was expected, but its attitude toward labor and the free collective bargaining system came as a surprise to both the opposition and the B.C. labor movement.

During the session, the government legislated an end to two labor-management disputes and introduced a bill which would have banned strikes or lockouts on the B.C. Railway for four years.

The Railway Operation Continuation Act, however, raised the ire of the B.C. Federation of Labor and unions on the BCR whose members declared an all-out war on the government.

Rather than march into battle with the federation and BCR union leaders, Labor Minister Allan Williams abandoned the bill after first reading and replaced it with the Railway and Ferries Bargaining Assistance Act.

The new act was a modified version of the original bill but it eliminated the four-year ban on strikes or lockouts and ended a dispute between the United Transportation Union and the BCR.

The government also ordered an end to a dispute between the Hospital Employees Union and B.C. hospitals which reduced activities at six hospitals to essential services.

The situation at the hospitals prompted the government to introduce amendments to the B.C. Labor Code providing more power for the cabinet to impose cooling-off periods for disputes which are considered a serious threat to life or health.

As expected the new government repealed the NDP's controversial Mineral Royalties Act and established an entirely new taxation system for the province's mining industry.

The NDP, angered over the repealing of their legislation which many blamed as the cause for reduced mining in B.C., launched a lengthy attack on Mines Minister Tom Waterland and called for his resignation.

The session began without NDP Leader Dave Barrett who was defeated in Coquitlam when his government was toppled Dec. 11.

After winning a June 3 by-election in Vancouver East, Barrett returned to the legislature June 14, instilling new life in his party.

With eight bills unpassed at Wednesday's adjournment, it appears the government will be forced to sit again in the fall.

The first spring session of the NDP, in power from August, 1972, to December, 1975, lasted 12 weeks setting a record for B.C. During that session 94 new laws were passed.

Great Ripoff Caper Ends

HOUSTON (UPI) — Kenneth Parsley ripped off insurance companies for a living by stumbling and crashing his way through $40,000 worth of false claims in four years.

Parsley, 26, insists none of the claims — ranging from falls in stores which he had never entered, to a malpractice settlement from a gynecologist—were authentic.

The lucrative falsehoods ended this week with a three-year prison sentence and a promise by Parsley to help insurance companies stop such frauds when he gets out.

"It got to be a game, kind of like Monopoly with a free pass from jail," Parsley said.

"After a while, you thought you knew more about the insurance business than most agents."

Parsley said he used a variety of schemes.

His first was a bogus fall on a woman's lawn while he was working as a bill collector.

"That workman's compensation is something else," Parsley said, "The state even pushes for you to get paid. I was wowed by the quick payment."

From there, Parsley moved to the entire gambit of insurance payoffs. A call to a pharmacy led to a prescription for a drug which caused an allergic reaction.

Parsley showed up vomiting at an emergency ward and the name of the doctor on the pill container was that of a gynecologist who "couldn't understand how I got the pills, but he paid off quick."

Parsley's standby was the slip-and-fall.

He collected four times from one shopping centre he had visited only once. He successfully told store managers that he slipped on broken egg yokes, spoons, rain water and ice cream.

Another specialty was sideswiping trucks on the freeway.

"My car was battered from every angle, and each time they paid up for all the damage," he said. "That old car was worth as much to me as a Rolls-Royce."

Other ruses included collecting bad debts on himself and splitting the money with harried bankers and telling managers of luxurious hotels his room had been robbed.

Parsley admits he had a little help.

"Some of the doctors were a great help," he said. "I would come in for a check. Before they were through writing reports, it would like I had been run over by a Greyhound bus."

FURTHER N.Y. LOAN PLEDGED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government will loan another $500 million to New York City to avert default by the city this week, Treasury Secretary William Simon announced Thursday.

"The city has made considerable progress toward the objective of fiscal and financial reform" and has repaid some $280 million borrowed during the past fiscal year, Simon said.

Without the new funds — first installment of $2.3 billion in federal credit for New York during the coming fiscal year — the city would have been unable to meet payroll and other obligations due this week.

"New York City's actions during fiscal year 1976 were in substantial compliance with the proposals made to us last fall," Simon said in announcing the loan.

"Substantial reductions in expenditures have been implemented, program cuts have been made, and significant improvement in management, financial controls and accounting and reporting systems is evident.

All of these accomplishments are reflected in the fact that New York City repaid in full all federal loans extended in fiscal year 1976."

He said the city's financial plan is basically sound, but warned that "it is clear that much more in the way of fundamental reform must be accomplished if New York is to restore its fiscal and financial integrity.

Viking Site Chosen

PASADENA, Calif. (WP) — Space Agency scientists decided Thursday to land the Viking spacecraft July 17 in a cratered plain of Mars that they feel offers the safest spot for landing on the red planet.

The new landing site is the Plains of Chryse so-called because they lie about 200 miles northwest of the Valley of Chryse and an area two miles below what might be called "sea level" on Mars.

The plains were chosen because they are clearly smoother than the "valley," which turned out to be a network of dried-out mountain rivers too steeply sloped and too rough for a spacecraft landing.

"It was apparent that our understanding os the Chryse Valley site was not precise," project manager James Martin acknowledged in explaining the 13-day landing delay and change of site.

"When we got here and looked at the valley, we began to see features and processes we didn't expect and didn't understand," he said.

A mosaic of more than 40 photographs taken of the plains and released at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here shows a region that looks much more like the hospitable area scientsits expected to find when they flew Viking into orbit around Mars almost two weeks ago.

The plains are pocked by four large craters far enough apart to pose no real hazard to the Viking spacecraft when it lands. There also are six medium-sized carters in the plains but they are almost in a straight line and can be avoided when Viking is guided to a landing in the early morning hours of July 17.

Five ridges cut across the plains and at least two clusters of volcanic domes protrude from the plains.

But scientists say they can be accurately plotted from the photographs they will get back from Viking in the next seven days.

"We think landing is going to be easy," said Harold Masursky of the U.S. Geological Survey and scientific leader of the Viking team responsible for choosing and certifying a landing site.

"We've left the hazards behind and what we have now is a crater plain that is very low and very smooth."

Air Damage Fears Grow

WASHINGTON (WP) — Scientists report growing evidence that gases from aerosol spray cans may be damaging the ozone, the atmospheric layer that protects life on earth from the sun's most damaging rays.

But the question is not settled, said most of the members of a panel who summed up the findings of a conference at the National Bureau of Standards in suburban Gaithersburg, Mo.

One panelist, Dr. Mario Molina of the University of California at Irvine, called for an immediate federal ban on the use of flurocarbon propellants as a "definite" threat.

It was Molina and a California colleague, Dr. Sherwood Rowland, who in 1974 first suggested that flourocarbon breakdown products are harming the ozone layer.

But another panellist — Dr. Peter Jesson of Dupont, the main maker of Freon, trade name for fluorocarbon gasses — maintained that the Molina-Rowland theory "is open to more question today than it was a year ago."

Four other panel members agreed that it will take another year and a half or two to be reasonably sure that the sprays were indeed a danger.

Their reports raised the possibility that a National Academy of Sciences panel scheduled to report late this summer on the issue, may reach a similar conclusion.

Most government agencies concerned with the atmosphere or product safety have been waiting for that report before making any recommendations for federal regulation.

Two members of the national academy panel — Dr. Fred Kaufman of the University of Pittsburgh and Dr. Harold Schiff of Toronto's York University — were present. Neither would say that the academy scientists are leaning toward a report saying that there are already enough facts to label the spray gases a clear danger.

GOLDWATER BACKS FORD

WASHINGTON — Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, for more than a decade the chief symbol and spokesman for conservative Republicanism, has endorsed President Ford over Ronald Reagan.

He called the decision "the most difficult I have ever had to make in my life."

In a letter to the 2,259 delegates to the Aug. 16 Republican Convention in Kansas City, Goldwater said his endorsement of the president rested solely on his belief that the federal government cannot "suffer through months and months of re-organization that would be necessary if we had a change in the office" of president.

The Doctor Knows Best!

DALLAS (WP) — The American Medical Association, fighting mad over charges of widespread unnecessary surgery in the country, Thursday opposed the further growth of programs calling for a second medical opinion before an any non-emergency operation.

The AMA's policy-making house of delegates, ending its annual meeting here, said not performing surgery may really be bad for a patient even if a second doctor things the operation is unnecessary.

Contrary to what most people think the AMA said, the second doctor may not be better qualified than the first. "They may be of equal weight as far as medical expertise is concerned."

ALL AQUIVER ON JAIL TERM

FRIDAY HARBOR (UPI) — Wayne Fowler, 48, is willing to go to jail to back his right to bear a bow and arrow on his own property.

Fowler said Thursday that he has decided to spend 60 days in the San Juan county jail rather than keep his arrows in his quiver.

Fowler was ordered to jail after he admitted for the second time that he shot two arrows from a bow while on his own property. His property is within a no-shooting zone around the Shaw Island school.

A petition with the signatures of about 70 persons had been presented to the Shaw Island school board asking that the ordinance establishing the zone be rescinded.

The petition was circulated by Fowler's wife, Louise, who didn't want her husband to go to jail. She started circulating the petition after the sentence was imposed.

Pregnancy Hormones Blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. doctors are continuing to prescribe sex hormones for pregnant women despite government warnings that such therapy could result in birth defects, Ralph Nader health reserchers said Thursday.

The health research group told the U.S. Food and Drug Administration the agency should step in, re-issue previous warnings and require doctors to advise their patients in writing of the risks associated with the drugs — which are called progestins.

Doctors were advised in late 1973 and early 1974 not to prescribe the drugs for the prevention of abortion or other pregnancy complications, the group said.

"However, doctors get entrenched in unwise and dangerous prescribing practices as evidenced by the continued prescribing of about the same number of prescriptions for these drugs to pregnant women after the FDA actions as before," it said.

The organization said a survey of doctors' prescribing habits for 1975 showed that there were 533,000 prescriptions for hormones for pregnant women were there was a risk involved, compared to 588,000 in 1972.

The group said the major drugs involved are provera, depo provera, delalutin, duphaston, norlutin and norlutate.

Mexico, U.S. Smoothing Public Drug Quarrels

By MARLISE SIMONS
Washington Post

MEXICO CITY — The United States and Mexico are doing their best to avert — or at least postpone until after their presidential elections — a major public quarrel over the sensitive issue of narcotics.

Just last month, tempers were running so high that a top Mexican narcotics official indicated that several U.S. agents were about to be expelled from Mexico for "insolent and inept behavior" and for "acting against our will and behind our backs."

This dispute was smoothed over at a high-level meeting in Washington two weeks ago, when the attorneys general of the two countries pledged cooperation and President Ford received the Mexican delegation at the White House.

Although both sides now say publicly that their differences are patched up; sources close to the Mexican anti-drug drive fear that serious problems still remain and that new disagreements are almost certain to arise.

"There is a lot of pride and rivalry on both sides of the border," according to one of these sources.

An official in the Mexican attorney general's office asked, "How can he allow U.S. agents to act as police here, to arrest Mexicans, to carry arms when they shouldn't, to make reconnaissance flights on their own and to do undercover work behind our backs?

"It's rather like the situation in France five years ago when there was a lot of friction between French and U.S. agents about such things."

In public, U.S. and Mexican officials stress the successes of their six-year-old joint campaign against the narcotics traffic from Mexico to the United States.

But in practice, effective cooperation is increasingly hampered by growing resentment and rivalry between the narcotics agents of the two countries.

In exchange for the public embraces in Washington earlier this month, the U.S. Drug Enforcement administration reportedly appeased the Mexican delegation with private assurances that controversial U.S. agents threatened with explusion would be replaced shortly.

There were also reportedly pledges of new U.S. equipment for the Mexican drug agents.

In turn, Mexican federal authorities dropped charges against a U.S. drug agency "informant" being held for carrying out "illegal police activities" in Guadalajara.

Instead, the man, Louis Eisner, was deported to the United States two weeks ago.

FEA Extended By President Ford

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Ford signed a bill Thursday extending the life of the Federal Energy Agency (FEA) until the end of the month. The FEA was created in 1974 after the 1973 Arab oil embargo sent oil prices skyrocketing. Without the legislation, the agency would have expired Thursday. Approval of the bill gave Congress more time to decide whether the FEA should go out of business permanently or be reorganized.

Judge Finds Preston Guilty

Larry Allan Preston, charged in November 1974 with breaking, entering and theft at King John Inn, was found guilty in county court Wednesday of two counts out of three and adjourned to July 23 at 10:30 a.m. for sentencing.

His trial was one of the longest of its kind in a B.C. court and had been scheduled originally for June 1975. It was delayed and adjourned frequently for a variety of reasons including absence of witnesses, inability to serve summons on witnesses, failure of the accused to appear and numerous changes of defence counsel, the latest of whom made his first appearance on behalf of the accused on the final day after Preston had been defending himself.

Judge E. J. C. Stewart expressed sympathy for counsel Derek Brindle stepping in at the late date to help the accused, and observed that much of the delay in the unusual case was due to actions of the accused himself.

Stewart said he found some of the defence evidence unreliable and that of Preston himself and Hilton Reid, whose testimony largely followed Preston's, unbelievable.

Regarding their evidence, the judge said he would have had to be naive to allow it to raise a doubt in his mind. "There is no doubt in my mind. I find you guilty of count one. I find you guilty of count two. I dismiss count three."

The charges were that on or about Nov. 9 and on or about Nov. 12 Preston entered the then-unfinished King John Inn and took two color television sets, then one TV set, 37 bottles of liquor and a quantity of coins, and that he was in possession of property knowing it to have been stolen.

On the stand Wednesday Preston was asked by Brindle if he had committed the offences on the dates mentioned.

"I did not . . . and did not steal those things."

He also denied talking about the evidence with Hilton Reid, with whom he was arrested the afternoon of Nov. 12.

"On any date did you break and enter King John Inn?" asked Crown counsel Dwight Whitson.

"No, I did not," Preston said.

Whitson, addressing himself to Stewart at conslusion of the evidence, said an alibi set up at the last minute without previously being indicated "should always be looked upon with the greatest suspicion."

He said Preston could at least be considered an accessory after the fact to the offences to which Reid confessed to the court.

Reid had given evidence describing in detail how he alone had broken into the inn on two occasions, unknown to Preston, and took the items alleged in the charges.

Preston, who had confessed to the breaking, entering and theft in a statement made to police and entered in evidence, said the statement had been made while he was tired and upset.

Brindle said the only evidence linking Preston to the crime was his statement to police, and that this was part of a deal to protect a long-standing friend serving parole on whose property the stolen items were found; to keep Deanna Payne from being charged with him; to allow him hospital treatment for drug withdrawal symptoms he was enduring.

Counsel also suggested the statement was not voluntarily made and followed an atmosphere of co-operation between Preston and the police at the time, demonstrated by the fact that Preston helped carry the stolen goods to a patrol car and dictated his statement rather than writing it himself.

Reid gave his testimony under protection of the Canada Evidence Act on grounds that his account might incriminate him in civil or criminal charges.

The same protection was asked by Preston and defence witness William Murray who testified last week in support of Preston's alibi that he was elsewhere at the time of the offences.

On the first occasion Preston, Reid and Payne were in a car en route to Nanaimo, where they spent several hours, returning to Victoria the afternoon of the following day, court was told. The second time cited, Preston was with Murray and Kenneth Moorehouse at the Moorehouse residence where they spent the night discussing a drug deal. Murray and Preston both asked for protection in relating their testimony.

Preston arrived there about 1 a.m. in company with Murray and Moorehouse after stopping at Preston's parent's home in Langford, remaining until after daybreak, he said.

Preston had also said a reason he changed his residence from Maple Leaf Motel to Tally-Ho Hotel was because people were looking for him in connection with dealings.

"They were after you because you had ripped them off in a drug sale?" Whitson asked.

Asking for protection again, Preston replied:

"No, that's not correct."

"Why were you avoiding these people?"

Preston said he moved around when he was dealing drugs.

If people in the drug trade allow their residences to be known, he said, "they are liable to end up a) getting ripped off, or b) dead."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 25-year-old Victoria woman learned Wednesday in Victoria provincial court something which people appearing almost every day don't seem to understand — summonses, appearance notices and similar documents which say show up to 9:30 a.m. or 2 p.m. mean just that.

Linda Lenore Robinson, 1312 Gladstone, had made it on time Tuesday with a 9:30 a.m. appearance notice to hear a Victoria charge of theft and possession of a pair of jeans June 21 from T. Eaton Co.

But she had, in the words of Judge William Ostler, been "clearly under the influence of some drug" and was told to return at 2 p.m. She was more than an hour late. Court had finished, an arrest warrant issued for her was executed and she spent the night in jail.

Wednesday, she pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to appear at 2 p.m. and told Ostler, "I came shortly after 3 . . . I thought court lasted a lot longer than that."

"Two o'clock means two o'clock," Ostler explained, then fined Mrs. Robinson $50 and gave her one month to pay.

She pleaded not guilty to the other charge and had her trial set for Aug. 4. Ostler ordered her release until then in her own recognizance in the sum of $500, adding she must report at least three times a week to a bail supervisor and "sober . . . not under the influence of alcohol or a drug."

Victoria area resident Howard Clement Baker, 18, was sentenced by Ostler to one year definite and one year indeterminate in a detention centre on the B.C. mainland for youny offenders.

Baker had been found builty Friday after trial on a three-count charge of an April 18 break-in and theft at a Saanich motor firm, theft of a car from the firm and theft of a recording in Esquimalt.

His record included a sentence of six months definite and 12 months indeterminate imposed last September in Victoria for another break-in and theft.

"It was a contemptible thing to do," Ostler told Walter Carvalho, 27, of 545 Walter, who pleaded guilty June 10 to a Victoria charge of assault causing bodily harm May 29 to a 29-year-old woman acquaintance whose jaw was dislocated by a punch. Carvalho was fined $250 and placed on probation for six months.

Ottawa are resident Robert Allan Jupe, 17, was fined $250 and put on probation for six months by Ostler. Jupe pleaded guilty June 15 to a Saanich charge of theft laid after 51 pairs of jeans were stolen June 10 from Scorpion Young Men's Fashions, 3625 Douglas. The jeans were in two boxes brought to the rear of the store by a supplier and left unattended for about 20 minutes.

Oct. 21 was chosen by Ostler for the trial of William Robert Lowe, 26, of 1414 Hillside, on a charge of trafficking in marijuana June 18 in Victoria. Lowe previously chose provincial-court trial and pleaded not guilty. He is free on $1,000 surety bail until trial.

Latest drink-drive fines were led by a $500 levy against Murray Ernest MacWhirter, 26, of 2393 Eastdowne, who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of impaired driving Saturday.

Fined $450 each following pleas of guilty to separate charges of impaired driving were Gary Willis Mickleson, 40, of 980 Page, stopped Saturday in Colwood, and Robert William Savage, 38, of 1247 Colville, April 4 in Victoria.

Bottle Picker Shares Secret

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (AP) — John Ball was 70 when kidney surgery forced his retirement three years ago as a heavy-duty mechanic. But he wanted to work.

"Well," Ball decided, "I can still walk." And he does, some 20 miles a day along the highway to collect enough bottles and aluminum cans to add $100 to his income each month.

"At first I just collected bottles," said Bill. "But then I heard they paid 15 cents a pound for aluminum cans." That's 121 cans.

The walking is good for him, but he can't do much bending. So he made a hook from a gaff, fastened it to the end of a long pole and fashioned a large basket of plastic over a frame.

Bottle and can gathering is a full-time job.

"I even went out one winter day in 1974 when it was snowing a blizzard. I picked up 31 cases of bottles. Sure, I got cold, but at 50 cents a case, I made $15.50, and I could have just been home, sitting in front of the fire, not doing anything."

Ball gets a little help from his friends—the state highway patrol.

"Sometimes a patrol car will pull over and tell me where somebody has thrown out some beer or pop cans," he said.

But aluminum cans and bottles are becoming harder to find.

"At times I don't make out as good as I used to. Too many other people are after them now."

He has forsaken two of his favorite collection areas because he has seen elderly women searching in those sectors.

"Times aren't that tough for me, and I figure they need the money from the cans worse than I do."

He also picks up other items on his walks.

"It's amazing the number of good clothes and toys I find along the road," said Ball. "I guess small children throw them out the window as they are playing in the car. If I know someone who can use them, I give them to them. Otherwise my wife cleans them up and we give them to the Goodwill or Salvation Army."

Ball gets about $7 for each large plastic garbage sack full of flattened cans and 50 cents a case for beer bottles. The money has enabled him to buy a used 1975 pickup truck, in which he can carry his loads to the recycling centres.

Ludwig Now World's Richest

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the deaths of Onassis, Getty, Hunt and Hughes, who is the richest man in the world?

Daniel Ludwig, 79, the American genius who put the super tanker on the high seas is.

An unassuming, austere man, he built his billion-dollar fortune after the second World War through the development of tankers longer than football fields and bulk cargo ships that not only cut the cost of shipping, but loading and unloading.

His vast array of business interests incluce oil, minerals, large scale cattle ranching, tree and other farming and land development.

He owns the Princess hotel in Acapulco and a number of other multimillion luxury resort developments in various countries. He also has other lucrative financial investments.

Although not a total recluse like the late Howard Hughes, Ludwig always has kept such a low profile that when he sold $60 million worth of Union Oil stock in a single transaction on the New York Stock Exchange a few years ago, flabbergasted Wall Streeters asked each other: "Who is Ludwig?"

Until recently, he and his wife lived in a small house at Darien, Conn., where few of their neighbors had any idea of Ludwig's fortune. But they moved away, and even the local tax assessor professes ignorance of where he is now living.

Ludwig also kept a New York apartment from which he walked unrecognized to and from work.

Long ranked as the fifth richest man of the world behind Hughes, Jean Paul Getty, H. L. Hunt and Aristotle Onassis, Ludwig rose to the top of the list as each of the giants died.

Stella, Aged 102, Proves Her Mettle

CHICAGO — A 102-year-old widow turned out to be no easy prey for two men who robbed her. One suspect was in custody and a warrant was issued for the other due to the woman's spunk and her cane.

Police said the robbers pushed their way into the home of Stella Victor when she answered their knock at about 1 p.m. The robbers took $30 in cash, an inexpensive ring and a lamp, but only after they were forced to overpower Mrs. Victor. A neighbor heard the commotion and called police. John Withers, 37, was arrested by police when he was found hiding under a nearby porch. He was charged with battery, armed robbery and burglary. The second suspect hid behind Mrs. Victor's couch while police questioned her and remained there for six hours until Mrs. Victor's son Francis, 57, found him. As the fleeing man struggled with her son, Mrs. Victor pummelled him with her cane but he managed to escape.

LONDON — A royal gamekeeper has been accused of stealing skins from the Queen's deer. Nevil Brown, 37-year-old chief gamekeeper for the last seven years at the Royal Richmond Park in southwestern London, was freed on $200 bail until July 22. Brown was responsible not only for the 600 deer roaming free in the park, but for all animals, including birds, sheep, and mice.

HOLLYWOOD — One hundred aspiring actors lined up in a temperature of 29 degrees C (84 degree F) for the chance of being leading man to veteran movie actress Mae West in her next film. The 84-year-old actress discovered her leading man for the 1931 film, I'm No Angel, in a similar fashion. The actor she chose, Cary Grant, became one of Hollywood's best-known stars.

LONDON — Princess Anne, by proving her fitness in the final trial at Osberton, has clinched a place in Britain's team for the three-day equestrian event at the Montreal Olympics, experts agreed Thursday. Her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, finished first in the Osberton trial Wednesday but there is a question mark over his selection to the team as his first choice horse hit two fences, seemed upset by spectators and finished eighth out of 11.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — A grand jury has indicted Harrold Carsell, once nominated to the Supreme Court by Richard Nixon, on charges of making homosexual advances to a policeman he met in a men's restroom.

WASHINGTON — U.S. state department officials said Thursday there is a good chance the United States will try to extradite multimillionaire Robert Vesco from Costa Rica, although legal problems are "horrendous" and may take months to solve.

Could This Really Be A Nice Jewish Girl?

NEW YORK AP) — Shirley Stoler sat on a stool at her favorite neighborhood bar in Manhattan's Chelsea district explaining how a fat Jewish lady from Brooklyn could find fame — but not necessarily fortune — as a ferocious, cigar-smoking German commandant.

Her poker-faced performance as the cruel but cultured concentration camp commandant in Italian director Lina Wertmuller's latest film, Seven Beauties, has brought critics' acclaim and the experience of working with one of moviedom's most exciting directors.

In the film, rated by many as Miss Wertmuller's finest, Shirley allows a prisoner to seduce her. The prisoner is portrayed by Giancarlo Giannini, whose performances in previous Wertmuller films have won him the reputation as the Marcello Mastroianni of the 1970s.

"Money certainly wasn't the incentive for taking the role," say the throaty, red-haired actress, who is reported to have received $2,500 for the part. "I wanted to work with Lina. She's the most dynamic director in the field today."

The eldest of four children, Shirley was born and raised in Brooklyn, where her Russian immigrant parents owned a used furniture store.

"I was always a big kid," says Shirley. "I wore a size 14 when I was 14 years old. When I walked down the street, I'd stiffen my spine and inhale so as to be invisible. I used to pray the pavement would open up and swallow me."

One day she overheard a woman say in Yiddish, "Look at that young girl, how proudly she walks down the street, as if she owns the world."

"Those ladies hadn't a clue as to my real feelings," she recalls. "I though to myself, if that's how I appear, then it doesn't matter how I feel. I'll pretend to be proud. That's how my acting career started."

A seasoned actress, Shirley did her first play 20 years ago with the Living Theatre in New York. Her film roles include a madam in Klute and a murderess in The Honeymoon Killers, in which Miss Wertmuller saw her and decided she was right for Seven Beauties.

"I never auditioned for the role," Shirley admits. "Lina simply invited me to lunch at the Algonquin. Giancarlo and a bunch of crazy Italians were there. I was told I was under consideration for the part."

"In the role, I worked with the premise that the commandant was trying to live up to an ideal, however warped, of creating an elite race. Remember, her conditioning would have begun at an early age. She honestly felt she was part of a movement that would make a better world. Of course, I don't agree with the Nazi ideology, how could I. But I'm an actress. The part had dimension and was surrounded by drama and emotion. I couldn't pass it up."

Shirley's size in Seven Beauties represents power. "Size can be used in many ways, as a sign of lushness, power or weakness," She says.

These Night Stalkers Prowl in War Rubble

BEIRUT (UPI) — Farid lies in a dank basement by day, dozing now and again and smoking an endless chain of American cigarettes as he waits for darkness to fall.

At 8 p.m., Farid's commander nudges him and he and his 12 companions slowly rise and peer out into Sidon Street.

Before the war, Sidon Street was a bustling commerical suburban thoroughfare.

Now it's hard to tell the gas station across the street from the movie theatre next door or the bombed out grocery in whose basement Farid and his companions restlessly sit out the day, waiting for night and the war to begin.

Sidon Street has the bad luck of being the main confrontation line between Christian Ain Rummaneh and Moslem Chiah in Eastern Beirut.

Farid and his patrol have the bad luck of defending what's left of it.

"It" consists precisely of two bombed-out gas pumps, the rusty hulks of several bullet-riddled cars and about 100 empty buildings of varying sizes that now share one common trait of war: Each has at least one mortar hole in it.

But Farid is proud of the post because, as he says, "it's our front line and only the best fighters get sent here."

Farid, 21, has been a member of the Palestinian Al Fatah guerrilla group for three years, and was sent to Sidon Street five days ago.

He has another two to go before he is pulled back for a week's relief and then sent in again.

"We need the rest because at night the fighting gets very fierce and you need to be alert and on your toes," he said.

"I've seen several guys get killed because they were tired and didn't react fast enough."

Farid is proud he is Palestinian, proud of his patrol, proud of the English he speaks with some difficulty and proud that he smokes American cigarettes, a habit his comrades often kid him about.

He likes talking to journalists because it gives him the chance to improve his English.

"But there has only been one other journalist here since I arrived," he said.

"He was a Lebanese. Did you know he was killed by a sniper just a few feet from here?"

I said I didn't know but, considering what we went through to reach Sidon Street, I could well believe it.

According to Farid's patrol commander, right-wing Phalangist gunmen are only 200 yards down the street, some perched atop tall buildings and firing down at anything that moves within their sights.

A three-foot-high wall of sandbags provides uncomfortably little protection as one runs, head bent low, across 15 yards of open ground to reach Farid's patrol headquarters on what used to be the Christian side of the line.

During the past days, Palestinian-Lebanese leftist forces have made some gains in their effort to secure a supply line across the river to two Palestinian refugee camps under seige by Christian forces.

"We've advanced 100 yards here, 200 there. The battle goes back and forth," Farid said.

In what is perhaps typical of the schizophrenia of Lebanon's war, children play and women haul water in buckets from wells just a few blocks from either side of the line.

"At night we sleep in our hallways becaust the shelling gets very bad, but during the day, what can we do?" said a father of four.

"We just have to go about our business as best we can and hope it will be over soon."

But Farid, for one, is not among the dwindling circle of optimists who still believe the war, after 15 months and 40 broken cease-fires, may be nearing an end. How long will he have to go on fighting?

"Always," he said, "We will go on fighting always."

BABY COMES TO LIFE

NATMAUK, Burma (Reuter) — The parents of a baby pronounced dead at its brith here asked a hospital attendant to arrange for its burial.

Because of a raging rainstorm, the attendant decided to wait until the following morning, wrapped the baby in a cloth and left the bundle in a corner.

A group of doctors and nurses summoned for an emergency case early the next day heard a baby crying and found the child alive inside the bundle.

Minutes later, the baby was suckling at the breast of its overjoyed mother.

Hudson's Bay Company

OLD RAILWAY ROLLS AGAIN

The old Victoria Pacific Railway is headed for a new life up-Island, and may run the logging tracks from Ladysmith to the Nanaimo Lakes.

Derailed almost three years ago when CNR cancelled the tourist train's lease, the rolling stock is slated for major renovation and will be moved to Crown Zellerbach in Ladysmith.

Spokesman for Victoria Pacific Tours Ltd., Kenneth Showers said today the stock — including two steam locomotives, flat cars, passenger day coaches and a caboose, as well as a private car — needs extensive repair because of vandalism that has occurred while idle in Colwood.

The tour company made several attempts at a viable tourist operation in the Colwood area, but rental was too high. For two years, however, the stock did roll and was one of the city's most popular tourist attractions.

Subsequently the company applied to the CP Rail for a lease to use CPR tracks from downtown Victoria to Shawnigan Lake, said Showers, but the plans didn't work out.

Showers said Crown Zellerbach has "indicated interest" in a proposal to run the stock as a tourist attraction from Ladysmith to the Nanaimo Lakes, about 25 miles on logging tracks through scenic country. The tour company hopes CZ will make the venture a joint operation.

CNR is slated to move the stock on CPR tracks up to Ladysmith within the next several weeks, a spokesman said.

Because the train is so old it will be moved at a 25-mile an hour speed up-Island, but it is expected to make its destination on its own steam.

Flu Vaccine Up in Air

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Dr. A. A. Larsen, provincial epidemiologist, says there are more questions than answers at the moment as health authorities across Canada brace for the potentially deadly swine flu.

Meanwhile, the virus in question has disappeared.

Larsen, who has just returned from meetings in Eastern Canada and the U.S. dealing with the anticipated outbreak six months from now, says at present "it's confusion piled on confusion."

American manufacturers of swine flu vaccine are obviously going to have problems meeting delivery deadlines asked of them by their federal government, he said.

And that creates problems for Canadian health authorities because the American government is reluctant to issue export permits for any vaccine until it knows how much it is going to get itself.

While the American government has announced a policy of immunizing its entire population, Ottawa's policy is to have sufficient vaccine on hand to immunize about half the population, with priority going to those over 65 and the chronically ill.

American vaccine is carefully tested so if a good supply is available from the U.S. that's one thing, said Larsen. But if Canada has to buy partially-finished vaccine from England, Australia, Germany, Holland and possibly France, then it will have to do its own testing and that takes six to eight weeks.

Size of the dosage is another question and whether children should have the vaccine is yet another, Larsen said. American field trials suggest a standard dosage is adequate but trials also hint that reaction children are suffering to it is severe enough to be classified as unacceptable.

Youngsters have been suffering high fever and have been made ill for about a day in some cases. Some health specialists feel swine flu is not an illness children need to be protected against.

One more question being pondered by the experts: should the vaccine, if and when it's available, be used right away or stockpiled?

Larsen said that's because the swine flu virus, which killed a soldier at Fort Dix, N.J. in February, has since "disappeared off the face of the earth."

Will it come back? Should the immunization program await its return?

"Anybody who's honest has to admit we just don't know."

But because the swine flu virus is thought to be the same as the so-called Spanish flu bug, which killed somewhere between 20 and 50 million people in 1918 and 1919, the preparations go on.

One thing is certain: flu, in one form or another will start to make its presence felt just around Christmas time.

Limit Slapped on School Costs

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

By an 8 to 1 margin Wednesday, Greater Victoria school board trustees decided to set a ceiling on the increase of the following year's budget in an effort to curb rising school costs.

The board will now set a maximum percentage increase for the 1977 budget by Sept. 3 of this year, and the administration in drafting the budget will have to keep within the imposed guideline.

The lone dissenter of the motion at Wednesday's special board meeting was Trustee Susan Brice, who said the wondered if such a simple solution could solve such a complex problem.

Brice said Friday she was not opposed to the idea of the motion, but felt that it was too short-termed. She said she is committed to a three - year plan and couldn't support a method that "still limps along one year at a time."

Trustee Peter Bunn, who proposed the motion, said the board failed the public miserably last year. "I don't want to see it happen again."

He said that with the ceiling set by September, the unions bargaining with the district will know exactly how much money is available and if they want more they will have to accept fewer staff. "The writing is on the wall," he added.

Trustee Mark Fisher supported the motion, but expressed some concern about the quality of education. He said the needs of education were not predictable.

Chairman William Ross said he felt the motion was useful but needed more sophistication.

He disagreed with other trustees' comments that it would provide backbone, was a desperate tactic and was news. He suggested a lot of organizations set ceilings before their budget was drafted.

He added that he was not entirely dissatisfied with the process of the budget last year.

Assistant superintendent of schools Dr. John Wiens said longer range planning such as three or five years would give a much better focus for budgeting — a suggestion echoed by Brice Friday.

Brice said Victoria has one of the fastest declining school enrolments in the province, and "this needs special actions."

"We must start to wind down a huge system that took years to build up," she said.

And the district must be careful that the educational losses are not significant, hence my push for three-year planning, she added.

Trustee Lavinia Greenwood produced statistics that showed the annual cost per pupil in the past 10 years has almost quadrupled — from $452 per pupil in 1966 to more than $1,700 in 1976.

The district's 1976 budget was set at $46,471,540 — up $7,488,819 from last year, and $2,599,224 more than the provisional budget discussed in January.

Teachers Protest AIB Move

The Greater Victoria Teachers Association will not participate in any attempt by the schoolboard to take last year's teachers' salary settlement to the Anti-Inflation Board, past president Mavis DeGirolamo said today.

Reacting to Education Minister Pat McGeer's statement in the legislature Wednesday that all salary agreements between teachers and school districts would be subject to review by the federal AIB, DeGirolamo said teachers will resist any salary review.

Speaking for GVTA president Walter Kitley who is on vacation, DeGirolamo said the decision may have to go to the courts and teachers are willing to take that step.

She accused McGeer of reneging on the Public Schools Act. Teachers are governed by the act when they submit to compulsory binding arbitration in salary negotiations, she said.

"It presents an interesting legal question," she said.

Canada's British North America Act gives provinces the right to govern education, she said and wondered how a court would rule on any federal rollback of salaries arbitrated under the provincial act.

DeGirolamo said it is "extremely arrogant" of McGeer to decide the AIB could do a better job than all the school boards in the province.

Lum Pushes Blanshard Job

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said today he will ask council to officially approach Highways Minister Alex Fraser in an effort to get Fraser to reverse his decision not to go ahead with the Blanshard Street extension this year.

Lum said Fraser had not notified Saanich that he was stalling the extension in favor of the Trans Canada project.

The mayor said "he was pretty damn mad" when he learned of the reversal from the media rather than the minister.

"We did spend a lot of time with the former (NDP) government setting this priority (Blanshard before the Trans Canada)," Lum said. "After having it confirmed — it was to begin this year — we now have it up in the air again."

The Blanshard Street extension has been under provincial highway studies for more than 15 years. Lum said in its submission to Fraser the council will enclose technical reports and data from both Saanich's engineering department and the highways department that suubstantiate the stand that the Blanshard project should be given top priority.

He said survey work is far more advanced for the Blanshard project than the Trans Canada one and going ahead with the Trans Canada first would only compound bad traffic congestion problems.

"You already have bad traffic congestion at the Colwood underpass and at Douglas Street. By implementing the Blanshard Street extension 40 per cent off the traffic going down Douglas now would be diverted to Blanshard, making a much better traffic flow," Lum said.

Lum said waffling on the part of the provincial government is losing Saaanich thousands of dollars in taxes and delaying roadwork of top priority.

"The area between Seymour and Vernon has been declared a development area. We've been holding off because the road will have to be upgraded before it can take any heavy traffic," Lum reported.

He said two major developments were stalled in the area — residential and office-residential complexes. He estimated taxes from the two projects would bring between $200,000 and $250,000.

Lum said Saanich Road is in poor shape but roadwork has been stalled since 1969, waiting for the Blanshard Street extension to relieve the traffic on Saanich Road and allow work to go ahead.

"I'm hopeful the minister will change his mind, "Lum said, "All the facts and figures make it truly clear that the Blanshard extension is highest on the priority list."

Record Entry Maui Bound

32-Yacht Race

Times Staff

When the start gun cracks Saturday at 11 a.m. off the Victoria coastline for the sixth biennial Victoria-Maui sailing classic, a record fleet of 32 boats will begin racing to the Hawaiian Islands.

Lieutenant-Governor Walter Owen will be aboard the 70-foot pleasure cruiser Sea-Q, belonging to Ron Cliff of Vancouver, to fire the shot that signals the beginning of the 2,300-mile race across the Pacific Ocean.

The start will be in the vicinity of Brotchie Ledge.

The first race was held in 1966 with only three boats taking part, two from Vancouver and one from Victoria. In 1974, there were 23 boats in the ocean classic.

The other B.C. boats are Roango-Tang and Tranquil Passage of the Kitsilano Yacht Club; Starduster, a 54-foot ketch from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club; Per Christoffersen's Terna III of the West Vancouver Yacht Club; Tom Braidwood's Mutineer IV of the same club; the ex-Charisma, now named Sunbird, of Royal Vancouver; the Royal Naval Sailing Association's 44-foot Gometra, and Trumpeter of Jericho, skippered by John Long, Royal Van's commodore whose Mary Bower made Swiftsure history.

Bill Niemi's C and C 61 Joli of the Seattle Yacht Club will be back for another try. She finished the race in 1974, first over the line, in a record time of 12 days, 17 hours and 26 seconds. On handicap, however, the 36-foot sloop Tinsley Light, skippered by Henry Grandin of San Francisco, was over-all winner.

Whittaker, one of the few men to have scaled both Mount Everest and K-II, the second highest mountain in the world, will have a crew of fellow mountain climbers aboard.

Maui veteran, Bill Gardner's Lucy Alice will be back to try again, as will be Border Lord. Both are from Seattle.

There will be a race within a race this year. For the first time there will be two ratings accepted — the International Offshore Rule and, for the first time, boats belonging to the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet.

All the boats must be measured for IOR, however. In addition to competing for over-all honors, the PHRF boats will also race between themselves.

For the first time, the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and the Lahaina Yacht Club, who organize the race, have not asked the Canadian navy for an escort vessel.

Instead, Dr. Hank Stigglebout of Olympia, Wash., will use his 44-foot sloop Viya as the official communications vessel. She will not be racing. All boats will report their positions once a day so that a plot of the race's progress will be maintained until the classic is completed.

Race committee chairman Don Selman of Vancouver reports that a small armada of pleasure cruisers has volunteered to come from Vancouver and Seattle to take about 200 relatives of the boats' crews out to watch the start of the race.

This is the first time such a sight-seeing gallery has been arranged.

City Takes Fines

Victoria's new traffic ticket payment scheme went into operation today and ticketed motorists are advised to check to see where to pay their fine.

Assistant city comptroller-treasurer David Gawley said at noon today only four people had come in to pay their fines at city hall and it is too early to tell if the city takeover of parking fine payments was going to cause any problems.

The city has hired one new employee — a cashier — and will make minor reallocation of duties for other employees to handle the new function of receiving parking ticket payments.

Only time will tell if we've got enough staff to handle it, he said.

Gawley said motorists should check the bottom of the ticket for details of where to pay the fine.

Parking tickets are payable at city hall, but other offences encompassed by the traffic citations are provincal matters and are paid at provincial court. The officer issuing the ticket will tick off the correct place to pay the fine, he said.

Parking fines have increased from $2 to $3, but now offenders have seven days instead of 72 hours to pay their fines before the cost increases to $5.

If a fine isn't paid in a week, a form letter is sent to the registered owner giving him an additional 14 days to get the fine paid. After that time, it becomes a court matter and a summons is issued. Minimum fine then is $25.

Gawley said the time element is in favor of the motorist. "We want to keep as many people as possible out of the court," he said.

Summer must be here. Beaches on the rim of the Capital district which lie deserted the rest of the year are attracting once again those people with schizophrenic feelings about such outings.

Consider French Beach, 12 miles west of Sooke, on Dominion Day. Where there's scarcely a car or two on the parking lot from September to May, there were close to 30 Thursday.

And down the trail to the mile of placid beach, which offers the sound of gulls and ravens, wind and waves, came people armed with—radios.

Asked to name one downtown area as an obvious candidate for adornment with Victoria's famous hanging flower baskets, most people would say the Government Street Mall.

And they'd be wrong.

No baskets are planned for the mall section of Government, the 700-block Yates or the tiny Eaton's mall on Broad this summer.

"It is felt that these . . . areas have sufficient beautifucation planting at ground level," city manager Jim Bramley stated in a report to the parks committee.

But 533 of the baskets will make their usual splash of color around the downtown-Inner Harbor area.

MALONEY ACQUITTAL THRILLS CAMPBELL

MONTREAL (CP) — Clairence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says he is thrilled with a county court jury's decision in Toronto to acquit Dan Maloney of Detroit Red Wings of assault.

"I hoped that would be the result, but I can't say I expected it," Campbell said.

"I think it's a well-warranted decision, I don't want to appear to be gloating, but I think it's an expression of conduct its own affairs in that league should be able to conduct its own affaires in that regard." (See story Page 25.)

Still Gets Hot On Tidy Course

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ken Still shot his hottest round of the year Thursday as he led a host of pros in the first round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee open golf tournament. Still, along with most of the other pros, tore up the tidy and meticulously kept 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course, firing an eight-under-par 64, one stroke off the course record, for a two-stroke lead over Fuzzy Zoeller and Dave Hill.

Don Iverson and Andy North were among six at 68.

An even 50 players shattered par under ideal weather conditions as the torrid shooting belied absence of most of the tour's top names, who have skipped this tournament and its comparitively small purse to prepare for next week's British Open.

Still, whose three victories in 17 years on the tour included the 1969 Greater Milwaukee, said "You could eat off the fairways, they were so clean."

Still, who came within a stroke of two-time Greater Milwaukee champion Dave Stockton's competitive course record set in the second round of the 1973 Open, hit every green in regulation except the fifth and 17th, both of which he missed by a foot.

Firefighters Meet Nanaimo

Games are scheduled for 1 and 3 p.m. Saturday at Royal Athletic Park and at the same times Sunday at Bullen Park.

Victoria Girls Gain Semi-Finals

VANCOUVER — Eighth-seeded Gerald Clerx of the host Jericho club scored the first major upset of the British Columbia junior clay courts tennis championships Thursday, defeating Portland's John Wall 6-3, 6-2 in a quarter-final contest.

Jim Lees of Richmond downed Greg Ball of Vancouver 7-5, 6-0, Mike Puc of London, Ont., outlasted Portland's Ed Heath 6-4, 5-7, 6-1 and Steve Volrich of Vancouver downed Toronto rival Bill Cowan 6-3, 6-2.

Four girls from Victoria earned berths in their singles semi-finals as the top four seeds in the under-18 devision avoided upsets.

Advancing with Victorians Wendy Barlow, Brenda Cameron and Nina Bland was Sally Gates of Vancouver.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Bill Putnam completed his purchase of the World Hockey Association's Cleveland Crusaders on Wednesday and named Glen Sonmor as general manager and John Wilson as coach.

Joe's Back With Bates Because Bob Asked Him

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Former Bate coach Joe Patterson had planned to accompany the city team to the Heidelberg Softball Tournament in Seattle this weekend "as a spectator", but those plans have been changed.

Joe is still going, not as a spectator, but in a more accustomed role — as team coach!

Patterson replaces Bob Burrows who asked to be relieved of his duties at least two weeks ago.

Burrows asked Patterson then if he would consider coaching the club again as he (Burrows) felt it was affecting his play in his double role of player-coach.

He again asked Patterson just over a week ago and before last week's international tournament with Reading, Pa., Patterson said then he would sit on his decision over the weekend and let Burrows know his answer this week

"On Monday I accepted," Patterson said. "I knew that Bobby (Burrows) wasn't completely happy, and yes, I had missed it."

Patterson had resigned as Bate coach following the world tournament in New Zealand and Burrows had taken over this spring

"I think my decision to come back took a big load off Bobby's shoulders," Patterson said. "It is not easy to play and coach."

As to the team he will reacquire, Patterson said "I like it. Why shouldn't I? It is basically the same team as last year and is stronger on the mound with the addition of Andy Konopacki. He threw well against Reading."

"As to Stanley (Kern) and David (Ruthowsky), I never worry about them too much. They can have a bad game, but they always come back.

"Defensively, they are pretty good; but their base running and running down base runners has not been the best and we'll have to tighten up there."

For Patterson, it will be his fifth year as coach of Bate. "I guess you can say I'm glad,' he commented; and besides, it should help Bobby."

Under Burrows, Bates enjoyed almost phenomenal early-season success, being unbeaten in Pacific Coast Fastball League play until just three weeks ago when they lost three games to Vancouver Magicians.

Against Reading, Bates lost that series three games to one, but the series wasn't decided until the final inning of the final game when Reading broke a 1-1 tie with two home runs. Overall, Bates had a 26 and six won, loss record.

Chris Collects Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chris Evert of the United States defeated Evonne Goolagong 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 today and won her second women's singles title at the Wimbledon tennis championships.

It was the first time Miss Evert has ever beaten her Australian rival on grass.

Miss Evert won her first Wimbledon in 1974 and then was beaten by Billie Jean King last year. Miss Goolagong, now married to Roger Cawley, was a Wimbledon champion in 1971.

Miss Evert won because she kept her head at the crucial moments, particularly in the final set when Miss Goolagong suddenly came to life and took a couple of games from her with the loss of only a single point to go ahead 5-6.

In that final set, which lasted 50 minutes, Miss Goolagong ran up a 2-0 lead with a service break on the second game, lost that advantage when Miss Evert broke back twice for a 3-2 lead, then pulled back to 3-3 by breaking Chris.

Young Swede Gains Final With Nastase

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Ilie Nastase of Romania advanced Thursday to what will be a rare all-European men's singles final at the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Borg, 25 days past his 20th birthday, tamed American Roscoe Tanner's mighty service and won 6-4, 9-8, 6-4 in a hard-hitting thriller.

Nastase, approaching 30, out-stroked Raul Ramirez of Mexico 6-2, 9-7, 6-3.

Wimbledon had an all-European final in 1973, when Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia defeated Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union. But that was an abnormal year because 60 stars, including all the top players of the United States and Australia, stayed away.

Apart from that there has not been an all-European duel for the title since Britain's Fred Perry defeated Germany's Gottfried von Cramm in 1936.

Borg and Nastase will play Saturday.

Nastase has been in the final once before, in 1972 when Stan Smith beat him in five sets. Borg is the youngest finalist since Ken Rosewall, who was 19 years and nine months when he lost to Jaroslav Dobny in 1954.

A wind swirled around the centre court and affected the tennis. Tanner, who slammed 19 aces past Jimmy Connors in the quarter-finals, could not match that this time. In fact, Borg out-scored him in aces 10-9.

In the entire match there were only two service breaks, both to Borg, and only six games went to deuce.

Borg often ran around Tanner's second service to take it on his forehand, and won points with his heavy top spin.

Borg's first service break, giving him a 4-3 lead in the first set, came after a rally that had the 17,000 fans gaping in disbelief.

Tanner slammed one of his big first services. Borg hit it straight back at him. Tanner hit a scorching forehand, and Borg sent a forehand cross-court past him. The four strokes all happened so fast the eye could scarcely follow the ball.

Borg touched the heights again to win the second set tiebreaker, 7-2. Tanner served trailing 1-2 and lost both points on that service.

MEN'S SINGLES

Bjorn Borg, Sweden, defeated Roscoe Tanner, U.S., 6-4, 9-8, 6-4.

Bando Deadly With New Bats

Times News Services

If Bowie Kuhn wants to nullify still another deal, he'll make Sal Bando return his red-hot bat to George Scott.

Scott, the Milwaukee Brewers' first baseman, didn't charge a million dollars when he recently waived a couple of his bats to Gene Tenace of Oakland A's.

The gift has certainly proved to be not in the best interests of American League pitchers because Bando starting using the bats and has slammed five home runs in the last five games, giving him 16 for the season, tops in the league.

The slugging third baseman hammered two solo homers Thursday night as Oakland downed Kansas City Royals 5-2 in the opener of a critical for the A's four-game American League baseball series.

The defending West Division champions, shooting for a sixth consecutive division title, are in third place, 8½-games behind the Royals.

In Thursday's other American League games, Cleveland Indians edged New York Yankees 3-2, Detroit Tigers blanked Baltimore Orioles 2-0, Milwaukee Brewers whipped Boston Red Sox 6-5 in 10 innings and California Angels nosed out Chicago White Sox 2-1.

In the only National League games, San Diego Padres beat Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 and New York Mets clobbered St. Louis Cardinals 13-0. Rain prevented a game at Montreal between the Expos and Philadelphia Phillies.

Bando hit his first home run in the second inning off Kansas City's Doug Bird and connected again in the ninth off reliever Marty Pattin, breaking a tie. Rookie Jeff Newman drove in two insurance runs with his first major league hit.

"I've called in a bat order on an urgent basis," said Bando. "Last night in Texas I broke one of the two bats that I've been using and now there's only this one left.

"George Scott gave them to Gene Tenace and I felt so bad one day that I played with it and hit a home run. I've been using it ever since. If I break this one before the new order comes in I don't know what I'll do."

Rick Manning tripled home the eventual winning run in the seventh inning as the Indians handed the Yankees their third successive loss.

Ex-Yankee Pat Dobson, with relief help from Dave LaRoche and Jim Kern, became the American League's first 10-game winner as the Indians moved within six games of the Yankees in the East Division.

Dave Roberts stopped Baltimore on four singles while Alex Johnson homered for Detroit.

Quick TDs Spark Als

HAMILTON (CP) — Montreal Alouettes came up with two touchdowns four seconds apart in the first quarter and then relied on a rock-hard defence and the placekicking of Don Sweet to smash Hamilton Tiger-Cats 25-1 in a pre-season Eastern Football Conference game Wednesday night.

Larry Smith scored the first TD on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Jimmy Jones and linebacker Durley Thompson recovered a Hamilton fumble in the end zone on the subsequent kickoff to score another major four seconds later, Sweet finished the game with 11 points from two conversions and three field goals.

DAVIS CUP PROBLEM

Canada Next To Pull Out?

By the Canadian Press

Canadian tennis officials are expected to decide today whether to follow the United States, France and Britain out of Davis Cup tennis competition.

Protesting "political meddling," the United States announced Thursday that it has pulled out of the Davis Cup competition and resigned from the ruling organization.

France and Britain withdrew from the 1977 tournament but stayed on as members of the Davis Cup Committee, at least for the present.

"The breaking point came over the issue of some countries refusing to play South Africa. Mexico declined to play South Africa in 1975 and 1976. South Africa won the 1974 Davis Cup when India refused to play in the finals.

Lawrie Strong, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association (CLTA), said Thursday night he will arrange a conference telephone within 24 hours to poll his executive on the situation.

"I certainly would not decide without consultation with the entire executive," he said. "I was naturally very concerned when I received a call from London with the news.

"It's unlikely we would pull out in view of actions by the United States, Britain and France, we will certainly reconsider our position."

The dramatic U.S. move was the result of a meeting of the Davis Cup Committee. The United States had proposed a resolution to impose suspensions on countries who, like Mexico and India, withdraw because of political interference or government action. The rule change needed a two-thirds majority, but got only a 32-to-21 count.

Australia, Spain, Argentina, New Zealand, Britain, Greece, Italy and West Germany spoke in favor of the defeated U.S.-backed rule change.

Mariners Given 10-Day Reprieve

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association gave San Diego Mariners a 10-day extension Wednesday to come up with local ownership, but the league's chief executive officer is not optimistic.

Ben Hatskin said on the second and final day of the league's annual meeting that the WHA will draw up a schedule for 11 teams, meaning it will not include the financially-troubled Mariners.

SEABOARD WINS PAIR TO JUMP INTO LEAD

Seaboard Construction took two games from Juan de Fuca Builders to leap-frog over first-place Royal Oak in Stuffy McGuinnis Men's Softball League action Thursday.

The builders won 6-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Barry Wilkin and a three-hit job by Pete Devana, 7-1.

Seaboard counted four runs in the first inning against Larry Cole and that was all that Wilkin needed. Brian Grexton started it with a single, Paul Morrison was safe on an error, Glen Kolduff got his first of three hits, Tom Robertson singled to drive two runners home and Wayne Forland followed with a triple to plate Robertson.

In the other game, Morrison tripled to score Grexton in the second inning and later scored on a sacrifice fly by John Martin. Morrison scored again in the fourth and contributed a run-batted-in as Seaboard exploded for four more runs in the fifth to salt the game away. Len Carolaw was the loser. He gave up five hits.

On Wednesday, Ingraham Hotel trounced Molsons 13-1. In women's play Wednesday, GSV Combos nipped Hygrade 2-1, and Stockers North American defeated Ingraham Hotel 5-2 Thursday.

At Sidney, Harvey's Sporting Goods parlayed three hits into seven runs into the fourth inning of the final game of the Sidney Men's League Dominion Day softball tournament for an 8-4 victory over Seaboard Properties.

The Seaboard defence literally fell apart in the fateful fourth and could never recover. Brian Vanderkracht was the winning pitcher for Harveys. He allowed eight hits. Six errors contributed to the Seaboard problems.

In earlier games, Harveys slammed out 14 hits while Roger Wallace tossed a two-hitter in a 16-1 trouncing of Victoria Chiefs; Sidney Hotel got a three-hitter from Al Graham in a 12-2 victory over the Chiefs; and Mike Kirby threw a three-hit shutout in a 7-0 triumph over Sidney Hotel in the semi-final. On Wednesday, Seaboard eliminated Travelodge 11-8.

At Hyacinth Park, Hygrade Radio topped MacDonalds Furniture Juniors 4-1 in the opening game of a best-of-three playoff for the Victoria junior women's championship.

Cathy Wilkinson hurled a five-hitter for the victory and helped out at bat with two hits on three trips to the plate. Nancy Beale threw a four-hitter in a losing cause for Juniors and had a one for two performance at bat.

The second game of the series is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday at the same park and a third game, if necessary, will be played Thursday at the same site and time.

Kubiceks Knock Movers Down

Kubicek's Home Service knocked Greaves Movers into second place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League Thursday night at Lambrick Park.

The Servicemen scored two runs in the fifth inning to break a 3-3 tie for a 5-3 decision. It was Kubicek's second win in two days. On Wednesday Gerry Lister had tossed a one-hitter at Farmer Construction for a 1-0 victory. It was the idle Gorge Hotel which took advantage of Graves' loss to take over the league lead by half a game.

Andy Linn was the winning pitcher Thursday coming on in relief of starter Wayne Messer who gave up a three-run homer to Jim Pickering in the second inning.

Linn was in trouble only in the sixth inning when he gave up two hits.

Randy Price batted in the winning runs. Brock Coupar was hit by a pitched ball. Randy Johnson sacrificed. Dave Wallace and Dave Graas walked to load the bases and the Price doubled home the two runs.

Mexico Trips Brazil

HAMILTON (CP) — Mexico, Yugoslavia and Spain enhanced their chances of qualifying for berths in men's Olympic basketball competition at Montreal later this month by winning games Thursday at a pre-Olympic tournament.

Mexico rallied in the final 10 minutes to overcome a five-point deficit and defeat Brazil 85-79 while Yugoslavia easily handled the Netherlands 102-78 and Spain edged Czechoslovakia 94-89.

Mexico is in first place in final-round standings with six points, Yugoslavia and Spain have five each, Brazil and Czechoslovakia four each and the Netherlands three.

Only three of the six entries will qualify for Olympic berths, joining the Soviet Union, Cuba, Japan, Australia, Canada, the United States, Italy, Puerto Rico and the United Arab Republic, teams which qualified previously.

Brazil plays the Netherlands, Yugoslavia faces Spain and Czechoslovakia meets Mexico in men's play today while the women's division opens final-round action with the U.S. against Cuba and Poland meeting Bulgaria.

CHICAGO (AP) — Owners of California Golden Seals and Kansas City Scouts were given permission Wednesday by the National Hockey League's board of governors to move their franchises.

SMITH SUFFERS

Brakes Can Force Breaks

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Maybe that brake failure is a sign of better things to come for Victoria race driver Roy Smith. It was for Portland's Ernie Stierly.

The brakes went on Smith's car, a 1976 Chevelle Mercury Marine Special owned by Dick Midgley, about halfway through Wednesday night's Winston Victoria 100 NASCA late-model race at Western Speedway.

Smith was in front at the time, having grabbed the pole position by virtue of setting a NASCAR track record of 17.55 seconds in the time trials.

But with his brakes gone, Smith was unable to hold off the other front-runners as first Stierly, then Chuck Bown of Portland and Chuck Wahl of Burbank Calif., passed him. He finished fourth in a field of 10 finishers at the end of the 100-lap run. Twelve had started.

Only other Victoria driver in the race was Terry Forsyth, who added several hundred pounds of lead to his 1975 Chevelle to make the minimum weight qualification and finished seventh.

Stierly, a 46-year-old campaigner who couldn't afford to start racing until he was past 30, got a perfect performance out of his '74 Chevelle to lap everybody but Bown, who was second three-quarters of a lap back.

It was a different story from Stierley's last outing.

That was Sunday afternoon in the Winston Evergreen 150 at Montroe, Wash., where he had the same experience as Smith. Running third with 20 laps to go, Stierly's brakes went and he had to drop out.

The Winston Western NASCAR show moves to Mermiston, Ore., Saturday where Stierly scored his first-ever grand national win last year.

A crowd of 1,940 faithful fans, some of whom waited up to three hours for rain to stop and the track to dry, were rewarded with some excellent driving. Smith was especially sharp in avoiding a T-bone during the five-lap fast heat when Bown spun in front of him on the last lap. Smith finished second to Stierly in that one.

Smith had to call on some quick reflexes again in the main event. Just after Stierly passed him on turn lap 41, Gary Johnson of Modesto, Calif., spun in front of the Victoria driver.

Ron Eaton, of Tacoma, a favorite here, had brake trouble early, made a couple of unscheduled pit stops and finally dropped out in the late stages.

The superstocks and hobby stocks return to Western Saturday night for a regular show with time trials at 7 and racing at 8. Billy Hitchcox has opened up a 321-point lead in the hobby driver standings but the superstock race is still close. Bob Collins has a 35-point lead over Bill Price.

MAIN EVENT (100 laps): Ernie Stierley, Portland; 2. Chuck Bown, Portland; 3. Chuck Wahl, Burbank, Calif.; 4. Roy Smith, Victoria; 5. Ron Gautsche, Truckey, Calif.

"A" DASH: 1. Stierley; 2. Smith; 3. Ron Eaton, Tacoma; 4. Bown.

"B" DASH: 1. Gautsche; 2. Len Francis, Bakersfield, Calif.; 3. Richard White, Escondido, Calif.; 4. Terry Wood, San Bernardino, Calif.

Colwood Gains

Royal Colwood made the biggest gain in the Vancouver Island Seniors Golf League Wednesday but league-leading Victoria Club still holds a handy 6½ point margin.

Meanwhile, Victoria was earning a 3-3 tie with Cedar Hill at Cedar Hill and Uplands was defeating Groge Vale 4-2 at Uplands.

Timbermen Pull Shocker

Nanaimo Timbermen upset Esquimalt Buccaneers 12-10 in Vancouver Island Junior "B" Lacrosse League action at Nanaimo Wednesday and may have killed the Buccaneers' chances for a first-place finish with the win.

The loss left Esquimalt five points behind first-place Saanich E. J. Hunters. Esquimalt has three games to play and Hunters four. Rick Sage led the Nanaimo onslaught for four goals. Charlie Randle had three. Geoff Whitney-Griffiths had five goals for Esquimalt. Darryl Dean and Bob Derraugh each had a pair.

Shamrocks Protest Penalty Time Goof

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Victoria Shamrocks may have lost another Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena Wednesday night, but they don't need to apologize for the 13-12 defeat they suffered at the hands of New Westminster Salmonbellies.

They got none the best of what they called shoddy refereeing; they lost two goals by a timing mixup on a New Westminster penalty in the first period; and, if it hadn't been for a goal post in the final seconds, the teams undoubtedly would have been forced into overtime which would have been a real shocker for the 'Bellies who at one time in the final period enjoyed a 13-6 lead.

That's correct! The Shamrocks scored the final six goals of the game and Ivan Thompson, who had scored two goals earlier, hit the goal post with New Westminster goalkeeper Joe Comeau beaten with what would have been the tying goal.

The refereeing issue came to a head because of what coach Nirmal Dillon called inefficiency. Team president Chris Randall said he had asked that Victoria be given different referees than Sid Lougheed and Dave Hutchings, whom they always get on the Island because the league doesn't want to spend the money to bring mainland referees here.

Dillon said that the lacrosse being played in the league this year is the finest it has ever been, but that the officials are spoiling it by inconsistent calls.

As it was, somebody certainly got mixed up in the penalty timing incident.

The Shamrocks blame the referees because the officials were told of the mistake and declined to do anything about it.

The Shamrocks have protested the game claiming the penalty scorekeeper allowed New Westminster players on the floor illegally. Commissioner Roy Burton will rule on the protest Sunday.

The confusion came about when New Westminster's Bill Mosdell was given a double penalty for roughing and the Shamrocks' Dennis Somner a single, two-minute penalty at 2:34. At this moment the Shamrocks asked for a measurement of Comeau's stick. It was a poorly-timed move because the stick qualified and the Rocks got a penalty which put them two men short and New Westminster one. Thompson then got a breakaway goal which was followed 20 seconds later by a power-play goal by New Westminster's Jim Johnston. Penalties to Norm Baker and Charn Dillon followed.

Meanwhile, Mosdell, whose penalty time wasn't due to expire until 6:34, somehow was back on the floor and it was after his return that Jan Magee scored at five minutes and Wayne Goss at 6:25 and both on power plays. This gave the Salmonbellies a 4-1 edge and all arguments by the Irish that Mosdell should still have been in the pentlty box were in vain.

After that beginning, the 'Bellies romped to an 8-2 lead by the end of the period.

The teams traded six goals in the second period and when Darryll McColl gave the Bellies that 13-6 lead at 5:42 of the third period and Mike Beaulac followed by drawing a penalty for the Shamrocks, the Irish, it seemed, were dead.

But not so. Thompson scored his second shorthanded goal at 7:08. Frank Alexander scored at 11:47. Chris Hall followed at 15:42. Baker scored on a high shot at 16:07 and Larry Bell almost brought down the meagre house of 1,367 eight seconds later when he made it 13-11. Dhillon then got the 12th Irish counter at 17:39, but try as they might, and they did have their chances, the Rocks just couldn't get the equalizer.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Bedwell Harbor on South Pender Island has had more than its share of the cruising and racing traffic this week.

This morning a huge flotilla of cruising-class boats set out from the marina on the first wind pennant race of the Pacific International Yachting Association's annual regatta. The race ends at Cadboro Bay. The racing continues Saturday and Sunday.

This year's regatta is being staged by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, but the racing is being split. One design and ¼-ton boats will have around-the-buoy racing in English Bay while the Royal Victoria Yacht Club is hosting the wind pennant races in our area for the cruising classes. Boats will be competing under both the International Offshore Rule and the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet ratings.

An unusual race ended in Bedwell Harbor on Thursday, when lovers of gaff-rigged boats raced from Sidney in the Great Gaffers Gambol. This is not thhe most serious group when it comes to racing but they have lots of fun.

The brief rules give a hint of the gaffers' attitude toward racing. According to Bob Leach, owner of the good ship Argo, "All contestants must use boats, motors and sails are allowed and the winners were the first ones anchoring off the rock face in Bedwell Harbor." Bob is on holiday so we'll have to wait until Argo gets back to find out how things went.

Talking of the unusual, the store at Bedwell is being run by Doris and Vivian Watton this summer and it's Doris who is responsible for the Mexican batik wall hangings that you see there.

A former active member of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, Doris has many tales to tell of her 30-day crossing from Mexico to Hawaii in a 50-foot sailboat. Her skill in batik she learned during the time she spent with the Mexican Indians.

Vivia, too, is an old hand at sailing, having crewed aboard a 32-foot motor sailor from Puerto Vallarta to Los Angeles.

CFSA Fireball sailor Rob Thompson teamed up with Tim Roots of RVYC to take part in the North American championships, held in San Francisco on the weekend. They placed 15th out of 39 crews, taking on some of the toughest competition on the continent.

Competition was keen, too, when CFSA held a long-distance race from Cadboro Bay to Roche Harbor on Saturday, the first five boats finishing with only 66 seconds between them. In order they were Paul Jensen's Dania, Ed Haines' Lotte, John Ellis' Isis of RVYC, Mike Weir's Filey Brigg and Robin Spear's Iguana. Close behind was Ned Ashe's Mint.

SHORT TACKS — There'll be lots of action for onshore watchers on Saturday with the Victoria-Maui race starting at 11 a.m. near Brotchie Ledge and the PIYA's wind pennant race beginning at the same time near Gonzales Point. Marine photographer Jim McVie will have to do some pretty speedy footwork because he intends to cover both starts. He's relying on a chartered speedboat to accomplish the seemingly impossible.

UTLEY TO TI-CATS

HAMILTON (CP) — Short on Canadian depth, Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League have added seven non-imports cut by other teams.

The group includes guard Brian Utley of Victoria, who performed last season with the University of Saskatchewan and was a late cut of Toronto Argonauts.

Prosecutors Still Winless In Contests Against NHL

TORONTO (UPI) — Through three rounds of the ongoing war between criminal justice authorities and the National Hockey League, the score stands NHL 3, Prosecutors 0.

The latest setback for the authorities came Wednesday night in Toronto, where an eight-woman, four-man jury returned a not-guilty verdict in the assault trial of Detroit Red Wing Dan Maloney.

The prosecution said it would appeal, but even if that bid fails it will get another crack at the NHL later this year when three Philadelphia Flyers answer charges stemming from a brawl at Maple Leaf Gardens during last season's playoff.

The Flyers' Don Saleski, Joe Watson and Mel Bridgman are scheduled for a preliminary hearing in September.

The Maloney case was decided at a time when the public is acutely aware of the controversy surrounding the violent aspects of hockey.

The jury, in rendering its verdict after nine hours of deliberations, made it quite clear that it did not approve of violent conduct on the ice.

While acquitting Maloney of assault causing bodily harm to Toronto Maple Leaf Brian Glennie in an NHL game here last November 5, the jury released a statement that read: "While our verdict was based on the evidence and the law, we are unanimous in the feeling that these actions are not condoned by us.

We hope these actions do not continue in the future."

Maloney, 25, of Barrie, Ont., lesson" from the six-day trial, but didn't say what that lesson was.

He did say, however, he would continue to play woth the same aggressive style that has earned him a reputation as one of the league's toughest players.

The charges against Maloney were brought a day after his Maple Leaf Gardens run-in with Glennie and within a week after Ontario attorney-general Roy McMurtry vowed to prosecute violent acts on the ice.

McMurtry said, after the verdict, he hoped the NHL would take a lesson from the trial and take the initiative in policing its own games. If it didn't he said, charges would continue to be brought where appropriate.

The Maloney trial was the third against an NHL player in the league's 59-year history.

In 1969, the late Wayne Maki was acquitted by an Ottawa jury for an alleged assault on Boston Bruin Ted Green. Last year, Bruin Dave Forbes had similar charges against him dropped after a Minneapolis jury failed to reach a verdict.

Cloth Talk

Have you ever felt frustrated because the exact style of suit or jacket you wanted was not available in town? Considering the thousands of styling options this should not be surprising. When that happens you should consider designing your own look with a made to measure garment. If for example, you wanted a tweed suit with a distinctive English country look you might wish to create a unique jacket with various features.

These could include either a bi swing or an inverted pleat back with a half belt. The pocket could be envelope flapped or patch with button and either inverted pleated or bellows style. The collar could have a button tab. You may even add a gun patch on the shoulder.

One criticism of the conventional blazer is its plain appearance. If choosing the standard wool-polyester blazer you could dress it up with contrasting stiching in front or around pockets. You could also add a colour coordinated panel in pockets.

These options need not increase the cost of the garment and will immeasureably increase your wearing pleasure. They are worthy of your consideration.

Cricketers Leave For Overseas

The team, captained by Mike Cochran, will return July 23.

Twelve matches are scheduled for the 16-player Island team, the first Victoria Association side to make an overseas tour.

Tag-Team Bout

John Tolos and Carlos Rocha will try to take the Canadian tag-team title from John Quinn and Kinji Shibuya in the feature bout of a professional wrestling card Thursday at Memorial Arena.

First of four supporting bouts, which include a match-up between Don Leo Jonathan and Buck Ramstad, get underway at 8 p.m.

"IS THIS ANY WAY TO TREAT THE ONLY KID YA GOT?"

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

This past spring, Adam Meredith, of Great Britain, passed away. "Adam Meredith" was never a household word, but his peers acknowledged him to be a "class" player. In the Official Encyclopedia of Bridge, Meredith is described as ". . . one of the greatest players of the world, noted especially for his skill in the play of the cards."

An example of his skill in playing can be observed in today's deal, which arouse in a United States championship event. He was occupying the South seat.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

North's two-club response was the initiation of the Stayman Convention. When South showed his heart suit, North, holding 10 high-card points, raised to game in hearts.

West's opening lead of the spade king was taken by Meredith's ace. He next led a trump to dummy's king, after which he played a club. When East followed with a low club, South put up his king. He then cashed the queen and ace of trumps, gathering in the opponents' pieces.

Another club was now led off dummy, and East put up his ace. East returned a club to South's queen. Meredith now stopped to take inventory.

Based on East's failure to play back a spade, it was obvious that East had no more spades. Thus West was known to have started with six spades. West had also followed suit to two rounds of trumps and three clubs. Hence West had, at most, two diamonds (he might have had the 13th club, in which case he would have had only one diamond).

So, after winning his club queen, Meredith cashed the king and ace of diamonds. West following suit to both leads, thus making his hand an open book. Declarer then led a spade, West taking his jack and queen. Having nothing remaining in his hand but spades, West was end-played by being forced to lead a spade.

On the spade lead dummy ruffed with its remaining trump, while on this trick Meredith discarded his losing diamond. And that was that.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Persistence, "investigative reporting" will pay dividends. Older person does want you to succeed — despite outward appearances. Partner, mate is involved. Money is spotlighted — including taxes, leases, investments which require review and a double check.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on partnership, publicity, permanent ties, marriage. Legal papers could be very much a part of picture. Key is lie low, to avoid antagonizing one who has "big guns." Aries, Libra play roles of significance.

IF JULY 3rd IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have ingratiating manner, good sense of humor, a ravenous appetite; you're artistic, fond of travel, draw to you Gemini, Sagittarius persons. Domestic adjustment this year could include actual change of residence. November is a good "money month." In August, a romantic interlude helps lend spice to your life.

Today we have a Magic Square.

It's a sequence of positive consecutive numbers in checkerboard style formation, arranged so that each row, each column, and each of the two diagonals adds up to the same magic total.

The central position in our square is occupied by 73, and the greatest number in our square is occupied by 73, and the greatest number in the sequence is about double the smallest.

What must be those smallest and greatest numbers?

Guard Denies Using 'Death Gun'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Albert Hollinger, the B.C. Penitentiary guard accused by two prisoners of shooting prison classification officer Mary Steinhauser, told an inquest Wednesday he shot at the face of prisoner Andy Bruce because he saw a knife in Bruce's hand moving toward Miss Steinhauser.

Hollinger, testifying at the inquest into the death of Miss Steinhauser, said he fired his weapon three times during the dramatic final moments of the 41-hour hostage ordeal at the maximum security prison last June.

The testimony came during the afternoon session of the 15th day of the inquest into the death of Miss Steinhauser, who was killeed when struck by a bullet as six members of a prison tactical squad rushed a prison classification vault where Miss Steinhauser and 14 other prison workers were being held by prisoners Bruce, Dwight Lucas and Claire Wilson.

During his testimony, Hollinger also denied using the so-called "death gun", a .38-calibre revolver with a lanyard ring on the butt.

He told the inquest that the first of his three shots was aimed at Lucas. He said he then aimed and fired at the right side of Bruce who was holding Miss Steinhauser.

Hollinger said Bruce's arm shot into the air exposing his head and right side.

He said he then took careful aim at Bruce's face and shoot a third time.

He said Bruce's face exploded in blood and that the prisoner dropped behind a couch holding Miss Steinhauser.

Hollinger told Coroner Doug Jack and the seven-member jury that he shot a third time at Bruce because he saw the knife in the prisoner's hand start downward toward Miss Steinhauser's body.

In earlier testimony, both Bruce and Lucas said a shot from a pistol held by Hollinger struck Miss Steinhauser during the tactical squad's assault.

Hollinger denied using the revolver with a lanyard ring on the butt during the shooting.

Earlier testimony by a ballistics expert pinpointed a .38-calibre revolver with such a ring as the weapon that fired the slug that killed Miss Steinhauser.

Five members of the six-member tactical squad, including Hollinger, have testified and none has admitted using that weapon.

Hollinger testified that he used a .38-calibre revolver with a four-inch barrel and that it did not have a lanyard ring.

He said that when the assault ended he collected weapons from two other guards in the tactical squad and locked them in separate rooms.

He said he did not see the so-called "death gun."

Life Prison Term For Pub Killings

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Dennis Squire Hailes has been sentenced to life imprisonment for a shooting spree in a Burnaby hotel beer parlor last November which killed two men.

Bartender Dean Jones was killed the night of the shooting and Harvey Hogarth, the beer parlor manager, died two months later from wounds received in the shooting.

BCR, UNIONS COME TO TERMS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three British Columbia Railway unions signed collective agreements with the provincially-owned railway Wednesday after resolving outstanding issues which earlier had shut down service for extended periods.

The International Union of Operating Engineers, the Teamsters Union and the employees signed the agreements after the railway agreed to pay retroactive pay as soon as possible.

Jack Whitaker, chairman of the Joint Council of Railway Unions, said the council is optimistic that the Anti-Inflation Board will uphold the settlement, which contains wage increases of up to 59 per cent over two years.

DISCIPLINARY HEARING ON ALCAN 31 TUESDAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board will hold a hearing Tuesday in Terrace on applications related to disciplinary action by the Aluminum Company of Canada (Alcan) against 31 of its employees.

Board vice-chairman Ed Peck said Wednesday that one of the applications is by Alcan seeking to be relieved from an undertaking it gave not to discipline any of its employees who participated in an illegal strike of nearly three weeks against Alcana Kitimat.

The second application is by the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers (CASAW) claiming that the company ought to be held in violation of its undertaking because it failed to put 31 workers back on the job when the strike ended June 21.

Under subsequent interim order of the board, the 31 employees have been put back, on salary by the company, said Peck, but are not being put to work, pending the outcome of the hearing Tuesday.

Meanwhile in B.C. Supreme Court on Wednesday, Mr. Justice H. E. Hutcheon agreed to postpone until Sept. 13 contempt proceedings agains the union and 12 of its members.

The contempt action arises from refusal of the union to obey a board order, backed by the supreme court, to cease illegal picketing. Lawyers for both the company and the union agreed to the adjournment.

About 1,800 members of CASAW walked off the job in an attempt to get the company to re-open negotiations on a contract approved earlier this year.

The union settled for an eight-per-cent increase this year to comply with federal Anti-Inflation Board guidelines, but after other unions received higher settlements, members became disgruntled.

Error Freed Wanted Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herbert Handy, 55, of Richmond, wanted for a double murder, was arrested Wednesday on a city street after he walked out of prison a free man Monday.

Handy was released from the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre despite police having a warrant for his arrest.

'We missed him," said Sergeant Sam Andrews, head of the homicide squad.

Handy was sought for the double slaying of Robert Bowness, 28, and Frances Mable Doran, 22, both of Richmond.

Teengia Andrews, 45, Handy's common-law wife, had been charged with the double murder, but was acquitted recently. Evidence was given during the trial that another person did the slaying.

Handy had been charged with threatenting the life of a Crown witness, Lily Sumi, during the trial. Mrs. Sumi testified that Handy told her he did the slaying.

New Court System

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial courts in Vancouver are changing their systems of scheduling criminal cases in order to speed up the judicial process. Judge Darrell Jones said Wednesday the system, which begins Monday, should further cut the backlog of cases that now stands at 3,300. The backlog of cases before the courts has been reduced considerably from the 5,700 of a year ago, however Judge Jones said he would like to see it reduced to less than 2,000. Main change is that the date for trail and scheduling of the case will be done by the judge in his trial court.

Truck Crash Probe

NEW DENVER (CP) — An inquest has been ordered into the death of Robert Maxinuk, 17, of New Denver, killed Wednesday when a British Columbia Forest Service truck went off a mountain access road. Seven youths aged 16 to 21 were in the truck when it left the road and struck a tree near this West Kootenay community. All were summer employees of the forest service and all were from New Denver.

Paperworkers Sign

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A new master agreement has been signed between the Pulp and Paper Relations Bureau and 18 locals of the Canadian Paperworkers Union, bureau spokesman Dave Reid said Wednesday. He said all local issues were resolved and member companies were instructed to implement the terms of a two-year contract which was first negotiated with the union in December of last year.

Child Abuse Theory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Easing immigration laws to allow less-skilled workers into Canada may be a cause for increased child abuse, a speaker told the Canadian Pediatric Society's annual meeting. Dr. Katerina Haka-Ikse of Toronto said Wednesday that a study of West Indian immigrants shows the detrimental effect when a child is separated from his family while his parents find a suitable job and accommodation in the new country.

The less skilled the worker the harder it is to find employment and the longer the separation time, she said. Consequently some of the children are often left with grandparents or other relatives in their mother country from $1\frac{1}{2}$ to $6\frac{1}{2}$ years.

When the child eventually rejoins his parents, the parents may find him different.

CP Air Pilots Would Fly But Not Through Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — The hearing for three CP Air pilots charged with contempt of court after they refused to fly over Canada during the controllers' dispute resumes today.

The Hearing adjourned Wednesday for the Dominion Day holiday.

Second Officer Herbert Creasy testified Wednesday that he did not withdraw his services last week in defiance of a federal court injunction ordering members of the Canadian Air Line Pilopts Association (CALPA) to stay on the job.

"I didn't withdraw my services," said Herbert Creasy. "I had them withdrawn for me."

The proceedings arose out of the dispute between the federal government and Canadian Air Traffic Controllers over the use of bilingual air communications in Quebec.

CALPA threatened a work stoppage June 21 because of what it considered unsafe flying conditions arising from the dispute. However, three airlines including CP obtained a federal court injunction in Ottawa specifically banning such action.

The injunction was issued a week ago Monday and the three CP Air pilots are facing the contempt proceedings because they refused to take a flight later that day from Vancouver to Prestwick over Canada.

The defendants are, Captian Norman Landry, first officer Randy Dillon and Creasy. They have all told Mr. Justice Frank Collier of the Federal Court of Canada that they were prepared to take the Prestwick flight but not via the routing designated by CP Air.

Mr. Justice Collier has heard evidence that Landry proposed taking the flight from Seattle to Bangor, Maine, and on to Prestwick, or from Seattle to Prestwick via Anchorage.

Creasy testified he was on reserve duty on June 21 and reported for the Prestwick flight when contacted at his home by CP Air that afternoon.

He said he arrived at his decision not to take the flight from Vancouver via Canadian airspace when the CP Air operations vice-president, Captain William Rocksborough, was unable to give the three crewmen a guarantee that there would be no further disruptions of air traffic control.

Creasy said that at no time did he withdraw his services. He said he and the other two crewmen were suspended after announcing their decision.

Dillon testified that he would have gone on the flight if Rocksborough or the federal transport ministry had been able to guarantee stable air traffic control conditions for the duration of the flight.

Dillon referred to numerous transport ministry notices to airmen prior to June 21 giving details of air traffic control disruptions at various locations across Canada.

Channel Isle Hops Into 20th Century

By PAUL IREDALE

SARK, Channel Islands (Reuter) — This tiny bastion of feudalism has taken a delicate hop into the 20th century with a decision to examine the implications of legalizing divorce.

But like all things in Sark, where motor cars are banned and the speediest means of transport is by pony and trap, the examination will be slow and thorough and the introduction of a divorce law in the island's Chief Pleas Parliament is still only a distant possibility.

A three-member committee set up last month will study how divorce will affect the island's ancient inheritance laws, where property passes from eldest son to eldest son. They will report their findings to the Chief Pleas later this year.

Although divorces, obtained outside the island have been recognized in Sark for some years, there will be a good deal of opposition from the island's 550 inhabitants to instituting local divorces.

"It will just mean the end of another of our feudal laws, and we've got few enough of them left," said Lilian Baker, an elected member of the Chief Pleas. "People who come to the island and get married know what to expect."

The head of the divorce committee, and of almost any other committee set up in Sark, is a 48-year-old former guided-missile engineer, Michael Beaumont.

As seigneur of Sark, Beaumont is the island's feudal lord. He holds the island from the Queen under a 16th-century charter which he inherited from his grandmother Sibyl Hathaway, the Dame of Sark, who died two years ago.

"The present situation disadvantages the poor in Sark," Beaumont said. "The richer inhabitants can go elsewhere to get a divorce."

But he understands the fears of the inhabitants on an island where women were allowed only recently to own property and hold bank accounts.

"They resent being told how to do things. They resist change."

One reason behind the resistance to divorce in Sark is the fear that it will break up the hereditary 40 tenacies, which provide the foundation for the island's traditional way of life."

When the charter was granted to the first seigneur, Helier de Carteret, for "the 20th part of a knight's fee," a rental Beaumont still pays to the Queen, he had to promise to keep the island inhabited

De Carteret installed 40 men from his native island of Jersey as tenants. The island has since been divided into 40 tanancies, from which the seigneur can draw 40 armed men for the personal protection of the Queen, another condition of his holding the island.

Under Sark law, these tenancies cannot be broken up and tenants are automatically entitled to a seat in the Chief Pleas. Noowadays the sale of the properties provides the seigneur with a major source income, since hegets a of 13th of the price at which they change hands.

which gives him access to all property on the two-square-mile island, mineral rights and ownership of the foreshore, Beaumont says the seigneur no longer has a great deal of power on Sark.

"I look upon myself as a coordinator to make sure that everything is running smoothly, an arbitrator and a source of information and contact with the outside world," he said.

His "political" power on the island consists of his right of appointing Sark's four officials, a single vote in the Chief Pleas and the right of temporar yveto over any decision it makes.

Zoning Overhaul Outlined

A proposed new zoning bylaw for North Saanich which produced two evenings of lively public hearings last week will likely be two months being overhauled by council, says Mayor Paul Grieve.

The bylaw draft, which would consolidate numerous zone changes made in recent years as well as introduce some controversial new ones, was passed to council's community planning committee Monday night. Grieve said he believes there is general agreement among aldermen that a number of amendments are needed.

Among these are likely to be changes related to a proposed new seven-acre minimum lot size in rural areas, a proposal which drew the majority of protests at the public hearing.

The mayor said there is no plan to change the intent, that of preserving the community's rural land, but what may be needeed is a "transition zone" between rural and residential areas where lot limits are not so strict.

The new bylaw will also attempt to deal with a variety of relatively minor anomalies which came to light at the hearing as well as cope with ancient subdivision plans which would permit lots with frontage as small as 50 feet.

U.K. Pensions Shrinking

TORONTO (CP) — British pensioners living in Canada are facing financial difficulties because of the devaluation of the British pound coupled with rising inflation.

One example is Peggy Boyle, 68, who cleans houses two days a week to supplement her $40-amonth British pension. That pension was worth more than $62 a month when she came to Toronto from Scotland four years ago.

Adding to the problem for the British pensioners is a tightening of qualifications for assistance. There is a 10-year residency requirement for both Ontario and federal schemes.

The income supplements used to be available after five years—a fact that many pensioners looked forward to—but on April 7 the Ontario government changed the eligibility requirement to 10 years of residence.

The decreasing value of the pound isn't the only thing hurting British pensioners. Many are upset because current increases in British pensions don't apply to people living in Canada.

Most immigrants from Britain receive only the pension benefits that were in force on the day they left, while their fellow-countrymen get small increases to help keep up with inflation and compensate for the falling pound.

HIGHS, LOWS IN WATER BOMBING

atikokan, Ont. (CP) — Water-bomber pilots lead a precarious existence.

"But it's like anything," says Gene McCauly, who has been flying a water bomber for the Ontario ministry of natural resources for seven years.

"If you have engine failure or if you get a little bit foolish, then you're in trouble. You have to think of safety first."

To be tffective in controlling forest fires, the planes have to fly low — usually about 20 feet above tree level. Turbulence from the heat of the fortst fire and accompanying winds can pick the aircraft up or drop it into the treetops.

On a single-engine aircraft, engine failure can me almost certain death.

The bomber flies ahead of the flames to dampen the ground and prevent the fire from spreading.

Under ministry policy, Mr. McCauly says, the pilots fly their missions alone. They alone decide whether to bomb a fire, since it is their saftty that is at stake.

"The ministry has a high standard of hiring pilots. You have to have at least 3,000 hours of flying o nfloats and then they train you in bombing."

But ground crews fighting the fires also share ih the danger.

Then in the floats of a bomber weighs about 11 pounds a gallon, and the plane drops more than four tons of water on each trip. That's enough weight to break off tree-tops and send them crashing on top of ground crews.

Mr. McCauly said the Twin Otter aircraft he operates works on a float probe operated by hydraulic pressure.

"You lahd on the lake and high-speed taxi. The pressure forces the probe down, and it automatically opens the floats which fill up in about 10 seconds.

"The doors close when the tanks are full and a chemical to thicken the water and produce a better drop flows into the water from a tank on the float."

The pilot hits a button in the cockpit when it is on target, emptying the floats.

The ministry has four types of bomber: tht single-engine Turbo Beaver which holds 90 gallons of water, the standard Otter single engine which holds 270 gallons, the 500-gallon Twin Otter, and ground trackers which fly only out of airports and dry dry chemicals.

Artist's Widow Had a 'Vision' Somehow Managed to Adjust

When Victoria artist Stephen Lowe died last October at age 37, his wife Eunice had to learn to cope without her helpful, loving husband.

"He was so kind and loving, he would have liked to do everything for me," the soft-spoken Mrs. Lowe said in an interview. "Life has been very difficult without Stephen, but I am learning to adjust."

The adjustments have been big ones. To start, she had never driven a car and was therefore stranded in the family home far from the centre of town. To carry on the operation of the Stephen Lowe Art gallery in the Empress Hotel on Humboldt Street and to jockey the three Lowe children to school and music lessons, she got her driver's licence.

After the artist died there were many who thought that for Eunice to both raise a family and run a business single-handedly would be very difficult — and that the gallery would surely close.

On the contrary, however, sh has kept the gallery open and provided for Stephen's father as well as for Anna, 15; David, 13 and 11-year-old Theresa.

"She has this vision — a good one for her — of bringing Stephen's work to many, many more people and keeping it alive in Victoria and wherever he is known," says a woman friend of the artist's family.

Over the last few years, Stephen set aside many paintings which he intended to have mounted at some later time. Mrs. Lowe has now had most of these silk-mounted this spring in Hong Kong and it is these paintings and several larger ones which she plans to use for future exhibitions. For those who seek his works, she is having a high-quality memorial portfolio printed with some of the best paintings of Stephen's. For some time Stephen had intended to have prints and greeting cards prepared from some of his paintings. Eunice is now carrying out his intentions and hopes to have greeting cards available by the late summer.

But the biggest monument to Stephen Lowe and his brilliant watercolors is the 72-page memorial volume contining 60 paintings in full color, prepared by his widow and scheduled for publishing sometime in August. The richly-bound hardcover book, entitled The Art of Stephen Lowe, will contain a brief life story of the artist as well as tributes from around the world. Most works in the book hang in public galleries and in private collections in many parts of the world. Eunice Lowe is most grateful to the many, many friends who helped make this memorial book possible.

To keep the studio in operation, Mrs. Lowe is bringing in new artists through the works of Mark K. Simmons, a landscape watercolorist from the west coast, and several well-known Chinese artists. In addition, the gallery has various types of Chinese art objects.

SHE CALLS THE SHOTS

family

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — For 25 years, Orphie Easson of St. Catharines, Ont., has been calling square dances — and she is still one of the few women in the buisness.

A square-dancer all her life, Mrs. Easson began to call when she became involved in recreation leadership, first in rural organizations, then in the old community programs branch of the Ontario department of education.

Working in the office, she branched out into games and singing leadership as a hobby.

Then she began calling simple dances she could remember. Without having been taught, she began to teach people to call.

"I seemed to remember every square-dance call I ever heard as a child," she said in an interview.

After her husband's death four years ago, she increased her work load. What began as a hobby developed into almost a full-time job.

In fall and winter she calls five or six times a week, mostly evenings, besides teaching square dancing in some St. Catharines high schools, and calling for a senior citizens' afternoon group.

In summer, she works at a square-dancing course in New York state. She travels in Ontario and neighboring states and has attended festivals and conventions in Australia, New Zealand, Hawaii, England and continental Euorpe.

She does all the basic types of calling: The singing call calling to the tune, the patter or hoedown call like a auctioneer and calling for round dances.

When she isn't calling, Mrs. Easson likes to dance "every time anyone asks me." It was only after her husband's death that she realized how much square dancing was geared to couples. It was a shock to find herself so engrossed in an activity where there was so little room for singles.

Every year she hears from women who want to square dance. It is a problem she would like to solve.

DON'T GET BURNED IN BUYING LOTION

By LYNNE GORDON

caveat emptor

Is it true that sun tan preparations help to promote as fast a tan as their labels claim?

"Well, I don't think there's anything deceptive about that claim," says Dr. Bruce Smith, cosmetic specialist with the federal Health Protection Branch. "It's true to the degree that sun tan preparations allow you to stay out in the sun longer and the only way to get a tan is to stay out in the sun."

Dr. Smith explains that sun tan lotions and oils supplement your ability to cope with the sun and its different rays. Sun rays of a certain wave-length activate the color-producing cells of your body. Rays of another wave-length cause burning. The function of the sun tan preparation is to screen out the burning rays, while allowing the rays that activate color-producing cells to get through.

How much tan you get depends not on the sun tan preparation, but on the ability of your body to produce color.

Whether you burn — and how badly — again depends on your body chemistry and common sense in how long you stay out in the sun. The sun tan preparation screens out some of the burning rays, thus allowing you to stay out in the sun longer than you would without it, but it does not block out all the burning rays.

"Products that block out the sun's rays entirely are not screens at all but "blocking agents. These are a pharmaceutical product, rather than a cosmetic," Dr. Smith says. "In fact, most people would find them totally unsatisfactory, because they wouldn't tan either."

There is nothing on the label of such blocking agents claiming that it will help you get a tan.

There are no regulations in respect to labelling of sun tan products as such, Dr. Smith explains. What apears on the label is in effect a "sales promotion" but you can tell by that information what the product is likely to do. The way you do this is to see what area — fast tanning or protection — is emphasized on the label.

There really aren't discreet types of sun tan preparations, Dr. Smith says. All of them are capable of performing the job, which is to provide enough protection to allow you to stay outside in the sun longer and thus develop a tan. The major difference in products is in "cosmetic elegance. Not just what it does, but whether you like the feel or the smell of the product."

For example, how does it spread on? Thick or thin? Most people don't like a thick film but its likely to have a greater screening ability and provide more protection when swimming or perspiring.

Labels on most sun tan preparations recommend that you "begin with short periods of sun exposure. Lengthen as skin becomes conditioned to the sun." This again points out the importance of the body developing its own natural protection, which it does by the build up of melanin in the skin as the skin is exposed.

A sun tan preparation is merely a lubricant with a sun screening agent. It is, Dr. Smith says, "a self-manufactured need. You wouldn't need a sun screen if you were sunning in an orderly fashion in the early spring starting with 20 minutes the first day and slowly increasing the period of time. This would provide the necessary natural protection for later warmer summer days."

It isn't possible or convenient for most of us to go out everyday throughout spring and early summer to develop the "protection". Most of us don't see much of the sun except on long weekends and our first long term exposure is often during our summer holidays. This is where sun tan preparations fill a need — they protect you while you develop the natural protection of your own and allow you to take advantage of more hours in the sun during those precious "days off".

Many dermotologist believe that "burning yourself to a fashionable crisp" every summer will make you look older before your time. Is this really the case?

Dr. Smith says that there is statistical evidence to indicate that this may be the case but he doesn't think it can be proven.

Panic Button Pushed Over Flu

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

The threat that next winter might be the occasion of a 1918-style influenza epidemic has gentrated concern among public-health officials, controversy among virologists and panic-button appropriations by politicians who know an election year when they see one.

The concern has come about because, for the first time in the history of the study of influenza viruses, human-to-human transmission has been demonstrated of a virus normally confined to swine. The swine influenza virus has been known to spread from swine to man but never before from human being to human being.

In the Fort Dix, New Jersey, army base, 11 cases of swine type A influenza have been reported. More important, blood studies among 308 of the personnel have demonstrated antibodies to the virus in 68 of them — a clear indication of exposure to the virus.

A virus very similar to this swine influenza virus is believed to have been the causative agent of the flu epidemic of 1918-1919. It resulted in 200,000,000 cases of illness around the world and 20,000,000 deaths, about half a million of them in the United States.

The reason for believing that the 1918 "killer flu" virus was closely related to the modern swine virus is because many people still living who were exposed to the 1918-1919 virus have antibodies in their bloodstream which are active against swine influenza virus. This indication of exposure is much less prevalent in people born after 1924.

There is uncertainty as to whether the deaths in the 1918-1919 epidemic, especially among people between 15 and 50, were due to virus pneumonia, or to superimposed secondary pneumococcus, streptococcus or staphylococcus bacterial pneumonia. The latter, if it were to occur today, should respond to antibiotics not then available.

All in all, highly suggestive circumstances relate the emergence of modern swine influenza viruses to the possibility of a highly virulent epidemic in the making. For that reason, Dr, Fred W. Davenport of the University of Michigan School of Public Health, an expert in virology, is among those who have recommended a crash program beginning now to develop enough swine influenza vaccine to immunize the public and thus abort the epidemic.

The question of whether or not to push on with broad scale vaccine production is now under study at the National Institute for Allergy and the Federal Drug Ad-Washington, the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta and the Federal Drug Ad ministration. Vaccine manufacturers have been alerted and are said to have already received samples of the virus in order to be ready if needed.

State health departments, the Department of Defence and the World Health Organization have been asked to start the difficult task of laboratory screening for the presence of virus in suspected cases.

The object is to determine whether or not seeding of the population with the swine virus is now going on. Only time and much study will tell.

If the news is bad, this time, unlike the situation in 1918, the experts are determined to prevent the epidemic before it gets under way.

Former Minister Dies in Russia

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Former Soviet foreign trade minister Pavel Kumykin has died after a long illness, Tass news agency reported Thursday. He was 75. Kumykin was foreign trade minister from 1951 to 1953 and subsequently was made a deputy minister as a result of a reorganization of the ministry. He remained in this post until 1969 when he became counsellor to the current minister, Nikolai Patolichev.

Dirty Movies Shown At Card Party

DEAR ABBY: For five years, four of us couples have met once a nonth to play cards. Well, last month one of the men brought a movie projector and all the gear, plus some dirty movies he had rented, and proceeded to show a filthy movie!

Two of the men were all for seeing these movies, but their wives were not.

I stopped the idiot as soon as I realized what kind of "entertainment" he had brought to the card club.

Abby, I think the people who make such filth should be burned at the stake, and the nuts who buy them should be locked in institutions.

Awaiting your reply. Sign me—SICK O FFILTH.

DEAR SICK: Filth doesn't bother me unless it intrudes upon my right to avoid it. However, I am opposed to burning and incarcerating those whose taste in entertainment differs from mine.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were recently invited to dinner at the home of another couple. The invitation was for 8 p.m.

We arrived promptly and were fed cocktails and chips and dips for what seemed to be and eternity. Finally dinner was announced at 10:30.

"Dinner consisted of raw meatballs, sausages and shrimp that we had to cook in a fondue. Nothing would cook properly. Everything was charred on the outside and raw on the inside.

After "dinner" everyone retired to the living room. My husband and I left exactly 11 minutes after eating.

We were both sick that night. Should we let our hostess know that we were sick? Must I send a "thank-you" note for such a poor excuse for a dinner? Has anyone ever sent a "NO thank you" note? — SICK

DEAR SICK: Write a "thank-you" note anyway and don't mention your illness. And if this couple has nothing more than food for the stomach to offer, avoid future invitations to their place.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very best friend whom I love dearly. She and her husband have been best friends with my husband and me for many, many years, and they are in our home often. She is the sweetest lady I've ever known and would do anything in the world for me.

The problem is that she is a chain smoker. She talks with her hands and waves her cigarette around. She burns herself, my furniture, my carpets and my curtains. She lets the ashes fall all over the food when she's eating. Once she even set her dinner napkin on fire!

When she leaves, even though I air out the house, the smell of the smoke lingers in my draperies, the clothes I was wearing and even in my hair.

She knows how much cigarette smoke bothers me (and her husband hates them, too), but she absolutely cannot quit!

I can't tell my best friend not to smoke in my house. My husband says, "Nobody's perfect — you have to take the bad with the good."

Please be realistic, Abby. Is there a solution? — SMOKED OUT.

DEAR SMOKED: When she arrives, hand her a LARGE ashtray and ask her to please be careful with her cigarettes. If she gets careless, remind her. Also, place two or three dishes of vinegar wherever she is. The vinegar will help to absorb the cigarette odor. And lastly, pray for her.

SUPPORT YOUR TOMATOES

Nature works in wise, wonderous and — sometimes —

Natur works in wise, wonderous and — sometimes — seemingly contradictory ways: Experienced gardeners, for instance, know that very late tomato plants bear longer, more and better when allowed to spraddle out close to the warm, mulched ground where first frosts can't hurt them. The same gardeners have also learned that tomato vines in a summer vegetable patch generally produce better fruit when staked up off the ground away from dampness, mold and bugs. Smart growers, then, heavily mulch their late tomatoes and let 'em run . . . but take the time to build a trellis for their summer "love fruit" plants to climb.

The accompanying illustration shows one way to keep your July and August tomatoes off the ground (and away from the crickets) while allowing the vines to spread and receive full benefit of the sun.

Set short, sturdy posts in pairs (one on each side of a tomato row) at eight-foot intervals. Cut 1"x4" boards to length and nail one across each pair of posts. Then stretch and tack a 12-inch-wide strip of poultry wire from support to support down each side of the row. One caution: do be sure to leave enough space between the two strips of chicken wire for the tomato plants to grow up through!

Toll Reaches 8

TIVOLI, Italy (AP) — The death toll in a head-on collision of two commuter buses near this town east of Rome on Wednesday has risen to eight, police reported Thursday. Police said 60 other persons were injured, some of them seriously.

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel: I have a Coleus plant which recently lost all its purplish color. Is there anything I can do to bring it back? I give it direct sunlight and water it frequently. — P.S.

Dear P.S.: What about food? In order to keep its vibrant color, Coleus must be fed an acid-base food during the growth period, spring through summer. Unfortunately, it isn't likely that the leaves which have already lost their color will ever get it back, but perhaps the new growth will come up purple and then you'll have a really lovely plant of both colors. One of the basic truths about house plants is that once leaves turn yellow or brown, or develop black or brown spots (Dracaenas, rubber trees, prayer plants and philodendrons are among the most common with this characteristic), they will never return to their original hue. It is best to trim them as they turn and then finally cut them off altogether, because they only use up energy when allowed to remain on the plant. As for a Coleus or wandering Jew, or perhaps even a Pothos that loses its color, as long as it continues to grow and stay healthy, there's no need to do anything except hope it stays healthy, though colorless, the rest of its life.

Critics Attack Alcohol Study

United Press International

It's a rosy thought, the suggestion that some recovered alcoholics may be able to drink "socially," but alcoholics and treatment experts say it doesn't work — and leads to disastrous drinking, even death.

Recovered alcoholics, treatment leaders and doctors interviewed across the country by United Press International lambasted a Rand Corporation "think tank" study which said, "we must entertain the possibility of normal drinking for some alcoholics."

Alcoholics Anonymous has a tradition of avoiding controversy but a spokesman in New York said, "some people will now have an excuse not to seek treatment and a few may die."

Television personality Garry Moore said it's great to make tests but the results are indefinite and "it will damn near be certain death for a lot of people who read the report and went back to drinking."

A long list of critics said alcoholism is a disease, an alcoholic must stop drinking entirely to arrest it and he must live a new life of sobriety "one day at a time" the rest of his life — aware that even one drink will tumble him back where he started.

The Rand report from Santa Monica, Calif., June 9, said there is no way to tell which alcoholics might safely drink and in "no way" does it recommend recovered alcoholics resume drinking, especially anyone with "irreversable physical complications due to alcohol."

But it said a study of 1,340 treated alcoholics who returned to "normal drinking" had no higher ratte of relapse (return to uncontrolled drinking) than those who abstained.

Dr. William Madsen, Santa Barbara anthropologist, said, "they've been trying to teach alcoholics to drink for 300 years. It won't work."

The National Council on Alcoholism and the American Medical Association's committee on alcoholism said simply in a joint statement:

"Abstinance from alcohol is necessary for recovery from the disease of alcoholism."

Rep. Wilbur Mills (D—Ark.) a recovered alcoholic, said perhaps the study "confused alcoholics with heavy drinkers without recognizing the difference; a heavy drinker's drinking can be controlled but the only way alcoholism can be cured is through abstinence."

Dr. Nicholas Pace, assistant professor at the New York School of Medicine, said two of his patients, a corporate executive and a professional woman, have resumed drinking since the Rand report came out and "it upsets me like hell."

"This is the worst thing that can happen to an alcoholic. Now it's only a little wine or beer. Later it will be more and harder stuff. I've never seen an alcoholic be able to drink socially."

Pace said the executive's liver is "markedly sensitive to alcohol."

"You can't teach a sick liver to drink again," he said.

Dr. Daniel J. Andersen, head of Hazelden, a pioneer treatment centre near Center City, Minn., said it would be "almost criminal to look upon this unreplicated study as representative of typical alcoholic behavior following treatment."

Dr. Frank Herzlin, medical director of Freeport Hospital on Long Island, said there is an "unbelievable increase in relapses when such stories come out" and those who try it "inevitably fall on their face."

Dr. Barbara McCrady, psychologist at Butler Hospital in Providence, R.I., said she's had a few young patients who appeared to be alcoholics who resumed "social drinking" but called them "rare."

Actress Jan Clayton said the Rand report could cause a "terrible setback" for alcoholics "but there may be a good side to it:"

"At least it's caused people to talk more about alcoholism," she said, "and that's a plus."

Can Bill Canned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate has soundly defeated a proposal to force an end to throwaway cans and bottles for soft drinks and beer by imposing a tax on such containers.

The move, backed by Sen. Mark Hatfield (Rep. — Ore.) in whose state a similar law has existed since 1972, went down on a 60-26 vote. It was the first time in four years of debate that either body of Congress has taken a vote on the issue.

During the debate, Sen. Jennings Randolph (Dem. — W. Va.) cited opposition from the AFL-CIO, which claimed jobs would be lost, and Sen. Gaylord Nelson (Dem. — Wis.) said there were too many unanswered questions. He said the questions should be addressed by a Federal Energy Administration study now under way before the Senate decides the issue.

The proposal would have imposed a five-cent tax on all beer and soft drink throwaways, to be phased in during a five-year period. The measure would also have banned, effective in one year, the "flip top" opener for cans.

"What we're trying to accomplish here is a return to sensible containers," Hatfield told the senate. "Solid waste is quickly becoming the premier environmental issue."

He said throwaway containters now account for 79 per cent of all beer sold and two-thirds of all soft drinks.

But Nelson said "the unanswered questions are much greater than the answered ... there is no way this issue can be discussed on the floor of the senate in less than eight or ten hours," he added, criticizing the 30 minutes allotted for debate on the issue.

BREAST FEEDING MAY BE ANSWER

TORONTO (CP) — A Laval University researcher says breast feeding might protect infants from Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis, two severe bowel disorders which afflict between 100 and 300 Canadian children each year.

Dr. Micheline Ste. Marie, an assistant professor of pediatrics at the Quebec City university, said a study in the British Medical Journal in the early 1960s suggested that the two diseases occur less frequently among persons who are breast fed in infancy.

She said mother's milk contains protective antibodies which provide temporary protection for newborn babies until they are old enough to create their own antibodies.

Some Adults Still Reel From Psychedelic '60s

MONTREAL (CP) — Youth clinic director Marjorie Bedoukian says some young adults are still reeling from after-effects of the psychedelic 1960s but that they can be helped.

Although she is a consultant for a youth column in The Star, Mrs. Bedoukian attempts to reach teen-agers who don't read the column—street kids with tough problems.

She also deals with people from the 20-to-30-year-old set who go at all hours to the Westmount clinic.

"They took the '60s at face value and have missed out on how to get along with people," she explained. "The girls have bed-hopped 30 to 40 different guys and they are coming in with problems of frigidity and an inability to develop a lasting relationship."

Young men and women drop into the clinic badly undernourished and emotionally confused.

"For them we do a whole program of nutrition because most are malnourished. How can you deal with your problems if your health is bad?"

The project has treated approximately 100 young people with large doses of vitamins and a good nutritional regime.

Participants are tested psychlogically and by medical doctors and each is treated individually.

Mrs. Bedoukian says she saw the megavitamin method work at San Francisco's Haight Ashbury district drug clinic, where large doses of vitamins B and C helped youngsters suffering from drug-related problems.

"To my amazement it did clear up drug wipe-outs. Taking vitamins clears out their heads and builds up their bodies."

She has been working with youths for 17 years, first as the chief psychiatric social worker at the Montreal Children's Hospital and then as founder and director of the clinic.

"When drugs erupted on the Montreal scene around 1966-67, there was no one to handle the kids and I got interested in those who got turned away from the hospital."

She says people with major problems won't go to "straight organizations" for help. Many have already been through the school system, the social system, hospitals, detention centres and the courts...

When hospital officials were not interested in setting up a 24-hour emergency service for youngsters with problems, she organized the clinic, which offers day and night service.

"The nature of drugs has changed," she says. "The press is not making a big deal of it and the reasons for taking drugs are different now.

"Between 1960 and 1968 it was experimental. The kids were trying to find an alternative way of life."

Now, people take drugs to wipe out reality and youngsters use alcohol and barbituates simultaneously, "which is what the adults used to do."

"They are drinking at age 12 and 13 during school recess. There are still street drugs around but those who take them have learned how to handle them."

She says many of the teenagers she counsels come from broken homes or suffer from poor parental handling. She tries to speak with parents of problem children and their friends.

It is her aim to prevent crises, she says. "This is the thing anyone working with this age group should be geared to."

Gifted Need Help —Teacher

REGINA (CP) — Almost every type of child with specific differences, except the gifted child, benefits from educational attention and money, says Margaret Parker,exe cutive director of Parker, executive director of the Kootenay Centre for Gift-

"I'm not suggesting the other children don't need the funds," she said in an interview. She is asking that one per cent of special education budgets be allocated for gifted children.

Ms. Parker, the mother of two gifted children has a master's degree in elementary education from the University of Chicago.

She is the only staff member of the Kootenay Centre in Kaslo, B.C., which she founded. The centre is involved in counselling, providing information and preparing programs on gifted children.

Ms. Parker was in Regina to conduct the centre's first workshop on gifted children. Seventy persons from across Canada were registered.

She said many people still have the general attitude that gifted children are pushy and can fend for themselves because they're intelligent.

TREES ESSENTIAL TO SURVIVAL

REGINA (CP) — Richard St. Barbe Baker, the founder of Men of the Trees, says, "We can't exist physically on this earth unless we play fair to the earth."

St. Barbe Baker is a silviculturist, a forester who works in the growing and tending of trees.

"If a man loses a third of his skin, he dies. The plastic surgeon can't save him. If a tree loses a third of its bark, it will die. And I submit that if the earth loses a third of its mantle of trees, it will die."

St. Barbe Baker said man is getting dangeroulsy close to the one-third limit because already nine billion of earth's 30 billion acres are desert.

In 1952, he travelled across 9,000 miles of the Sahara Desert on the first ecological survey to be done there.

"This made the countries of the world aware that the Sahara has not always been a desert — that it was manmade. We know that two million square miles of it were invaded by the Romans and that they grew wheat for Rome. They just made two million square miles of desert, the same as the U.S. did with the dustbowl."

KEEPS ON ROLLING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Being confined to a wheelchair hasn't interfered with Bonnie Hayes' ability to maintain a constant A average in five night-school courses over a two-year period while working full-time and taking care of her family

In graduation ceremonies at the Langara campus of Vancouver Community College this spring, Bonnie received the Governor-General's silver medal for the highest scholastic achievement among 394 graduating students.

She achieved straight As in psychology, history, English, religious studies, anthropology, sociology and philosophy. And she is forging ahead at Simon Fraser University, planning to get a doctor's degree.

Bonnie, 28, has tenaciously retained an optimistic outlook despite obstacles that would cause most people to throw up both hands in resignation.

Since a skating accident at the age of six left her in a wheelchair, she has developed a pragmatic philosophy which sustained her at a time when she needed a lot of strength.

Responsibility for two younger sisters and a brother fell on her shoulders after her mother was murdered four years ago.

Her father, disabled by war injuries, was incapable of looking after those of the nine children who remained at home.

She decided to go back to school after she found that typing and shorthand would not bring enough money. Bonnie praises her mother for having the foresight to encourage her to take school seriously.

"I was the only girl in a 38-man physics class because Mom made me take it," she said. "At the time I sure felt hard done by. All my friends just wanted to get married."

But she resisted the temptations of a domestic life offered her by at least five suitors, she said, and continued her education at night school.

At the time of her mother's death she was actively pursuing a teaching career but her present goal is a degree in clinical pyschology.

"The psychology courses I took at college really helped me to be tolerant, patient and understanding," she said. "Otherwise I couldn't have coped with it all."

Time to Weed Out Wallflowers

The wallflowers for next spring's garden of fragrance and color will have been growing well in the cool days of May and June. The best plants will be those from seeds sown at the beginning of May.

A first transplanting, or pricking out, should be done now if not already attended to, for these plants must be encouraged to make plentiful fibrous roots. The natural habit is to make one rather woody tap root which results in a thin, poor, unbranched plant.

Wallflowers, botanically Cheiranthus cheiri, belong in the same family as cabbage and the rest of that tribe, responding to the same general care and conditions.

When setting out the seedling wallflowers now, choose a piece of ground in the open.

A row in the vegetable section will be ideal, for they like a humusy soil, a touch of lime in each planting hole (same as for all cabbage), and no fresh manure and no peatmoss.

Wallflowers can be six to eight inches apart at this planting; they will be moved again, each with a ball of soil around its roots, by the first of September.

For July and August, the aim is to get dwarf, vigorous and bushy plants. They will need to have the soil kept moist and cool. A setback resulting from dry soil causes poor flowering next spring in much the same way as a cabbage or brussels sprout plant fails to make a good head or a set of sprouts when allowed to get dry at the roots in summer.

Before Labor Day, have the spring flowering bed prepared. Be sure it will be well drained during winter for wallflowers dislike water around the roots during the pre-flowering season.

The name Wallflower was given because these plants loved to establish themselves in wall crevices in old gardens of Europe where rains were plentiful in summer yet the roots would never be flooded in winter. Plants are said to have been perennial under those conditions. However, I doubt that they were individually as lovely as they can be grown here in garden soil on the coast with a bit of care.

During the first week of September, lift the healthy young plants, a half dozen at a time with a good ball of damp soil on the roots. Plant firmly, with soil tight around the stems, in groups where they are to flower.

Another dusting of powdered lime in each hole will help, and remember — no peatmoss for wallflowers (or any of the cabbage family.)

There is a perennial wallflower sometimes seen here in older gardens. It has been known as Cheiranthus allionii. Usually of clear yellow, this plant flowers all summer into fall and in mild winters. It similarly must have a location where soggy soil is impossible. I recall seeing it in natural rock crevices in a garden perched among trees on rocks. It could be propagaged by cuttings. I have wondered since whether C. cheiri, the ordinary wallflower, has been tried by cuttings as well as the usual method of seed sowing.

For fragrance alone, wallflowers are worth the effort of a long season of growth.

African Summit Considers Arms

By DAVID OTTAWAY

ADDIS ABABA — African leaders began their regular annual summit today on the Indian Ocean island of Mauritius, where they will seek renewed unity and purpose in the struggle against the white minority regimes of southern Africa. But they probably will fail once again to resolve the principal issues dividing black and Arab Africa.

The intensifying black nationalist guerrilla war against the white government in Rhodesia and South Africa's detested "apartheid" policy of racial separation are now very much in the limelight following the worst outbreak of rioting among blacks in South African history.

Both issues are serving to increase the militancy and solidarity of black Africa and to dash South African and Western hopes for a peaceful resolution to the explosive racial problems of southern Africa.

Indeed, one of the resolutions to be submitted to African leaders calls for the unleashing of armed struggle by blacks inside South Africa itself and another for an African boycott of the Montreal Olympics unless New Zealand is barred because its national rugby team is currently touring the white-ruled nation.

But the 13-year-old organization is proving helpless to deal with the main internal disputes of independent black and Arab Africa:

—The bitter conflict between Algeria on the one hand and Morocco and Mauritania on the other over the partition of the Spanish Sahara between the latter two countries.

—The threat of war between Ethiopia and Somalia over the fate of Djibouti, the last French colonial toehold on the continent.

African leaders are only too well aware of the organization's failure last winter to play a constructive role in the Angolan civil war. At the same time, the Spanish Sahara and Djibouti disputes are weighing heavily on the collective conscience of independent Africa.

Repeated deadlocks over internal African disputes have led to a profound malaise over the organization's declining moral authority and growing impotence.

In a speech May 25 marking the 13th anniversary of the African body's existence, Secretary General William Eteki Mboumoua issued a stiff warning that the organization was in real danger of becoming a "paper tiger" and of being reduced to a debating club "lacking all authority" to deal with intra-African disputes.

He called for a revision of the organization's charter to give the tiger new teeth — super-state powers to impose black and Arab Africa's collective will on feuding states, the adoption of "effective coercive measures" and the establishment of a standing military force to back up its decisions.

The sense of frustration and even rage over Africa's impotence is leading to an increasing number of calls for united armed action against the white minority regimes of southern Africa even from some of the pro-Western "moderate" African states.

At the African foreign ministers conference that ended Thursday in Mauritius, both Morocco and Liberia put forth proposals for armed African intervention in southern Africa. Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Laraki suggested that a major part of the African organization's budget be earmarket for such action and that an African army be formed to join the "crusade" against the white regimes.

Other countries, like Nigeria and Uganda, have already long since offered troops to help the liberation movements in Rhodesia, Namibia (South West Africa) and South Africa.

Whether any of these proposals will be adopted or offers taken up at this stage is doubtful. But they reflect the mood of growing militancy among African states toward white-ruled southern Africa that may be the prelude to the eventual enactment of some kind of joint African military intervention there.

Two States Walk Out

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (UPI) — Morocco and Mauritania walked out of the annual meeting of the Organization of African Unity today during a stormy debate on the explosive western Sahara situation.

Morocco and Mauritania annexed the phosphate-rich Sahara territory last year after Spain ended its colonial rule. At the same time, Algeria backed a Saharan liberation group, Polisiario, which has been waging guerrilla war against the two countries.

Algeria offfered a resolution calling on "occupying forces" to withdraw immediately from the territory, prompting the walkout by Mauritania ad Morocco.

Spokesmen for the two countries claimed the Sahara issue should never have been raised at this meeting since it was "settled" by a statement approved by the OAU earlier this year.

Jamaican Plot Toronto Links?

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC says that Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley has disclosed the existence of a group of Jamaicans in Toronto who are part of a conspiracy to overthrow his government.

Manley said that the RCMP has infiltrated the group and is keeping him informed, the network says.

RCMP officials in Toronto and Ottawa said they are unable to comment on the story.

On Wednesday, Manley said security forces in his country, in a state of emergency since June 19, seized documents indicating a plot to overthrow his government. The prime minister said then that Peter Whittingham, prospective election candidate for the opposition Jamaica Labor Party, had admitted owning the documents.

In a dispatch from Kingston, the network quotes Manley as saying some ultra-rightwing migrants from Jamaica have been involved in improper activity.

It quotes him as saying that some of the migrants involved are in Toronto but that he was unable to give more specific details of their activity.

The CBC also quotes the prime minister as saying he is concerned about plans by the migrants to carry out economic sabotage by getting money out of Jamaica and into Canada.

Recent thefts involved breakins at Studio 35 Photography, in Esquimalt and Tivoli Studios, on Oak Bay Avenue, and a possible set-up at the home of professional photographer Ian McKain.

Tivoli Stuios was entered this week and proprietor Ronald Jones said an estimated $6,000 to $8,000 worth of camera equipment was stolen.

"They knew what they were taking. They were very selective. — just the good stuff," Jones aid.

In the Esquimalt breakin, several thousand dollars worth of Hasselblad cameras — tops in camera equipment — was stolen.

Jones said several days before the breakin at Tivoli, someone came in trying to sell him fire detectors. He said he was a little suspicious at the time.

Daily Colonist photographer McKain said a man came to is house about two weeks ago identifying himself as an employee of the Saanich inspection department.

He told McKain he wanted to see his photographic and lighting equipment.

A check with the Saanich municipality this week revealed no inspector had been sent to his home.

Amin was accused of spying for the U.S. CIA in 1965 and sentenced to life imprisonment. The prosecution charged that Nasr personally took part in the torturing of Amin.

The provincial government has given "priority status" to a senior citizens 99-unit housing complex at Collinson and Quadra.

Construction of the six-storey apartment project proposed by the Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Seoeity will begin in early fall, the housing department announced today.

Estimated cost is $2.65 million and the site — purchased by the provincial government — will be leased to the society for $1.

Housing Minister Hugh Curtis said the society has 20 years of experience in three housing projects for senior citizens, "and I feel very confident that their fourth project will be a great success."

The Collinson Street project will include 71 bachelor, 27 one-bedroom and one caretaker unit. Six of the bachelor units are designed for the handicapped.

S. African Consulate Blasted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A powerful bomb exploded at the home of the South African consul-general Thursday, blowing a hole in the concrete entryway and shattering nearby windows.

It apparently was planted by terrorists whose previous targets included an extate of the Hearst family, a power plant, and a savings and loan company.

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 3,000 tickets for the Olympic opening ceremony and 6,000 for the closing have not been claimed by people who won them in the initial ticket lottery, a spokesman for the Olympic organizing committee said.

The tickets will go on sale at Montreal's downtown T. Eaton's Ltd. store early in July, ticket manager Gerry Sayard said.

He said it appeared some people entered the lottery many times and won the right to buy several tickets, but bought two or four.

"Others probably wanted $40 tickets and didn't bother to pick them up when they won the right to buy standing room instead.

"Whatever the reason, we finsihed up with around 9,000 unsold tickets and, just as in the case of any other unsold tickets, they will be placed on sale at Eaton's. We will certainly notify the public before they go on sale."

BOGUS BILLS . . . B.C. COUPLE GUILTY

SEATTLE (AP) — A Vancouver, B.C., brother and sister were found guilty in federal court Wednesday of possession of 20 counterfeit $50 bills.

The two, Cameron McOuat and his sister Jan Isabell McOuat, were found innocent of illegally transporting $70,000 in bona fide U.S. currency.

They were arrested April 12 at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport to pay for a ticket to San Diego with three counterfeit $50 bills.

At the time of the arrest, he was found with seven more counterfeit 50s, while she was carrying 10.

While Jan was undergoing routine processing later at the King County jail, $70,000 in genuine $100 federal reserve notes were found strapped to her person.

Cameron was found guilty of an additional count of passing counterfeit money, after a two and a half day bench trial before U.S. District Judge Morell E. Sharp, who found both innocent of conspiracy.

The McOuats face a possible maximum sentence of 15 years in prison and a $5,000 fine on the possession charge. Sentencing was set for Aug. 18.

New Kind of Theatre for Victorians

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Miracles can be performed sometimes. Silk purses can be made out of sows' ears and cosmopolitan night clubs can be metamorphosed out of all-purpose community halls. If the right people are waving the wands.

It's a new kind of theatre for Victorians that's happening through the next two weeks at Cedar Hill Community Hall.

The strong, haunting, fast-paced musical, Cabaret, as performed by Victoria's Kaleidoscope Theatre, and produced by John Minshall, is professional to a degree seldom seen in this city nowadays.

Director Colin Gorrie has assembled a highly proficient cast and has reached to the guts of the show in his interpretation. He has achieved the acid-tender-bizarre flavor, and keeps the whole thing moving at a splendid pace.

With the magic he and his cast alone create it is possible to forget one is in a hall alternatively used for badminton and banquets; to be surrounded for a couple of hours by Kit Kat Club patrons in a Berlin poised on the edge of holocaust.

But the metamorphosis is not due only to the magic of Gorrie and cast. An altogether remarkable job of lighting the hall as well as the stage area has been done by UVic's Giles Hogya.

Vancouver's Jack Simon has provided an uncluttered highly functional set on which swift illusory changes are made with a dexterity that has its own touch of magic.

Lorna Paterson's musical direction and leadership of the five-piece all-girl (that's an illusion too) band is another plus for the production. Rhythmically strong, with a range that includes hot brass and subtle inflections, it adds its proper weight to the show but never up-stages the cast.

Kaleidoscope's Paul Liittich as the Emcee made famous by Joel Gray, moves among the audience with a cajoling rallying presence like a long jungle cat on the prowl. He successfully captures the style of the mid 30s and sets the tone of the show from the outset.

Outstanding performance, strong, funny and deeply moving, is given by tiny Pat Armstrong who is new to Victoria but not to theatre. As the spinster keeper of the lodging house whose loneliness draws her to the verge of marriage with equally lonely Jewish fruit-seller Schultz (touchingly played by Jean Paul Destrube) she makes the role a tour de force.

The story of Sally Bowles, the English singer at the club, and American writer Cliff Bradshaw, is carried by Elizabeth Wallace and C. Holte Davison.

Davidson is appealing and convincing in his role but Ms. Wallace, in spite of an attractive presence and an excellent vocal style — she is a winner when she sings the famous Cabaret number — suggests the world-weary mature woman putting up a front rather than the stubborn, youthful and posturing rebel.

A compelling performance by Norman Browning of Vancouver as the Nazi, Ludwig, a lovely bit of singing by Dennis Goodwin leading a trio in The Linden Tree and a zesty characterization by Glynis Leyshon as a lady of the night with a taste for sailors, are also highlights.

This show definitely should be on everybody's must-see list.

SAANICH ON TRACK

The long-awaited Ward and Associates economic study made public this week shows that Saanich has been using the right approach to community planning.

Both Mayor Ed Lum and Ald. John McDonald, chairman of the lands planning and housing committee, stress the $19,000 study is a "tool" rather than an established policy.

McDonald said "a broad-brush" community plan, using the study as a guide, will be drawn up by Nov. 1 — the deadline set by the Capital Regional District for acceptance or amendments to the official regional plan.

The study recommends that Saanich use the revised regional approach which would provide a re-allocation of retail, commercial and industrial development within the capital district, allowing Saanich to broaden its assessment base.

Earlier, Saanich council had criticized the regional plan, complaining that it did not allow sufficient retail, commercial and industrial development in the municipality, making Saanich the "bedroom" of the area with high servicing costs for housing.

Lum said this week he and the rest of council were now reassured this is not the case. He said the official regional plan contained "guidelines only." As an example, he said, the original plan limited shopping centres to 300,000 square feet but Saanich has been told centres would be as large as 450,000 square feet.

The plan suggests it will cost $88 million to provide services for furture development.

McDonald emphasized this will not come out of the general taxpayers' pockets but will be paid for by the developers through impost fees, other levies and government grants.

"Rather than land speculators making huge profits, developers will pay for services through impost fees and benefit the taxpayers," he explained.

The study calls for housing development close to the city and Saanich borders.

"We want the proper mix in the right areas," Lum said, "The higher density would be at the city boundary, saving the length of sewer needed and road construction."

McDonald said development will probably be in the southern area of the municipality.

In line with the study's recommendation, Lum and McDonald said furutre development will include a town centre in the area which includes the municipal hall. Development would be made under land-use contracts in order to have control.

Lum said, once Saanich has submitted its "broad-brush" plan to the Capital Regional District "we will still have time to concentrate on each individual area."

Toll Heavy In Violent Earthquake

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Several thousand Indonesian villagers are unaccounted for after a violent earthquake that killed at least 350 people in the remote province of Irian Jaya last weekend.

A spokesman for the Missionary Aviation Fellowship said today that rescuers are searching the rubble of four villages for further victims of the quake, which recorded 7.1 points on the open-ended Richter scale.

Many people fled to the jungles and now are living in trees, he said, making it difficult to determine how many died. Communication problems are hampering deliveries of medical and food supplies.

The devastated area, near the Jaya Wijaya mountains southwest of the provincial capital of Jayapura, lies about 5,000 to 6,000 feet above sea level and can only be reached by aircraft.

B.C. Gov't Office For P. George

The provincial government has signed an agreement with the city of Prince George for the construction of a $7.5 million development known as Project 400.

The agreement was announced Wednesday in a joint statement by Public Works Minister Alex Fraser and Howard Lloyd, Social Credit MLA for Fort George.

The development includes the erection of a major government office facility with about 135,000 square feet and five floors of office space and provision for retail spaces.

Robberies, Woundings Up But Some Crimes Down

Criminal activity declined slightly in Victoria city last year although there was a marked increase in certain crimes of violence.

Robberies were up more than 40 per cent to 114 and the number of woundings and assaults on police officers doubled.

But rapes and other sexual assaults dropped dramatically, from 64 the previous year to 23, the lowest number since 1972.

And so did the number of Criminal Code traffic offences. They were down from 500 to 346, the lowest since 1971. They included 250 impaired driving charges, 104 less than 1974.

The figures are contained in police chief Jack Gregory's annual report released Wednesday by the Victoria police board.

The statistics show 9,148 Criminal Code offences reported to city police last year, 93 less than the year before.

Police cleared "by charge or otherwise" only 26.2 per cent of the total, the lowest in five years and down from the 32.6 per cent clearance rate achieved in 1974.

Criminals made off with just over $800,000 worth of goods and cash during the year, of which $130,900 was recovered.

Gregory said a major factor in the statistical decline in crime was a drop in the number of "disturbing the peace" incidents. There were 273 in 1974; 84 in 1975.

The 539 assaults reported were six less than the previous year. Charges of possession of stolen property was down to 62 from 106 and offences relating to offensive weapons dipped to 29 from 37.

On the other hand there were 197 more break-ins (1,399) as well as 36 more car thefts (601) and 55 more cases of fraud (1,044).

The number of drug offences declined from 435 to 381 with all but 22 involving use of marijuana or hashish.

The report notes juvenile offenders constituted 30 per cent of all persons charged, up two per cent over 1974.

Of the 114 robberies reported, 44 involved weapons of some kind usually a gun or knife. More than $32,000 was stolen, of which $8,000 was recovered. Twenty-five persons including three juveniles were charged with robbery during the year.

Break-ins resulted in $240,000 goods and cash stolen with only $32,000 being recovered. A total of 202 persons were charged with breaking and entering, 81 adults and the rest juveniles.

Thefts from parked cars accounted for a loss of $89,000. Twenty-six persons were charged and a value of about $8,000 recovered, the report says.

Shoplifting, which decreased slightly from 3,064 to 2,997, resulted in the arrest of 111 adult males, 57 adult females, 53 juvenile boys and 49 juvenile girls.

The report says the highest crime count occurred on Saturdays, the lowest on Sundays.

Not surprisingly 42.6 per cent of the criminal offences were concentrated in the downtown core. The relatively safest part of town was that north of Bay and east of Quadra where only 4.8 per cent of all offences were committed.

There were 10 accidental deaths during the year the same number as 1974, with two drownings, four dying in fires, one heroin overdose, one construction mishap, one in a fall and one accidental strangulation.

In addition there were 18 suicides and 145 attempts, involving 88 females and 57 males ranging in age from 14 to 80.

The report says the majority of attempted suicides involved drug overdoses with prescription drugs.

Of the 18 suicides, seven ended their lives by hanging; seven by taking pills and four by shooting.

Although there was an 18 per cent jump in the number of motor vehicle accidents (to 3,016) the number of injury accidents remained exactly the same, 581. The number of persons injured fell from 803 to 773. There were only three traffic fatalities compared with 13 the year before.

In enforcing the municipal bylaws police issued 92,149 tickets, the vast majority for parking infractions.

Crash Kills Geologists

ANCHORAGE, (AP) — Three oil industry geologists from Texas and an Alaskan pilot died in a fiery helicopter crash on a mountain north of here Wednesday night.

Shell Oil Co. identified the victims as Bernard W. Wilson, 53, Richard F. Boss, 52, and James D. Chapel, 28, all of Houston, and Anchorage pilot Orville Keese.

The HB-47 Ranger owned by Era Helicopters of Anchorage was under contract to Shell for surface geological work when it crashed, Era president Carl Brady said Thursday.

Duncan Hospital Plan Vetoed

DUNCAN — The provincial government has turned down a request to help purchase the 26-acre St. Margaret's School for a Cowichan Valley intermediate care hospital facility.

After discussions with Health Minister Robert McClelland and Health officials, chairman of the Cowichan Valley Region's hospital board Ken Irving has announced there are no provincial funds available for new intermediate-care facilities at this time.

Irving and regional administrator Robert Sharp met with provincial health officials Monday after a Vancouver architect indicated last week in a report to the regional board that the buildings could be effectively converted into a 70-bed modern facility at a limited cost.

The board of governors of Queen Margaret's School was considering the sale of the property located near the Cowichan District Hospital for an estimated $1.8 million so that the school could locate in a more rural setting.

The Cowichan Region's hospital board chairman also said the provincial hospital officials were not convinced that the school buildings could be refurbished at an esstimated cost of $1 million.

"They feel any new intermediate-care facility could be built on the property adjoining the extended-care hosptial in Duncan for less than the renovation costs at the school," Irving said.

NO SHOW WITNESSES DELAY THREE TRIALS

One arrest warrant was issued Wednesday by Judge William Ostler after all three trials scheduled for the two daily sittings of Victoria provincial court's main criminal section went out the window because a total of five prosecution witnesses failed to appear.

It was the first time in the memory of court veterans that absent witnesses had wiped out all of one day's trials in the main section but prosecutor Nicholas Lang said he could recall at least one similar occasion in the second criminal-court section.

"There's been altogether too much of this going on," said Ostler. "There are too many cases frustrated, too many people wasting the time of the court . . . and of accused persons . . . by laying charges and simply not turning up."

He said it was up to the prosecution to decide how absent witnesses should be charged — and then specifically pointed to a section of the Criminal Code of Canada permitting them to be charged with contempt of court.

Business in the main section starts at 9:30 a.m. daily with a call list which generally takes up to two hours, leaving time for one short trial.

The trial set Wednesday morning involved a Victoria charge of false pretences and Lang told the judge the main Crown witness would not be present, adding he already planned to send the witness a strong letter. No arrest warrant was asked or issued and the charge was dismissed.

In the afternoon, the first scheduled trial resulted from a Victoria charge of shoplifting. Lang said the only Crown witness had left B.C. — a former security officer at a downtown store — and was already the subject of an arrest warrant after missing a trial last week. Again, no new warrant and case dismissed.

The second trial involved a Victoria charge of common assault and Lang said this time that three witnesses were missing, all private citizens and including the person who signed the complaint. The last became the subject of an arrest warrant and this case also was dismissed.

Children Affect Mom's Sentence

Three children saved a 30-year-old Victoria woman from a jail term or a fine as Judge William Ostler changed his mind Wednesday in a serious public-mischief case in Victoria provincial court.

In allowing a suspended sentence for Mrs. Elsie May March, 16 Hayward Heights, Ostler made it clear he was acting only "for the sake of your children" and warned that she "or anyone else" should not mistakenly consider a suspended sentence was lenient in such cases.

After Mrs. March pleaded guilty to the Victoria charge of public mischief, prosecutor Nicholas Lang said she told police shortly after a Feb. 7 traffic accident on Esquimalt Road that she drove the car. But the next day, she named a man as the driver.

As a result, said Lang, a charge against Mrs. March was withdrawn and the man was charged. But at his trial June 3, Mrs. March testified she had been the driver.

"It's pretty hard on three children to take a fine out of social welfare," Ostler said and prosecutor Lang immediately followed with a suggestion of probation because "the fine would only hurt the children."

Saying such charges could result in a jail term, the judge said, "I want to avoid any impression that it's not a very serious matter.

"I don't want this woman or anyone else to think that this sort of thing can get a suspended sentence, which many people mistakenly think is leniency. Sometimes it is generally misunderstood that a suspended sentence can be given for good reason."

Ostler eliminated the fine, suspended sentence and put Mrs. March on probation for six months with these words: "I'm not concerned with this woman at all. It's for the children."

Damages Judgment Reserved

Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan reserved judgment Wednesday at conclusion of a B.C. Supreme Court suit for damages against a 23-year-old driver whose car killed a Langford mother of four two years ago.

Counsel for Ernest Northey and his children said contributing factors in the death of Evelyn Northey on Station Road June 9, 1974, were speed, blood alcohol and failure to keep a proper lookout, resulting in negligence on the part of driver Brian George Trueman, of Victoria.

Witnesses told the court Trueman's speed could have been much in excess of the 35 mph limit on that road, and Ruttan said he was likely to find from the evidence that the defendant's car was going about 50 mph.

Harold Turnham, counsel for Truman, said speed alone was not the cause of the fatality. He attributed some of the responsibility to Mrs. Northey herself for stepping without warning into the path of the car at a place other than a crosswalk.

Ruttan pointed out there was only speculation to guide the court as to the actual whereabouts of Mrs. Northey before the impact because there were no witnesses to the collision.

Rodney Taylor, for the plaintiffs, said the driver had been aware of the location of the Langford Legion hall, where the Northeys had been attending a dance; that he knew there was a function that night, and that people were likely to be moving about.

Speed, he said, deprives a driver of an opportunity to avoid an accident; that was the reason for speed limits to be posted.

Turnham contended Trueman was paying attention, confirmed by passenger Wayne Sealey, and that he was watching the road. He didn't see Mrs. Northey because she wasn't there until she stepped from behind a parked car, Turnham said.

Witness Joy Van Raay, 21, said she had been with Trueman and John Douglas, 21, having some beer at Imperial Inn prior to heading for Trueman's house at Langford. Douglas followed behind Trueman's car because he did not know the way.

Van Raay, in the Douglas car, said she saw nothing abnormal about the way Truman was driving until she saw smoke and red lights at the accident. Douglas was "quite a ways behind" and she estimated his speed at 35 mph.

She then said she had difficulty estimating distance, but that Trueman's car was within the headlights of Douglas' car.

Sealey recalled that he saw a body in front of Trueman's car, called to the driver who then hit the brakes, sending Sealey into the windshield before the car struck three parked cars and spun around. He said he saw a body hit the windshield, which was shattered.

Cruise Ship Saves Two

The cruise ship Royal Viking Sea rescued a Victoria man and woman Thursday who had spent 12 hours drifting helplessly in a 12-foot runabout.

Janet Kinnear, 21, and Lawrie Wilkins, 26 were rescued close to Race Rocks about 6 a.m.

They had originally been sighted by the Japanese vessel Taisha Maru, which reported the couple's position to the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt about 8 p.m. Wednesday. The runabout had been without power since before 6 p.m

A centre spokesman said a Canadian Coast Guard vessel was sent to the scene but could not find the drifting boat. The Royal Viking Sea discovered the boat shortly after sunrise.

After being rescued the couple told an officer they had seen the coast guard vessel looking for them through the night but had been unable to get the attention of the crew.

The couple had left the Inner Harbor about 11 a.m. on Wednesday.

The student-operated coast guard inflatable based at Ganges on Salt Spring Island was also involved in two marine incidents on Thursday.

They picked up two people near Saturna Island after their rowboat overturned and minutes later rescued a small girl who had fallen off the stern of a cruiser motoring out of a bay near the island.

IOC Threatens To Quit Games

Times News Services

LAUSANNE—Hours before the first of 10,000 athletes were to arrive in Montreal, the International Olympic Committee threatened to withdraw its name from the Summer Olympics because Canada refuses to accept entries from Taiwan.

In a prepared statement, the IOC stopped just short of threatening to call off the games, scheduled for July 17-Aug. 1, but a spokesman said the committee was considering disassociating itself from the games by insisting the word "Olympic" be removed and halting all medal awards.

The IOC charged Canada with bad faith and a breach of "fundamental Olympic principles in which no discrimination is permitted against any country, or person, on the grounds of race, religion or political affiliation."

The IOC pointed out that on April 11, 1975, the Canadian government approved the issuing of an invitation to Taiwan and that when Montreal was awarded the games at the 1970 congress in Amsterdam, Canada "gave all assurances that there was nothing to hinder or restrict in any way the attendance of athletes."

"Had there been any reservations, Montreal would not have been awarded the games in favor of Los Angeles or Moscow," the statement said.

In Montreal, officials of the Olympic Organizing Committee (COJO) said they would have no comment today on whether the issue of admitting athletes from Taiwan to Canada could jeopardize the 1976 summer games.

"The situation is so unclear and so confusing that we have absolutely no comment to make," official Olympic spokesman Louis Chantigny said.

Chantigny said he did not know what would happen if the Taiwan delegation arrived in Montreal today or Saturday or whether they would be allowed to stay at the Olympic Village.

Chantigny said two athletes from Taiwan arrived in Kingston, Ont. last week to bring a boat from the United States for use in sailing events being staged there.

He said they stayed only a couple of days and returned to Honolulu.

"As far as we know, they left of their own free will," Chantigny said.

In Taipei, Shen Cia-ming, president of Taiwan's Olympic Committee, said today Taiwan will defy Canada and fly its flag at Montreal, taking part in the games as usual.

The 42 athletes from Taiwan have entered 10 Olympic events and the Canadian government has no right to bar them from the games, he said.

In a statement Thursday the IOC said it had been advised on June 27 by Mitchell Sharp, Canada's acting secretary of state for external affairs, that the Taiwanese would be blocked because "the Canadian government now recognizes the People's Republic of China."

In Ottawa, external affairs department spokesman Glen Shortliffe said athletes from Taiwan were welcome to participate in the games provided

U.S. BACKS DEATH

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court upheld the death penalty today but struck down laws in states that make death mandatory for certain crimes.

The court approved death penalty laws in Florida, Georgia and Texas but invalidated laws in Louisiana and North Carolina.

The laws the court upheld leave the death penalty decision in the hands of judges or jurors but provide guidelines for them.

An Associated Press survey shows 572 men and 10 women were on death rows in 30 states awaiting the court's decision.

Marchand Linked To Campaign Cash?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A new mystery surfaced in the Jean Marchand resignation today.

Marchand, who quit the federal cabinet Wednesday, said he was leaving government because of the air-bilingualism issue. However, it now appears that a letter sent to Prime Minister Trudeau by New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent concerning actions by Marchand when he was in charge of collecting campaign money for the Liberal Party in Quebec may have played a role in the resignation.

Trudeau today admitted the existence of the Broadbent letter but said he would have nothing more to say on the subject until Parliament reconvenes on Monday.

Marchand resigned his environment portfolio at a meeting of Quebec Liberal MPs Wednesday evening.

Because of the settlement reached earlier in the week between Transport Minister Otto Lang and representatives of the Canadian Air Line Pilot's Association and the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, he said in his letter "it would be impossible for me to respect the principle of cabinet solidarity."

Marchand will continue to sit as a private member for the Quebec City riding of Langelier, but his resignation ends a 10-year term in the cabinet — dating back to his first federal election in 1965 — that includes portfolios in environment, transport, regional economic expansion, manpower and immigration, citizenship and forestry and rural development.

In accepting Marchand's resignation, Trudeau wrote Thursday:

"You will continue to make your unique voice heard and to stand firm as a true Quebecer and Canadian against all these distortions and misinterpretations by which some would try to undermine Quebec and divert Canada from its destiny."

Marchand's resignation may put an end to a ministerial career that dates back to 1965 when he first ran successfully for Parliament.

Considered a major catch by former prime minister Lester Pearson's Liberal government, the former labor leader joined the party with his prominent friends Pierre Trudeau and Gerard Pelletier.

Now Trudeau is the last of the "three wise men" from Quebec still in government. Pelletier, also long a minister, is ambassador to France.

Pilots, Controllers Playing Air Games

QUEBEC (CP) — French-speaking air controllers are forcing anti-bilingual pilots to give position reports in a bid to fight what they call "racism," a director of L'Association des Gens de l'Air du Quebec said Thursday.

"Position reports are not usually necessary because of radar," Michel Chrlebois said Thursday in a telephone interview.

The controllers' selective work-to-rule campaign, to last "more than 48 hours," began early Thursday against airlines which refused to fly during the English-speaking pilot's recent nine-day strike.

About 150 of the association's controllers work at Dorval International Airport while another 20 work at Mirable International Airport.

Charlebois said controllers were taking "special measures to ensure the safety of pilots under stress because they are flying in bilingual air space."

"You have to fight absurdity with absurdity," said Charlebois.

The protest, requiring pilots to maintain holding patterns as far away as possible from airports, is expected to cause delays in landing and departing.

"They say bilingual air space is not safe, so we are countering the effects of their stress," Charlebois said.

"We have to take care of the pilots. They are men who are above the law and they are closer to God than we are."

Meanwhile, English-speaking pilots are continuing their own harassment of French-speaking controllers — they repeat instructions wrong.

"A pilot must repeat instructions, so instead of repeating, 'go to 10,000 feet,' he'll change it to 12,000," Montreal controller Noel Salomon said Thursday.

Homeowner Grant For Mansion

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's top civil servant, cabinet secretary Michael Pitfield applied for and got a $1,000 first-time homeowners grant from the Ontario government, according to the Globe and Mail.

Pitfield applied the grant — supposed to go to persons buying their first home — on a $180,000 colonial-style mansion in the capital's exclusive Rockcliffe Park area.

Pitfield, who earns in excess of $45,000 a year, was ineligible for the grant because he had previously owned another home in the capital.

Hijackers Bargaining For 110

KAMPALA (AP) — Negotiations resumed today for the release of the 110 passengers and crew members of a hijacked Air France plane still held by pro-Palestinian extremists at Uganda's Entebbe airport.

Most of all of the 98 passengers still held were Israelis or Jews of other nationalities. The hijackers released 148 hostages from other countries Wednesday and Thursday.

The hijackers are demanding the release of 40 prisoners in Israel and 13 others they say are held in West Germany, Switzerland and Kenya. They threaten to kill the hostages if the prisoners are not delivered to them by 7 a.m. EDT Sunday.

Israel, breaking a seven-year policy of refusing to give in to the demands of terrorists, agreed to negotiate an exchange.

United Press International

A military rebellion erupted in Sudan against President Jaafar Nemeiry today as he returned from a trip to the United States. But a government announcement said loyalist forces crushed the attempted coup in Africa's largest country.

Heavy fighting was reported to have raged in Khartoum streets between insurgent and loyalist troops, the sources said. It was the second uprising against Numeiry in 10 months.

Over to Unions, CLRA Head Says

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The next move in the province-wide lockout which has tied up $2 billion in construction projects is up to the unions, Construction Labor Relations Association chairman George Wheaton said today.

There is nothing more the companies can do," he said.

"We have to wait until the unions can agree among themselves on some formula for a wage settlement."

The unions were meeting today to discuss the issue.

Wheaton said no negotiations on a wage package can begin until the unions form a common front or at least agree on some forumla for a province-wide agreement.

The lockout of 40,000 union workers officially started at 4 p.m. Wednesday but the first effects were felt today.

In Victoria, hardest hit by the labor dispute was Farmer Construction.

The company has had to close down $15.5 million worth of projects, putting more than 300 men out of work.

Construction work was just starting on the huge provincial government office complex at Broughton and Courtenay after the completion of excavation. There were 20 structural workers on the site this week and this was scheduled to reach a peak of 50 if work had proceeded. Value of

Ney's heave dashed the hopes of Mayor Jim Fraser of Williams Lake, who was trying for his third title in five years. Fraser finished fifth.

Meet officials said Ney's efforrt could have been a record-breaker. However, they added they were unable to measure the toss because the discus of recycled fodder sailed well beyond the confines of the arena.

The bull-throwing competition is open only to politicians.

Beaches Going Clean

The annual list of beaches and lakes in the Capital district classified as clean by regional health authorities shows pollution is in gradual retreat — or at least being dumped farther away.

There are only four spots listed as polluted and unsafe in contrast to more than 40 locations, from part of Sooke harbor to the Sidney waterfront, which are approved for bathing after a series of water tests.

The four are:

The outer shore of Esquimalt Lagoon, where there is another sewage outfall, serving Belmont Park housing.

The creek mouth along the shore of Mount Douglas Park, where discredited "sand filters" from residential sewage systems continue to pollute the creek.

The bay at the foot of Marne Street in Oak Bay, a small area which does not get adequately flushed by tides.

With contracts let for the first stages of an $8 million outfall at Clover Point, it appears likely that area will also be on the clean list a couple of years from now. The outfall will carry sewage more than a mile out into

Dead Girl Tied to Tree

MISSION (CP) — The body of a missing nine-year-old girl was found early today tied to a tree in a remote, forested area of the Fraser Valley, 30 miles northeast of here.

Jeanna Doove, who lived with her parents in a Mission trailer court, was last seen by her playmates Wednesday night playing with a half-way house resident on parole on a rape conviction.

Police and volunteers combed the area. During the search a suspect was taken into custody. Police said he would be charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment.

Trailer court residents were outraged to learn that the halfway house, located less than 50 yards from the dead girl's home, had been housing a sexual offender.

Jack Doove, father of the dead girl, said in an interview before his daughter's body was found that it was about 9 p.m. when he noticed she was missing.

Doove was also angered at learning the half-way house accommodated a sexual offender.

"I can't see how they could let something like that go. Even the police admit that it's stupid, but they can't do anything about it until something drastic has happened," he said.

The half-way house is owned and operated by the Genesis Society, a non-profit charitable organization based on Christian principles but not affiliated with any particular denomination. The house started about a year ago.

When asked whether the house was suitable for a sexual offender, Peter Cronin, executive director of the society, said: "If a guy is out of jail and lives in the area, I would rather try and do something for him than leave him by himself."

OLD RAILWAY ROLLS AGAIN

The old Victoria Pacific Railway is headed for a new life up-Island, and may run the logging tracks from Ladysmith to the Nanaimo Lakes.

Derailed almost three years ago when CNR cancelled the tourist train's lease, the rolling stock is slated for major renovation and will be moved to Crown Zellerbach in Ladysmith.

Spokesman for Victoria Pacific Tours Ltd., Kenneth Showers said today the stock — including two steam locomotives, flat cars, passenger day coaches and a caboose, as well as a private car — needs extensive repair because of vandalism that has occurred while idle in Colwood.

The tour company made several attempts at a viable tourist operation in the Colwood area, but rental was too high. For two years, however, the stock did roll and was one of the city's most popular tourist attractions.

Subsequenlty the company applied to the CP Rail for a lease to use CPR tracks from downtown Victoria to Shawnigan Lake, said Showers, but the plans didn't work out.

Showers said Crown Zellerbach has "indicated interest" in a proposal to run the stock as a tourist attraction from Ladysmith to the Nanaimo Lakes, about 25 miles on logging tracks through scenic country. The tour company hopes CZ will make the venture a joint operation.

CNR is slated to move the stock on CPR tracks up to Ladysmith within the next several weeks, a spokesman said.

Because the train is so old it will be moved at a 25-mile an hour speed up-Island, but it is expected to make its destination on its own steam.

Flu Vaccine Up in Air

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Dr. A. A. Larsen, provincial epidemiologist, says there are more questions than answers at the moment as health authorities across Canada brace for the potentially deadly swine flu.

Meanwhile, the virus in question has disappeared.

Larsen, who has just returned from meetings in Eastern Canada and the U.S. dealing with the anticipated outbreak six months from now, says at present "it's confusion piled on confusion."

American manufacturers of swine flu vaccine are obviously going to have problems meeting delivery deadlines asked of them by their federal government, he said.

And that creates problems for Canadian health authorities because the American government is reluctant to issue export permits for any vaccine until it knows how much it is going to get itself.

While the American government has announced a policy of immunizing its entire population, Ottawa's policy is to have sufficient vaccine on hand to immunize about half the population, with priority going to those over 65 and the chronically ill.

American vaccine is carefully tested so if a good supply is available from the U.S. that's one thing, said Larsen. But if Canada has to buy partially-finished vaccine from England, Australia, Germany, Holland and possibly France, then it will have to do its own testing and that takes six to eight weeks.

Size of the dosage is another question and whether children should have the vaccine is yet another, Larsen said. American field trials suggest a standard dosage is adequate but trials also hint that reaction children are suffering to it is severe enough to be classified as unacceptable.

Youngsters have been suffering high fever and have been made ill for about a day in some cases. Some health specialists feel swine flu is not an illness children need to be protected against.

One more question being pondered by the experts: should the vaccine, if and when it's available, be used right away or stockpiled?

Larsen said that's because the swine flu virus, which killed a soldier at Fort Dix, N.J. in February, has since "disappeared off the face of the earth."

Will it come back? Should the immunization program await its return?

"Anybody who's honest has to admit we just don't know."

But because the swine flu virus is thought to be the same as the so-called Spanish flu bug, which killed somewhere between 20 and 50 million people in 1918 and 1919, the preparations go on.

One thing is certain: flu, in one form or another will start to make its presence felt just around Christmas time.

The West Saanich Canoe Club, in an 11-man war canoe, won the canoe class race and Jeff Gottfredsen won the unlimited class.

Other winners in the race, the focal point of a variety of activities during All Sidney Day, were: Tony Bigras, 12-foot single class; Maria Betts, 9-foot class, for females 12 and under. Miss Betts, 10, also won the town trophy and the youngest entry trophy.

Peter Tonseth won first prize in the male 13 to 18 years; Kay Dietrich, female, 13 to 18 years; David Pumple, male 19 to 59 years; William Plater won the male 60 and over class, and the town trophy and Maide Hewlett won the female 60 and over class.

Oldest entry was E. Rabeneck, 73.

Summer must be here. Beaches on the rim of the Capital district which lie deserted the rest of the year are attracting once again those people with schizophrenic feelings about such outings.

Consider French Beach, 12 miles west of Sooke, on Dominion Day. Where there's scarcely a car or two on the parking lot from September to May, there were close to 30 Thursday.

And down the trail to the mile of placid beach, which offers the sound of gulls and ravens, wind and waves, came people armed with—radios.

Asked to name one downtown area as an obvious candidate for adornment with Victoria's famous hanging flower baskets, most people would say the Government Street Mall.

And they'd be wrong.

"It is felt that these . . . areas have sufficient beautification planting at ground level," city manager Jim Bramley stated in a report to the parks committee.

But 533 of the baskets will make their usual splash of color around the downtown-Inner Harbor area.

By PAUL NICHOLSON

By an 8 to 1 margin Wednesday, Greater Victoria school board trustees decided to set a ceiling on the increase of the following year's budget in an effort to curb rising school costs.

The board will now set a maximum percentage increase for the 1977 budget by Sept. 3 of this year, and the administration in drafting the budget will have to keep within the imposed guideline.

The lone dissenter of the motion at Wednesday's special board meeting was Trustee Susan Brice, who said the wondered if such a simple solution could solve such a complex problem.

Brice said Friday she was not opposed to the idea of the motion, but felt that it was too short-termed. She said she is committed to a three - year plan and couldn't support a method that "still limps along one year at a time."

Trustee Peter Bunn, who proposed the motion, said the board failed the public miserably last year. "I don't want to see it happen again."

He said that with the ceiling set by September, the unions bargaining with the district will know exactly how much money is available and if they want more they will have to accept fewer staff. "The writing is on the wall," he added.

Trustee Mark Fisher supported the motion, but expressed some concern about the quality of education. He said the needs of education were not predictable.

Chairman William Ross said he felt the motion was useful but needed more sophistication.

He disagreed with other trustees' comments that it would provide backbone, was a desperate tactic and was news. He suggested a lot of organizations set ceilings before their budget was drafted.

He added that he was not entirely dissatisfied with the process of the budget last year.

Assistant superintendent of schools Dr. John Wiens said be given a much better focus longer range planning, such as three or five years, would for budgeting — a suggestion echoed by Brice Friday.

Brice said Victoria has one of the fastest declining school enrolments in the province, and "this needs special actions."

"We must start to wind down a huge system that took years to build up," she said.

And the district must be careful that the educational losses are not significant, hence my push for three-year planning, she added.

Trustee Lavinia Greenwood produced statistics that showed the annual cost per pupil in the past 10 years has almost quadrupled — from $452 per pupil in 1966 to more than $1,700 in 1976.

The district's 1976 budget was set at $46,471,540 — up $7,488,819 from last year, and $2,599,224 more than the provisional budget discussed in January.

Teachers Protest AIB Move

The Greater Victoria Teachers Association will not participate in any attempt by the schoolboard to take last year's teachers' salary settlement to the Anti-Inflation Board, past president Mavis DeGirolamo said today.

Reacting to Education Minister Pat McGeer's statement in the legislature Wednesday that all salary agreements between teachers and school districts would be subject to review by the federal AIB, DeGirolamo said teachers will resist any salary review.

Speaking for GVTA president Walter Kitley who is on vacation, DeGirolamo said the decision may have to go to the courts and teachers are willing to take that step.

She accused McGeer of reneging on the Public Schools Act. Teachers are governed by the act when they submit to compulsory binding arbitration in salary negotiations, she said.

"It presents an interesting legal questin," she said.

Canada's British North America Act gives provinces the right to govern education, she said and wondered how a court would rule on any federal rollback of salaries arbitrated under the provincial act.

DeGirolamo said it is "extremely arrogant" of McGeer to decide the AIB could do a better job than all the school boards in the province.

Lum Pushes Blanshard Job

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said today he will ask council to officially approach Highways Minister Alex Fraser in an effort to get Fraser to reverse his decision not to go ahead with the Blanshard Street extension this year.

Lum said Fraser had not notified Saanich that he was stalling the extension in favor of the Trans Canada project.

The mayor said "he was pretty damn mad" when he learned of the reversal from the media rather than the minister.

"We did spend a lot of time with the former (NDP) government setting this priority (Blanshard before the Trans Canada)," Lum said, "After having it confirmed — it was to bigin this year — we now have it up in the air again."

The Blanshard Street extension has been under provincial highway studies for more than 15 years. Lum said in its submission to Fraser the council will enclose technical reports and data from both Saanich's engineering department and the highways department that suubstantiate the stand that the Blanshard project should be given top priority.

He said survey work is far more advanced for the Blanshard project than the Trans Canada one and going ahead with the Trans Canada first would only compound bad traffic congestion problems.

"You already have bad traffic congestion at the Colwood underpass and at Douglas Street. By implementing the Blanshard Street extension 40 per cent off the traffic going down Douglas now would be diverted to Blanshard, making a much better traffic flow," Lum said.

Lum said waffling on the part of the provincial government is losing Saaanich thousands of dollars in taxes and delaying roadwork of top priority.

"The area between Symour and Vernon has been declared a development area. We've been holding off because the road will have to be upgraded before it can take any heavy traffic," Lum reported.

He said two major developments were stalled in the area — residential and office-residential complexes. He estimated taxes from the two projects would bring between $200,000 and $250,000.

Lum said Saanich Road is in poor shape but roadwork has been stalled since 1969, waiting for the Blanshard Street extension to relieve the traffic on Saanich Road and allow work to go ahead.

"I'm hopeful the minister will change his mind, "Lum said, "All the facts and figures make it truly clear that the Blanshard extension is highest on the priority list."

Record Entry Maui Bound

36-Yacht Race

Times Staff

When the start gun cracks Saturday at 11 a.m. off the Victoria coastline for the sixth biennial Victoria-Maui sailing classic, a record fleet of 32 boats will begin racing to the Hawaiian Islands.

Lieutenant-Governor Walter Owne will be aboard the 70-foot pleasure cruiser Sea-Q, belonging to Ron Cliff of Vancouver, to fire the shot that signals the beginning of the 2,300-mile race across the Pacific Ocean.

The start will be in the vicinity of Brotchie Ledge.

The first race was held in 1966 with only three boats taking part, two from Vancouver and one from Victoria. In 1974, there were 23 boats in the ocean classic.

The other B.C. boats are Roango-Tang and Tranquil Passage of the Kitsilano Yacht Club; Starduster, a 54-foot ketch from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club; Per Christoffersen's Terna III of the West Vancouver Yacht Club; Tom Braidwood's Mutineer IV of the same club; the ex-Charisma, now named Sunbird, of Royal Vancouver; the Royal Naval Sailing Association's 44-foot Gometra, and Trumpeter of Jericho, skippered by John Long, Royal Van's commodore whose Mary Bower made Swiftsure history.

Bill Niemi's C and C 61 Joli of the Seattle Yacht Club will be back for another try. She finished the race in 1974, first over the line, in a record time of 12 days, 17 hours and 26 seconds. On handicap, however, the 36-foot sloop Tinsley Light, skippered by Henry Grandin of San Francisco, was over-all winner.

Whittaker, one of the few men to have scaled both Mount Everest and K-II, the second highest mountain in the world, will have a crew of fellow mountain climbers aboard.

Mauri veteran, Bill Gardner's Lucy Alice will be back to try again, as will be Border Lord. Both are from Seattle.

There will be a race within a race this year. For the first time there will be two ratings accepted — the International Offshore Rule and, for the first time, boats belonging to the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet.

All the boats must be measured for IOR, however. In addition to competing for over-all honors, the PHRF boats will also race between themselves.

For the first time, the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and the Lahaina Yacht Club, who organize the race, have not asked the Canadian navy for an escort vessel.

Instead, Dr. Hank Stigglebout of Olympia, Wash., will use his 44-foot sloop Viya as the official communications vessel. She will not be racing. All boats will report their positions once a day so that a plot of the race's progress will be maintained until the classic is completed.

Race committee chairman Don Selman of Vancouver reports that a small armada of pleasure cruisers has volunteered to come from Vancouver and Seattle to take about 200 relatives of the boats' crews out to watch the start of the race.

This is the first time such a sight-seeing gallery has been arranged.

City Takes Fines

Victoria's new traffic ticket payment scheme went into operation today and ticketed motorists are advised to check to see where to pay their fine.

Assistant city comptroller-treasurer David Gawley said at noon today only four people had come in to pay their fines at city hall and it is too early to tell if the city takeover of parking fine payments was going to cause any problems.

The city has hired one new employee — a cashier — and will make minor reallocation of duties for other employees to handle the new function of receiving parking ticket payments.

Only time will tell if we've got enough staff to handle it, he said.

Gawley said motorists should check the bottom of the ticket for details of where to pay the fine.

Parking tickets are payable at city hall, but other offences encompassed by the traffic citations are provincal matters and are paid at provincial court. The officer issuing the ticket will tick off the correct place to pay the fine, he said.

Parking fines have increased from $2 to $3, but now offenders have seven days instead of 72 hours to pay their fines before the cost increases to $5.

If a fine isn't paid in a week, a form letter is sent to the registered owner giving him an additional 14 days to get the fine paid. After that time, it becomes a court matter and a summons is issued. Minimum fine then is $25.

Gawley said the time element is in favor of the motorist. "We want to keep as many people as possible out of the court," he said.

Time to Weed Out Wallflowers

The wallflowers for next spring's garden of fragrance and color will have been growing well in the cool days of May and June. The best plants will be those from seeds sown at the beginning of May.

A first transplanting, or pricking out, should be done now if not already attended to, for these plants must be encouraged to make plentiful fibrous roots. The natural habit is to make one rather woody tap root which results in a thin, poor, unbranched plant.

Wallflowers, botanically Cheiranthus cheiri, belong in the same family as cabbage and the rest of that tribe, responding to the same general care and conditions.

A row in the vegetable section will be ideal, for they like a humusy soil, a touch of lime in each planting hole (same as for all cabbage), and no fresh manure and no peatmoss.

Wallflowers can be six to eight inches apart at this planting; they will be moved again, each with a ball of soil around its roots, by the first of September.

For July and August, the aim is to get dwarf, vigorous and bushy plants. They will need to have the soil kept moist and cool. A setback resulting from dry soil causes poor flowering next spring in much the same way as a cabbage or brussels sprout plant fails to make a good head or a set of sprouts when allowed to get dry at the roots in summer.

Before Labor Day, have the spring flowering bed prepared. Be sure it will be well drained during winter for wallflowers dislike water around the roots during the pre-flowering season.

The name Wallflower was given because these plants loved to establish themselves in wall crevices in old gardens of Europe where rains were plentiful in summer yet the roots would never be flooded in winter. Plants are said to have been perennial under those conditions. However, I doubt that they were individually as lovely as they can be grown here in garden soil on the coast with a bit of care.

During the first week of September, lift the healthy young plants, a half dozen at a time with a good ball of damp soil on the roots. Plant firmly, with soil tight around the stems, in groups where they are to flower.

Another dusting of powdered lime in each hole will help, and remember — no peatmoss for wallflowers (or any of the cabbage family.)

There is a perennial wallflower sometimes seen here in older gardens. It has been known as Cheiranthus allionii. Usually of clear yellow, this plant flowers all summer into fall and in mild winters. It similarly must have a location where soggy soil is impossible. I recall seeing it in natural rock crevices in a garden perched among trees on rocks. It could be propagaged by cuttings. I have wondered since whether C. cheiri, the ordinary wallflower, has been tried by cuttings as well as the usual method of seed sowing.

For fragrance alone, wallflowers are worth the effort of a long season of growth.

New York

AT NEW YORK the stock market rebounded from Thursday's decline with a moderate rally Friday. Trading was fairly quiet on the eve of the extended Independence Day weekend.

Brokers said investors were pleased with the drop in the money supply reported by the federal reserve board late Thursday, reading it as a favorable omen for the interest rate outlook.

The U.S. government reported Friday morning that the unemployment rate had turned upward in June to 7.5 per cent.

But Ron Nessen, the White House press secretary, maintained that increase was "apparently largely, if not wholly, the result of faulty seasonal adjustment factors." And he said administration economists still foresee a rate below seven per cent by year-end.

Anaconda accounted for a big chunk of the Dow's gain, climbing three points to $29 on word of merger plans between the company and Atlantic Richfield. Arco shares lost 1⅛ to $102¾.

Skelly Oil jumped 5 to $86½. Business Week magazine said some investors have been buying the stock gambling that Getty Oil may seek to acquire the Skelly shares it doesn't already own.

Montreal

AT MONTREAL prices were slightly lower in light trading.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. was 156,200 shares compared with 262,600 traded up to the same time Wednesday.

London

At London prices were fractionally higher. The Financial Times index gained 3.0 to 389.5 in light trading. Industrial and banking stocks were firm with mining issues higher following the rise in the gold bullion price. Canadian stocks eased.

Block Brothers

Net earnings of Block Bros. Industries Ltd. were $1,278,000 in the quarter ended April 30, down from $1,363,000 in the same period last year despite an increase in gross income of 18 per cent to $25.5 million. An interim report to shareholders shows that earnings per share in the latest period were 22 cents based on an average of 5,924,000 shares outstanding versus 21 cents on 6,342,000 shares outstanding in the same period last year. Block has bought 539,752 of its shares on the market during the 12-month period under a share repurchase program. A comparison shows that the latest quarter has the lowest net earnings in the last five, although per share earnings have remained fairly stable because of the reduced number of shares outstanding.

Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures again closed with a limit gain of 20 cents a bushel on the Board of Trade Friday, but other form commodity futures that had posted limit gains fell under profit-taking.

The liquidation in the closing minutes was heavy. Soybeans had opened with a limit gain of 20 cents and maintained that level into the final bell. There were purchase orders for 15 million bushels at one time, but there were no sellers.

Wheat futures had been up from 15 cents, but closed on a mixed tone. Corn was up eight cents, but the final figure was about halved. Oats touched the limit of six cents then back heavily. Limit gains also were posted in soybean meal and oil early, but meal closed $7 higher and oil was up about 75 points, or ¾ cent a pound. Iced broilers were mixed under fairly moderate trade.

The government confirmed a Russian export purchase and said more exports would be forthcoming from European countries. The trade bought futures on that basis as well as on reports of a continued drought over much of Europe and failure of farmers in this country to market more of their grain. Farmers apparently are waiting out still higher prices.

Wheat, corn and oats also benefitted from the boom in the soybean complex but shared strength on expectations of expanded foreign business.

At the close, soybeans remained locked at 20 cents a bushel higher, July 7.07; corn was 1¾ to 5 higher, July 2.97¾; oats ½ to 1½ higher, July 1.95½; and wheat ½ lower to 3 higher, July 3.80.

Janet Guthrie at Pocono International Raceway

Guthrie First Woman In USAC Big Race

The first woman to qualify for a USAC 500-mile championship and a look at the world's finest divers in a pre-Olympic test highlight CBS Sports Spectacular on Saturday, July 3 at 4:30 p.m. on Channel 12.

Janet Guthrie joins such greats as A. J. Foyt, Gordon Johncock and Johnny Rutherford in the Pocono 500 at Pocono (Pa.) International Speedway, the third leg of USAC's Triple Crown.

Phil Boggs, two-time world champion; Klaus Dibiasi, Italy's Olympic champion; and Sergei Nemtsanov, 17-year-old Russian schoolboy, are among the top competitors in the seventh annual U.S. International Diving Invitational Championships from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

"Since it's an isosceles triangle, Pocono is an interesting track," says Ken Squier, CBS Sports motor sports editor, who'll cover the race, along with two-time Indianapolis champion Bobby Unser; two-time NASCAR national champion Ned Narrett; and David Hobbs, former Formula 500 champion. "All three turns are challenging, which makes this race an engineering as well as a driver's battle."

All past USAC national champions, all past 500-mile race winners, and all drivers in the top 10 of USAC's national point standings, this year or last, are guaranteed spots in the field. Because rain limited the qualifying time trials, additional entries were chosen by lottery this year.

Foyt has won the event twice. Rutherford, this year's Indianappolis winner, is the 1974 champion. Unser, who'll be competing along with his broadcasting chores, twice has been pole-sitter, but it remains one of the few major USAC events to elude him.

Phyllis George and Bob Webster, two-time Olympic Gold Metalist and diving coach at the University of Alabama, will cover the diving championships, including top women competitors and finals of the men's three-meter and ten-meter tower competition.

"The world's best divers, many of them at their best," is how Webster sums it up.

Joan Richman is executive producer of "CBS Sports Spectacular."

Silent Years Back

The Silent Years, which brings together 12 of the greatest films produced in the silent era, returns to Public TV 9 July 3 at 9:00 p.m. with an encore presentation of What Price Glory. A remarkably frank and realistic treatment of the First World War by Maxwell Anderson and Lawrence ings, What Price Glory was one Stallings, What Price Glory was one of the great stage successes of the 1920s. With its explicit descriptions of Marine life and the harshness of battle, it was a natural vehicle for translation to the screen and, in 1926, director Raoul Walsh won national acclaim for his brilliantly-handled film version.

TV 9 Expands MacNeil Report

"I think the public would rather hear news from the horse's mouth, when you get the right horses there, than hear it from a journalist who, viewers know, is a generalist."—Robert MacNeil.

Viewers will get the chance to hear more such direct news analysis as Public TV 9 expands its telecast of the Robert MacNeil Report. Correspondents Robert MacNeil and Jim Lehrer and their expert guests will be seen every week night at 7:00 p.m. on Channel 9 beginning July 5.

The Robert MacNeil Report has attracted the attention of both viewers and critics alike. The Village Voice has praised the series as being "the only option available" when all other news "has tumbled into smut, in-joke . . . and cheap shot coverage of politics and other disasterous events."

The National Observer has noted that the success of the show depends greatly on the skill and talents of the host-correspondents: "Both MacNeil and Lehrer are adept at television interviews, holding guests' comments to the line of discussion, gently interrupting when opinion becomes babble, often pressing spokesmen sto state precisely where they stand on issues."

MacNeil himself is aware that his program is pushing the boundaries of conventional news coverage: "We're quite concerned not to define the news only in traditional ways. I don't want to pretend that we always achieve anything like what we'd like to, but we're coming near it some of the time, and I think we're getting better at it."

Baseball Basics Filmed

To help prepare its viewers for better games of sandlot baseball, Public TV 9 has acquired a series entitled Basically Baseball. Filmed on location in Miami, Florida, at the Baltimore Oriole Spring Training Camp, these four half-hour programs instruct potential players in the basics of the game.

The first show, airing Wednesday, July 7, at 7:30 p.m. (rebroadcast Saturday, July 24, at 1:00 p.m.), concentrates on "Pitching." Coach George Bamberger and the Oriole pitching staff instruct on delivery, stance, follow through, grip and the use of pitchers as fielders.

The following week, July 14 at 7:30 p.m. (rebroadcast July 31 at 1:00 p.m.), the entire Baltimore Oriole squad demonstrates the fundamentals of hitting. Batting coach Jimmy Frey and players Tommy Davis, Don Baylor, Paul Blair, Bobby Grich, Brook Robinson and Boog Powell talk about swing, stance, watching the ball and bunting.

The similarities and differences of playing the infield and outfield positions are demonstrated and explained by Brooks Robinson (third base), Bobby Grich (second base), Mark Belanger (shortstop), Boog Powell (first base), Paul Blair (outfield) and Billy Hunter (coach) on July 21 at 7:30 p.m. (rebroadcast August 7 at 1:00 p.m.)

Olympic Trials Aired Saturday

Coverage of the U.S. Olympic Men's Gymnastics Trials and the U.S. Olympic Women's Diving Trials will be aired exclusively on ABC's Wide World of Sports, Saturday, July 3 at 5 p.m. on Channel 4.

The program will also include coverage of Operation Sail, a Bicentennial activity in which sailing ships from around the world are slated to arrive in New York Harbor on July 4. The coverage of Operation Sail on "ABC's Wide World of Sports" will focus on the ships prior to their scheduled arrival in the harbor on the following day.

On the campus of Penn State University, in University Park, Pa., ABC Sportscaster Frank Gifford reports on the action as some of the country's best male gymnasts vie for berths on the U.S. team that will compete in the Olympic Games in Montreal. The expert commentator is Gordon Maddux, a noted gymnastics coach who will be a member of the ABC Sports team of announcers and commentators in Montreal for the exclusive coverage of the Games on the ABC Television Network, July 17-August 3.

Russian-German War Series Start

When the CTV Television Network undertook the tremendous job of producing three one-hour specials about the Russian-German War, it obtained, through negotiations with the Soviet Union, ten hours of remarkable historical film — film footage than eyewitnessed the events of the gruesome war as it occurred.

The award-winning series, which detail the six years of Russian-German fighting during the Second World War, will be televised in three parts starting Sunday, July 4, on Channel 8 at 10 p.m.

The second part will be shown July 11 and the third on July 18.

Most of this film had never been seen outside the Soviet Union, and much of it is the only filmed record of the events of that war as seen in captured German and original Russian records. Supplemented by exclusive footage from Western sources, the research and documentation is massive. The result is the only truly comprehensive and objective filmed history in existence of Russia and Germany as they were, in an all-out confrontation.

Not a simple recital of dates and places, but an expert analysis of the politicians and those diplomatic moves behind the events, "The Russian-German War" is a unique, often terrifying, social and historical documentary series that sheds light on a war that is yet with us in terms of global politics.

"The Russian-German War" is produced and written by Jerry Lawton with Executive Producer Tom Gould for CTV News, Features and Information Programming Department. The narrator is Douglas Bain. This series won a Silver Hugo at the 10th Chicago International Film Festival in 1974. The episode "The Killing Ground" was awarded the Gold Medal at the 1974 Atlanta Film Festival.

College Honors Earl Hammer

Earl Hamner, creator, co-executive producer and executive story consultant of The Waltons, has received an Honorary Doctorate of Humanities from De Paul University.

The chorus also joins the orchestra for Paul Revere's Ride, featuring poems by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and Ralph Waldo Emerson, and in medleys of Stephen Foster and George M. Cohan tunes.

This concert originated in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, and was produced by KUED.

The holiday also brings to Public TV 9 viewers a second musical treat, as Arthur Fiedler and the Bostom Pops start a new season of sound, July 4 at 8:00 p.m.

ABC Network

The grandeur and beauty of the American West and the stories of the men who left their mark on that vast land, from the Indian to the railroad man, are evoked in an hour-long special documentary, The American Idea: The Glory Road West, airing on the ABC Television Network, Sunday, July 4 at 7 p.m. on Channel 4. Starring Chad Everett and Buffy Sainte-Marie, with Henry Fonda as special guest narrator, the program, fully sponsored by the Ford Motor Company; is part of a special Fourth of July weekend-long offering of programs in ABC's Bicentennial project, The American Spirit.

The program captures the vastness of the West and recalls through early writings how the Indians and pioneers responded to its natural wonders. Indian ceremonies in which the elements were worshipped, some of which still exist today, are highlighted. For example, an old Indian woman is seen dedicating her grandchild to the sun.

The program vividly depicts the varying cultures of each new wave of people — the mountain man, the settler, the goldminer and the railroad man — and their arrivals on the Indians' land. It also provides glimpses of the rollicking frontier towns.

CBS Network

CBS News will broadcast via satellite the Danish celebration of America's bicentennial between 11 a.m. and 12 noon on Sunday, July 4, during the day-long and night-long In Celebration of US on The CBS Television Network.

An appearance and brief address by Her Royal Majesty Queen Margrethe II will be a highlight of the Danish event.

The Danes have been celebrating the American 4th of July for most of this century with happy annual festivals. This year, of course, is a special birthday for the United States and for the Danish town of Aalborg, where this year's party will be held.

In 1912, on the American Independence day, King Christian X addressed 10,000 people in the Ribald Hills, 15 miles south of Aalborg, a north Danish port city. Since then, except for the war years, Danes have continued the practice, often with members of their Royal Family attending.

Walter Cronkite is the anchorman of In Celebration of US. Ernest Leiser is the senior producer, and Leslie Midgley is executive producer of the CBS News Special Reports Unit.

NOVA EXPLORES OTHER PLANETS

On July 4, 1976, the Viking lander will set down on Mars, trying to discover whether life exists outside this planet. In honor of this historic event, Nova is broadcasting a special repeat of The earch for Life, July 4 at 5:30 p.m. On this program Nova explores the possibilities of life on other planets—and shows footage of the first landing of the Viking mission over two years ago.

If proof could be found that biological life exists on Mars; if evidence could be found that intelligent beings in other solar systems are trying to communicate by radio waves; then scientists would know that conditions similar to those which created human beings do exist elsewhere.

"The Search for Life" is a production of WGBH Boston, produced with the advice and co-operation of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Farmhouse Setting For Dance

George's House, a suite of dances choregraphed and danced by Dan Wagoner with seven women dances and shot on location in a 200-year-old restored New Hampshire farmhouse, is the last in a series of choregraphed-for-television dance specials called Dance For Camera. An amazingly lively work set to the traditional banjo and fiddle bluegrass of Son Stover and Paul Chrisman, George's House airs Sunday, July 4 at 1:30 p.m. on Public TV 9.

The dancers are seen kicking up their heels in and around the farmhouse, and in a nearby creek. Mingled with the dancers are vignettes from everyday life, narrated by Wagoner, who reminisces about his boyhood in the West Virginia hills.

Radio Alive With Sound of Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Radio is alive with the sound of television these days.

Television theme songs have become a popular item in the record business and five of them now on records are selling well.

The themes from S.W.A.T. and Welcome Back, Kotter, were No. 1 on the weekly pop music sales charts this spring. The other three themes are from Baretta, Happy Days and Laverne and Shirley.

There have been hit themes before — Mission: Impossible, Route 66, Dr. Kildare — but they were always rarities.

Steve Barri has a theory about why the situation has changed. A former staff producer with ABC Records and now with Warner Bros. Records, Barri has produced four of the five current releases. Cyndi Greco's Making Our Dreams Come True from Laverne and Shirley is the exception.

Barri says it is no coincidence all five songs come from ABC television series, even though the network has nothing to do with recording them.

"A lot has to do with ABC-TV's approach to programming. They seem to be trying to capture that younger audience in the family hour, figuring that if they can get the young people then the adults in the house will wind up watching.

CARY GRANT AND INGRID BERGMAN team up in Notorius, a story of espionage and romance. The movie was made in 1946, and it is about a playgirl who works with an FBI agent to uncover Nazis in Rio. Monday on Channel 12 at 11;30 p.m.

Show 'Refreshingly Different'

A television show which is organized, researched, produced, directed and hosted by women has got to be refreshingly different.

CBC-TV has come up with yet another entertainment surprise for Canadians: From July 5 through July 30, the ladies' area at the helm of a new lunchtime weekday show called Summer of '76. It's 60 minutes of good conversation, music, ideas, and lots of fun, from noon to 1 p.m.

Produced by D. J. Anderson, directed by Margaret Hastings, organized by Leslie Cunian and researched by Stacey Curtis, Summer of '76 will have as altermate hosts Marilyn Peppiatt (1st and 3rd weeks) and Jayne Eastwood (2nd and 4th weeks).

Replacing the Bob McLean show for the month of July, Summer of '76 promises to deliver a light-hearted touch here, serious topics under discussion there, absorbing guests, soothing music and two appealing hosts.

Jayne Eastwood, who hosted summer of '75, is one of Canada's best dramatic actresses on stage, TV and films. She won an ACTRA award recently for the Last of the Four-Letter Words.

Marilyn Pepiatt, a former singer, is now starring with Sandra O'Neill in the highly popular Toronto Revue, Sweet Reason, and is the author of Cooking for Kids.

The keyboard artistry of Norm Amadeo, and his trio, with lyrical saxophone of Gene Amaro, will provide lunchtime music. The lineup of guests includes jazz great Stan Kenton, singer Billy Daniels, symphony conductor Sarah Caldwell, revue writer-actor David Warrack, Vancouver soul singer Geanette Brantley of the Sunshine Hour, and many others.

The new show will bring into focus special features on a wide range of topics, like composers, and song-writers, earthquakes, the occult and para-psychology, aspects of adult education, satirical comedy sketches, and self-defense for women.

NBC Features Hemingway

NBC-TV will beam Papa Hemingway as a 90-minute special next season . . . George Maharis has been added to the cast of Rosemary's Baby II . . . William Devane will star in Rolling Thunder filming in San Antonio, Tex.

Miraculous Story

A truly miraculous story — the extinction of an untreatable disease — will be related on Nova, Tuesday, July 6, at 7:30 p.m. on Public TV 9.

As late as 1967, smallpox killed an estimated two to three million people. Although there have not been any reported cases of smallpox in the United States since 1949 due to compulsory infant vaccination, many Third World countries have not fared so well.

Gilmour Stages 1,000th Show

By JAMES NELSON

TORONTO (CP) — Clyde Gilmour, for almost 20 years host and author of Gilmour's Albums, had his 1,000th show last weekend, still using a radio technique he learned when a young man.

Gilmour said in an interview that listening to radio alone, he was antagonized by disk-jockeye who talked to and about "all you folks out there."

"Dammit," Gilmour would mutter to himself, "just talk to me; I'm the only one here."

So when his record show started in October, 1956, he spoke to his listeners as if speaking to just one person.

That technique, together with the variety of records he plays on Gilmour's Albums and knowledge of the music and entertainment world he displays, has made the show one of the most popular on the CBC English radio networks.

CBC audience ratings usually show Gilmour's Albums in third to fifth place, frequently topped only by the network's natonal newscasts and live sports reporting.

Gilmour, whose work as a journalist included movie reviews, police and city hall reporting and who was a press officer in the Canadian Navy during the Second World War, is a man of precise habits in speech, dress and work routine.

He chooses records for the show from his own personal collection — a collection that is crowding him and his wife, Barbara, out of their home. He long ago lost track of how many records he has.

Each Thursday, he chooses his records, has them cleaned and treated against static. Friday mornigns he writes a script, leaving some time for impromptu remarks. He records the show Friday evening for braoadcast Saturdays on the FM network and Sundays on the AM network of the CBC.

Gilmour said he follows no set formula for putting a show together except that he tries to alternate vocal and instrumental works.

Gilmour was born in Calgary and raised mostly in Medicine Hat, or wherever his father was posted by the CPR. His mother sang soprano in local church choirs, and there was always recorded music in the Gilmour home.

Maclear Profile on Waldheim

'Most Thankless Job on Earth'

As the United Nations undergoes a radical transformation with the new Third World majority, correspondent Michael Maclear profiles Kurt Waldheim, secretary-general of the UN, the man charged with holding the world body together, Thursday, on Channel 8 at 9:30 p.m.

Filmed at the United Nations in New York City at the time of the Security Council's debate on Israel and the Palestinian question, Waldheim forcefully reflects on his job, the challenges and the future of what he calls "the most thankless job on Earth."

"Waldheim," says Maclear, "is the world's arbitrator of war and want, chief administrator for our collective affairs and the umpire for 144 nations. He's arguably the world's most important statesman, yet he's little known and seldom heeded."

"But the job," Maclear continues, "is changing him. After 1,500 days in the job, Waldheim has to project a new image to promote the UN. He has become a man shedding caution for cause."

"We need more understanding of what the United Nations is doing," affirms Waldheim. "We are just a mirror of the world around us and the world is not as beautiful as we would like."

Despite the frustration of responsibility with no power, conflict and daily dilemmas, the philosophy and the job of the Secretary General and the United Nations is to make the effort to establish greater understanding.

Kurt Waldheim

"In fact," points out UN Financial Undersecretary George Davidson, former CBC president, "the UN . . . will organize ten thousand meetings worldwide this year on basics such as population, pollution, trade and resources. As a system, the United Nations works."

"We have to try to bring people together," Waldheim argues, "to bridge gaps, to overcome difficulties, even if they are not always successful. The alternative is a vacuum, or even a disaster . . ."

"In spite of the perilous disunity," concludes Maclear, "the major problems are still global — poverty, population, pollution — and only internationalism, the old UN ideal, can resolve these."

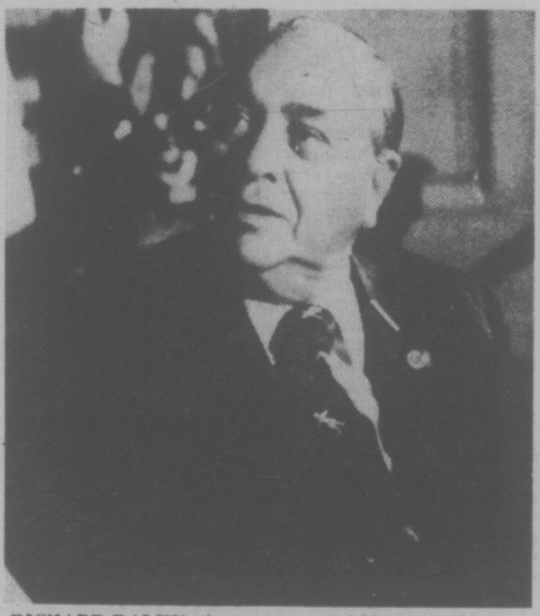
Minutes Series To Stay

The Emmy Award-winning "Bicentennial Minutes" series, which premiered on the CBS Television Network on July 4, 1974, and was to conclude on July 4, 1976, will continue at least through 1976, it was announced today by Robert Wussler, president, CBS Television Network.

"It is our feeling that the series has contributed to an increased understanding of our country's struggle for independence," Wussler said. "With its continuation, it is hoped we may shed light on those events which challenged our nation during its formative period."

Broadcast every evening in prime time, the series features a well-known personality from various professions relating an event — some momentous in nature, others little-known incidents or facts — which occurred on the same date 200 years ago.

Altogether, the Minutes have presented, and will continue to reflect, a veritable mosaic of colonial America.



RICHARD DALEY, the controversial Mayor of Chicago, recalls his childhood in an exclusive interview with Larry Solway, Our Fellow Americans, Thursday, July 8, at 9 p.m. on CBC-TV Channel 2.

Bergman's Work Featured In Channel 9 Film Series

Public TV 9's Thursday evening movies will be devoted to the works of Ingmar Bergman during the months of July and August.

Starting the Festival, on July 8 at 9 p.m., is Through a Glass Darkly, an Academy Award winner for Best Foreign Language Film. This 1962 film chronicles the plunge of a young woman into madness through a description of 24 hours of the life of a family on an isolated island. The father, a writer who has neglected his family for his art, has been making observations of his daughter's schizophrenia in his diary with the detached eye of a novelist. Finding this diary, her madness is accelerated.

Winter Light, the second film in Bergman's triology of faith, is the July 15 at 9 p.m. feature. This film evokes the agonies of self doubt of a village pastor (Gunnar Bjornstrand), who believes that he has been deserted by God since the death of his wife. He is unable to respond to the love of his mistress (Ingrid Thulin) or to the needs of a parishoner. When the latter commits suicide, the pastor moves on into the winter twilight of another church, alone except for his mistress.

The third entry, July 22, won the Swedish Academy Award for Best Film of the Year in 1963. The Silence depicts a world of despair, in which human relations are grotesquely ego-centric and perversely sexual. This theme is reflected in the story of two sisters, united since childhood in apparent incest, who struggle and part as the younger seeks her freedom in a heterosexual affair. Director Bergman also wrote the script for this shattering and somber film.

The final July offering, July 29 at 9:00 plm., is Wild Strawberries, winner of numerous international awards. Director Victor Sjostrom portrays an eminent doctor, traveling to receive an honorary degree, who dreams of his own death. With haunting flashbacks and events, the film is richly visual and startlingly dramatic.

August entries into the Ingmar Bergman Film Festival include The Magician (August 5), The Devil's Eye (August 12), Secrets of Women (August 19), and The Seventh Seal (August 26).

MAX FERGUSON LEAVES RADIO

JUNE GRAHAM

TORONTO — Max Ferguson has had enough of big cities. After 30 years as one of CBC's funniest broadcasters, this dignified, sad-eyed philosopher with the droll mouth, well-etched laugh wrinkles, and diamond-cut wit is retiring from his popular Monday-to-Friday network radio series out of the Toronto studios, to enjoy a quiet rural life in his cottage at Neil's Harbor, near the northern tip of Cape Brenton, Nova Scotia. He plans to garden, swim, bake bread, chin-wag with local fishermen, and forget about the rat-race. His last broadcast of The Max Ferguson Show was on June 25th.

Attesting to the consistently high quality of his series was the ACTRA Award presented on April 21st to the team of Ferguson and his amusing sidekick, Allan McFee, for the Best Variety Performance on Radio.

Ferguson joined the CBC as an announcer and disk-jockey at the Halifax studios in 1946, after graduating from the University of Western Ontario. One of his early assignments was a program of western music. Instead of presenting it straight, he indentified himself as Old Rawhide, and slipped into the drawl that was to become famous. After the broadcast the CBC was deluged with letters from listeners asking for more appearances by the crusty old codger, so he became a regular feature at CBC Halifax. When Max was transferred to Toronto, Rawhide joined the network, too.

In 1968 his book about his experiences with the show and on speaking engagements, And Now Here's Max, won the Leacock Medal For Humor.

If there is one unwritten rule which professional writers (who are not normally noted for conformity) most consistently follow, it is the rule that states: "Never waste good material." Disguise, recycle, steal or invent it, but never waste it.

So it's not surprising to discover that Carol Shields, who is a poet, short story writer and author of a critical study of Susanna Moodie which appeared in 1975, has chosen to centre her first novel around a woman who is writing a biography of Susanna Moodie. What is surprising is that she manages to make a slight story, about nothing very much, so interesting.

Judith Gill is 40, big-boned and "incorrigibly curious"; she is married to Martin, a university English professor who is a Milton specialist. They have two children: Meredith, 16 and inclined to rebellion and romance, and Richard, 11, serious and secretive. In fact, everyone around Judith tends to be secretive, for they must instinctively protect themselves from her compulsive need to know: "No wonder Richard seals his letter with Scotch tape. No wonder Meredith locks her diary, burns her mail, carries the telephone into her room when she talks. No wonder Martin is driven to subterfuge, not telling me that his latest paper has been turned down by the Renaissance Society . . . and John Spalding in Birmingham. Poor John Spalding, how I added him up."

John Spalding is an Englishman (another English professor) who took his family off to Cyprus on a year's sabbatical leave, renting his flat to the Gills, who were also "on sabbatical". Alone in the flat by day, Judith (who had already written two biographies which developed her detective skills) began collecting and interpreting the details of John Spalding's life. ("I filtered him through the wallpaper, the kitchen utensils, the old snapshots, the shaving equipment, distilling him from the ratty blankets, the unpardonable home carpentry, the Marks-and-Spencer lamp shades and the paper bags in the bathroom cupboard where for mysterious reasons he saved burnt-out lightbulbs. Why. Why?")

One day she discovered John Spalding's unpublished novels, all seven of them, and of course she sat down and read them all. Afterwards, home again in Canada and taking a course in creative writing from an old friend who happens to be a successful novelist himself, she helped herself to the plot of one of John Spalding's novels for a class assignment. And now, when the novelist friend (whose name is Furling Eberhardt, by the way) publishes his latest book, Judith discovers that he has stolen John Spalding's plot from her.

Well, that's about as lively as Small Ceremonies ever gets, and perhaps you're already thinking that Judith must be a hopelessly unsympathetic character whose trivial adventures are better left ignored. But the interesting and even exciting thing about this quiet little novel is that it's very engrossing, in a way that borders on the uncanny.

What's more, Mrs. Shields succeeds, if not in making us like Judith, at least in persuading us to understand and have patience with her. She achieves this considerable feat by convincing us of Judith's credentials as a biographer, by making her working methods interesting, and by having her come down with a violent case of flu which gives her family and friends the opportunity to demonstrate how very much they love and value her. There is also the final scene of the novel, when Martin and Judith eat a celebratory dinner at a restaurant and are seated near a group of people who converse animatedly in sign language. Judith is entranced; she misses nothing, including the sight of Martin, watching her.

The celebratory dinner, incidentally, is only one of the many "small ceremonies" which occur in this book, from eating high tea in September, "the real beginning of the year", to watching Princess Anne's wedding on TV. Of such small highlights is the stuff of ordinary lives made, Mrs. Shields seems to say, managing to give her story the ring of truth and a neat framework to rest upon in one fell swoop.

My only real criticisms of it are that she has fallen victim to Judith's own painstaking biographical method and supplies more motivational background for her character than the story really requires, giving it a slightly precious quality, and that Judith's disapproval of Martin's novel idea for livening up his Milton lectures is unconvincing. (Anyone who has any contact with the academic world at all can see that he can't miss.)

These minor complaints aside, Small Ceremonies is a satisfying work by an accomplished writer. Readers who are especially interested in how biographies are written should find it absolutely riveting.

SMALL CEREMONIES, by Carol Shields. McGraw-Hill Ryerson. $8.95.

Horatio Alger in Reverse

By WILLIAM FRENCH

Leslie McFarlane must be one of the most exploited authors since St. Matthew and his colleagues made their contribution to the New Testament with no thought of royalties. McFarlane, of course, is the Ontario writer better known by his alias of Franklin W. Dixon, original author of the Hardy Boys series of adventures.

As he explains in this autobiography, McFarlane wrote 20 books in the series between 1926 and 1946. He started at $125 per book, with no royalty rights, and his total income from the series was about $5,000. Yet the series became one of the world's great bestsellers, with about 12 million copies sold to date, and income to the publisher, according to one estimate, of $15-million.

Anyone else would have been at least mildly piqued at this outrageous spin of fortune's wheel. But not McFarlane; he adopts a curiously defensive attitude. He writes in his memoirs that it saddens and maddens him to be thought of as the dumbest sucker of the age, a victim of one of the great swindles of modern times.

"I was not swindled," he writes. "I accepted the terms . . . and the importance of the money was related to my needs. I was free to reject any of the assignments. Writing is not a profession on which one embarks under duress. No one forces anyone to become a writer. No one even asks him. He writes because he enjoys writing, and if he doesn't enjoy it he should get out of the profession. It follows, then, that if he is doing something he enjoys he should not complain if the financial rewards are less than he expected or thinks he deserves."

Well, members of the Writers' Union might have a dissenting opinion. If McFarlane's logic were widely supported, there wouldn't be much of a literary culture in this country. Enjoyable as writing is, some of the pleasure vanishes when the author doesn't eat regularly.

McFarlane's disdain for money, admirable as it is, seems more like a rationalization developed over the years to hide the pain of what-might-have-been. He's a tough old graduate of the Depression school, too, and remembers, without complaining, when he couldn't afford a stamp to send his manuscript off in the mail. As a young reporter he was flagrantly exploited on the newspapers of northern Ontario, but rarely complained.

And it's probable that if he had demanded better terms from the syndicate for which he wrote the Hardy Boys, his employers would simply have dispensed with his services and given the job to someone else. They had scores of ghost writers, and any of them could have turned out the Hardy Boys. They were already writing many similar series, such as the Rover Boys, Tom Swift, the Bobbsey Twins, Nancy Drew and so on. McFarlane knew from first-hand experience as a reporter that no one was indispensable; once, when he asked for a raise, he was fired instead.

Another aspect of McFarlane's slave contract that he found easy to accept concerned secrecy. He was made to promise that he would never under any circumstances divulge to anyone the fact that he had ever written a Hardy Boys book under any title or pen name. McFarlane was not particularly anxious to be associated with hack work — he wanted to be a real writer — so he didn't even tell his mother what he was doing in the rented office in Haileybury, and in a cabin on the lake near Sudbury.

Years later, when his teenage son Brian—now the hockey commentator—discovered the Hardy Boy books and devoured them eagerly, he had no idea that the author lived under the same roof. He was astounded—and proud—when his father confessed. It was Brian who told his father that the books were in great demand in the bookstores and sold in great numbers; their author had no idea.

McFARLANE

McFarlane's story is a kind of Horatio Alger tale in reverse, which is ironic because he grew up on the Alger books, used similar plots in some of his own books and had a vague connection, through the syndicate for which he worked, with Alger. But Alger had the advantage of being a real person; Franklin W. Dixon was a ghost, and ghosts have no rights.

McFarlane got involved in writing massproduced juvenile novels by answering an ad in Editor and Publisher for a fiction writer. That brought him a reply from New Jersey from Edward Stratemeyer, one of the innovative marketing geniuses that the United States produces from time to time. Stratemeyer invented the concept of the fiction factory, a system through which a variety of anonymous writers, using the same pseudonym, turned out innumerable volumes in a series.

Stratemeyer supplied plot outlines to his writers, who then used their imaginations to fill in the dialogue and action. At one point in the 1920s, Stratemeyer, through his stable, was producing 80 per cent of the books read by adolescents in North America. giving him enormous power which, his critics maintained, he used to overstimulate teenage imaginations and drug his readers into a state of idiocy. When he died in 1931, his two daughters took over the enterprise and kept it going.

McFarlane tells his story with lots of dialogue and action, naturally. He seldom pauses to analyze, but provides some useful insights into the sociological phenomenon represented by Nancy Drew the Hardy Boys and their ilk. He also manages to convey what it was like to be a writer in this country when anything to do with culture was suspect. He churned out the Hardy Boy books with a minimum of effort — a chapter normally took half an hour — and had time for other writing, but the big breakthrough as a serious writer never came.

McFarlane was dismayed recently to discover that his Hardy Boys books have been rewritten, partly to bring them up to date — references such as roadster have been changed to convertible, for example — and partly to make them more accessible to non-literate readers, by removing any trace of style and individuality. Franklin W. Dixon may not care, but Leslie McFarlane certainly does.

"Damn it all," he writes, "even a ghost has feelings."

Happy Birthday, Anyway

By PETER MURRAY

What do you give as a birthday present to someone who already has everything?

A book, of course.

And if you want to impress and money is no problem and you're not quite certain about your friend's reading habits (or lack of them) — why, a big, handsome picture book is just the answer.

So that's what Canada decided upon as a Bicentennial gift to the United States. The National Film Board dispatched 26 of this country's best still camerapersons to photograph the people and the landscape of an arbitrarily set 40-mile-wide zone straddling the boundary across the continent and in the Arctic northwest.

The total cost of this endeavor has been estimated at $1 million, and as we have a right to expect after the expenditure of that kind of taxpayers' money, the result is suitably grand. The photographs are almost all excellent, the design dramatic. And yet the over-all effect is curiously disappointing.

Perhaps we've become satiated by the number and artistic quality of these glossy coffee-table behemoths that keep appearing in ever-increasing numbers and prices. They were more of a novelty when the Film Board produced Canada — A Year of the Land to mark our centennial in 1967, and that may be why it was more gratefully received.

It could be that the border theme is simply too nebulous. Many of the pictures don't bear any relationship to it at all, and could have been taken anywhere in either country. The photograph of a Victoria second-hand store dealer in front of his shop, an excellent character study, is a case in point.

The faces of other interesting people are caught in carefully posed studies, but why are they here?

Maybe what's missing most is words, the glue which could have held the project together. Some of that $1 million could have been better spent commissioning a few of our best writers to tell us something about the state of the relationship between the two countries in 1976.

But that would have involved controversy, something the editors and photographers have studiously avoided. There's no hint of any of the tensions and common problems afflicting the neighboring countries. It's all very bland — and unreal.

What the book does have scattered throughout are quotations from a variety of sources, such as "Country, like conscience, is something that all of us have deep within ourselves," which contribute little except pretentiousness.

And their use raises another issue, the old bugaboo of picture books — captions. I always assumed they were stuck in the back like an index by the design experts who didn't want type cluttering up their pristine pages. But if they can mess it up with superfluous quotes, why not tell us briefly what the picture is all about and avoid that annoying flipping back and forth?

Enough of this niggling. As they say, with a gift it's the thought that counts and we hope the U.S. will accept it in that spirit. (Some 20,000 copies are being distributed free to libraries and institutions.)

Happy birthday, U.S.A.!

Politics of Expediency

By JULIAN REID

"Weren't you bragging just a little, Yamamoto?" the Saturday Evening Post demanded rhetorically. "Your people are giving their lives in useless sacrifice. Ours are fighting for a glorious future of mass employment, mass production, and mass distribution and ownership."

The year was 1942, and the Post was pledging its wholehearted dedication to the U.S. war-effort. Its words were less eloquent than those in which, the previous year, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt had proclaimed his celebrated Four Freedoms — but they cut closer to the American home. After more than a decade in the toils of the Great Depression, the average citizen was eager for the "glorious future" the Post and its advertisers promised.

Roosevelt's New Deal policies had alleviated the worst pangs of the Hungry Thirties, but failed to cure the ailing economy. What the still-controversial economics of John Maynard Keynes prescribed was a massive dose of government spending, wrapped up in a deficit budget; the war-effort was just what the doctor ordered. As FDR himself jauntily explained to the press. "Dr. New Deal,' a specialist in internal medicine, had been succeeded by an orthopedic surgeon, 'Dr. Win-the-War.' "

In V Was For Victory, Yale historian John Morton Blum studies the interplay of popular expectations and political policies in the wartime U.S. Like most academic history, the book is over-long, overly impersonal, and reluctant to advocate conclusions. But from between its lines emerges an illuminating study in the politics of expediency.

For all the plethora of broadly liberal programs with which he was associated, FDR had no firm ideological commitments. His policies were pragmatically arrived at, dictated by whatever he perceived as the immediately imperative goal. Throughout the 1930's that goal was clear: economic recovery. And so he became "Dr. New Deal," champion of liberal causes and scourge of heel-dragging reactionaries.

After Pearl Harbor, he became obsessed with a new goal: "total victory." In its cause, he consistently "sacrificed principles to expedients." A typical example, treated at length by Blum, was his unwillingness to support legislation curbing the "Jim Crow" practices prevalent in the defence industries and the armed forces. Victory abroad took precedence over civil liberties at home — after all, the latter would certainly stir up trouble, which might somehow hinder the nation's war-effort.

Meanwhile, as Blum remarks drily, "the war did wonderful things for the American people." They began to dream again — dreams tinged with a glossy nostalgia. Their collective vision of postwar paradise, the Office of War Information reported to FDR, was "compounded largely of 1929 values and the economics of the 1920s, leavened with a hangover from makeshift controls of the war." As for the Depression years, the public preferred to forget them. And so, inevitably, "Dr. New Deal" metamorphosed into "Dr. Win-the-War."

When the electorate voted in the reactionary 1942 Congress, which proceeded to liquidate numerous New Deal programs, it was hardly the president's fault — though supporters felt that he might have fought harder on their behalf. Plainly, too, most of his concessions to expediency, however debatable, were more or less justified in their wartime context. Excessive they might be, but not blatantly so.

Yet it is in the nature of small excesses that their impact is cumulative — and sometimes disproportionate. This became dramatically clear in the election of 1944, when the ailing president, reluctant to alienate anyone, mounted a campaign of "calculated blandness." This dictated that his outspokenly liberal vice-president, Henry Wallace, be dumped from the ticket, though his presence on it would hardly have jeopardized its chances of re-election.

And so, the following year, when FDR died in harness, he was succeeded not by Wallace but by Harry Truman. The new president let the last vestiges of New Deal liberalism fade quietly away; Wallace would have fought for them. The ravens of expediency had flown home to roost.

FDR had led America into war with a fanfare of promises — promises of a comprehensive postwar program in the New Deal spirit, guaranteeing for all the most basic of his "Four Freedoms," Freedom From Want. As late as 1944, he reiterated those promises, — now they took the form of a "Second Bill of Rights" safeguarding the economic welfare of all, to be formally instituted once the war was over.

Needless to say, it never materialized. Instead, Americans found themselves in the glorious Saturday Evening Post future they had dreamed of — "mass employment, mass production and mass distribution and ownership" with a vengeance, supported by the war-born Military-Industrial Complex and fed with the burgeoning paranoia of the Cold War. Aptly, Blum cites the ironic admonition of another Roosevelt, Theodore: "God save you from the werewolf and from your heart's desire."

MAX FERGUSON LEAVES RADIO

JUNE GRAHAM

TORONTO — Max Ferguson has had enough of big cities. After 30 years as one of CBC's funniest broadcasters, this dignified, sad-eyed philosopher with the droll mouth, well-etched laugh wrinkles, and diamond-cut wit is retiring from his popular Monday-to-Friday network radio series out of the Toronto studios, to enjoy a quiet rural life in his cottage at Neil's Harbor, near the northern tip of Cape Brenton, Nova Scotia. He plans to garden, swim, bake bread, chin-wag with local fishermen, and forget about the rat-race. His last broadcast of The Max Ferguson Show was on June 25th.

Attesting to the consistently high quality of his series was the ACTRA Award presented on April 21st to the team of Ferguson and his amusing sidekick, Allan McFee, for the Best Variety Performance on Radio.

Ferguson joined the CBC as an announcer and disk-jockey at the Halifax studios in 1946, after graduating from the University of Western Ontario. One of his early assignments was a program of western music. Instead of presenting it straight, he indentified himself as Old Rawhide, and slipped into the drawl that was to become famous. After the broadcast the CBC was deluged with letters from listeners asking for more appearances by the crusty old codger, so he became a regular feature at CBC Halifax. When Max was transferred to Toronto, Rawhide joined the network, too.

In 1968 his book about his experiences with the show and on speaking engagements, And Now Here's Max, won the Leacock Medal For Humor.

If there is one unwritten rule which professional writers (who are not normally noted for conformity) most consistently follow, it is the rule that states: "Never waste good material." Disguise, recycle, steal or invent it, but never waste it.

So it's not surprising to discover that Carol Shields, who is a poet, short story writer and author of a critical study of Susanna Moodie which appeared in 1975, has chosen to centre her first novel around a woman who is writing a biography of Susanna Moodie. What is surprising is that she manages to make a slight story, about nothing very much, so interesting.

Judith Gill is 40, big-boned and "incorrigibly curious"; she is married to Martin, a university English professor who is a Milton specialist. They have two children: Meredith, 16 and inclined to rebellion and romance, and Richard, 11, serious and secretive. In fact, everyone around Judith tends to be secretive, for they must instinctively protect themselves from her compulsive need to know: "No wonder Richard seals his letter with Scotch tape. No wonder Meredith locks her diary, burns her mail, carries the telephone into her room when she talks. No wonder Martin is driven to subterfuge, not telling me that his latest paper has been turned down by the Renaissance Society . . . and John Spalding in Birmingham. Poor John Spalding, how I added him up."

John Spalding is an Englishman (another English professor) who took his family off to Cyprus on a year's sabbatical leave, renting his flat to the Gills, who were also "on sabbatical". Alone in the flat by day, Judith (who had already written two biographies which developed her detective skills) began collecting and interpreting the details of John Spalding's life. ("I filtered him through the wallpaper, the kitchen utensils, the old snapshots, the shaving equipment, distilling him from the ratty blankets, the unpardonable home carpentry, the Marks-and-Spencer lamp shades and the paper bags in the bathroom cupboard where for mysterious reasons he saved burnt-out lightbulbs. Why, Why?")

One day she discovered John Spalding's unpublished novels, all seven of them, and of course she sat down and read them all. Afterwards, home again in Canada and taking a course in creative writing from an old friend who happens to be a successful novelist himself, she helped herself to the plot of one of John Spalding's novels for a class assignment. And now, when the novelist friend (whose name is Furling Eberhardt, by the way) publishes his latest book, Judith discovers that he has stolen John Spalding's plot from her.

Well, that's about as lively as Small Ceremonies ever gets, and perhaps you're already thinking that Judith must be a hopelessly unsympathetic character whose trivial adventures are better left ignored. But the interesting and even exciting thing about this quiet little novel is that it's very engrossing, in a way that borders on the uncanny.

What's more, Mrs. Shields succeeds, if not in making us like Judith, at least in persuading us to understand and have patience with her. She achieves this considerable feat by convincing us of Judith's credentials as a biographer, by making her working methods interesting, and by having her come down with a violent case of flu which gives her family and friends the opportunity to demonstrate how very much they love and value her. There is also the final scene of the novel, when Martin and Judith eat a celebratory dinner at a restaurant and are seated near a group of people who converse animatedly in sign language. Judith is entranced; she misses nothing, including the sight of Martin, watching her.

The celebratory dinner, incidentally, is only one of the many "small ceremonies" which occur in this book, from eating high tea in September, "the real beginning of the year", to watching Princess Anne's wedding on TV. Of such small highlights is the stuff of ordinary lives made, Mrs. Shields seems to say, managing to give her story the ring of truth and a neat framework to rest upon in one fell swoop.

My only real criticisms of it are that she has fallen victim to Judith's own painstaking biographical method and supplies more motivational background for her character than the story really requires, giving it a slightly precious quality, and that Judith's disapproval of Martin's novel idea for livening up his Milton lectures is unconvincing. (Anyone who has any contact with the academic world at all can see that he can't miss.)

These minor complaints aside, Small Ceremonies is a satisfying work by an accomplished writer. Readers who are especially interested in how biographies are written should find it absolutely riveting.

Horatio Alger in Reverse

By WILLIAM FRENCH

Leslie McFarlane must be one of the most exploited authors since St. Matthew and his colleagues made their contribution to the New Testament with no thought of royalties. McFarlane, of course, is the Ontario writer better known by his alias of Franklin W. Dixon, original author of the Hardy Boys series of adventures.

As he explains in this autobiography, McFarlane wrote 20 books in the series between 1926 and 1946. He started at $125 per book, with no royalty rights, and his total income from the series was about $5,000. Yet the series became one of the world's great bestsellers, with about 12 million copies sold to date, and income to the publisher, according to one estimate, of $15-million.

Anyone else would have been at least mildly piqued at this outrageous spin of fortune's wheel. But not McFarlane; he adopts a curiously defensive attitude. He writes in his memoirs that it saddens and maddens him to be thought of as the dumbest sucker of the age, a victim of one of the great swindles of modern times.

"I was not swindled," he writes. "I accepted the terms . . . and the importance of the money was related to my needs. I was free to reject any of the assignments. Writing is not a profession on which one embarks under duress. No one forces anyone to become a writer. No one even asks him. He writes because he enjoys writing, and if he doesn't enjoy it he should get out of the profession. It follows, then, that if he is doing something he enjoys he should not complain if the financial rewards are less than he expected or thinks he deserves."

Well, members of the Writers' Union might have a dissenting opinion. If McFarlane's logic were widely supported, there wouldn't be much of a literary culture in this country. Enjoyable as writing is, some of the pleasure vanishes when the author doesn't eat regularly.

McFarlane's disdain for money, admirable as it is, seems more like a rationalization developed over the years to hide the pain of what-might-have-been. He's a tough old graduate of the Depression school, too, and remembers, without complaining, when he couldn't afford a stamp to send his manuscript off in the mail. As a young reporter he was flagrantly exploited on the newspapers of northern Ontario, but rarely complained.

And it's probable that if he had demanded better terms from the syndicate for which he wrote the Hardy Boys, his employers would simply have dispensed with his services and given the job to someone else. They had scores of ghost writers, and any of them could have turned out the Hardy Boys. They were already writing many similar series, such as the Rover Boys, Tom Swift, the Bobbsey Twins, Nancy Drew and so on. McFarlane knew from first-hand experience as a reporter that no one was indispensable; once, when he asked for a raise, he was fired instead.

Another aspect of McFarlane's slave contract that he found easy to accept concerned secrecy. He was made to promise that he would never under any circumstances divulge to anyone the fact that he had ever written a Hardy Boys book under any title or pen name. McFarlane was not particularly anxious to be associated with hack work — he wanted to be a real writer — so he didn't even tell his mother what he was doing in the rented office in Haileybury, and in a cabin on the lake near Sudbury.

Years later, when his teenage son Brian—now the hockey commentator—discovered the Hardy Boy books and devoured them eagerly, he had no idea that the author lived under the same roof. He was astounded—and proud—when his father confessed. It was Brian who told his father that the books were in great demand in the bookstores and sold in great numbers; their author had no idea.

. . . no regrets

McFarlane's story is a kind of Horatio Alger tale in reverse, which is ironic because he grew up on the Alger books, used similar plots in some of his own books and had a vague connection, through the syndicate for which he worked, with Alger. But Alger had the advantage of being a real person; Franklin W. Dixon was a ghost, and ghosts have no rights.

McFarlane got involved in writing massproduced juvenile novels by answering an ad in Editor and Publisher for a fiction writer. That brought him a reply from New Jersey from Edward Stratemeyer, one of the innovative marketing geniuses that the United States produces from time to time. Stratemeyer invented the concept of the fiction factory, a system through which a variety of anonymous writers, using the same pseudonym, turned out innumerable volumes in a series.

Stratemeyer supplied plot outlines to his writers, who then used their imaginations to fill in the dialogue and action. At one point in the 1920s, Stratemeyer, through his stable, was producing 80 per cent of the books read by adolescents in North America, giving him enormous power which, his critics maintained, he used to overstimulate teenage imaginations and drug his readers into a state of idiocy. When he died in 1931, his two daughters took over the enterprise and kept it going.

McFarlane tells his story with lots of dialogue and action, naturally. He seldom pauses to analyze, but provides some useful insights into the sociological phenomenon represented by Nancy Drew the Hardy Boys and their ilk. He also manages to convey what it was like to be a writer in this country when anything to do with culture was suspect. He churned out the Hardy Boy books with a minimum of effort — a chapter normally took half an hour — and had time for other writing, but the big breakthrough as a serious writer never came.

McFarlane was dismayed recently to discover that his Hardy Boys books have been rewritten, partly to bring them up to date — references such as roadster have been changed to convertible, for example — and partly to make them more accessible to non-literate readers, by removing any trace of style and individuality. Franklin W. Dixon may not care, but Leslie McFarlane certainly does.

"Damn it all," he writes, "even a ghost has feelings."

Happy Birthday, Anyway

By PETER MURRAY

What do you give as a birthday present to someone who already has everything?

A book, of course.

And if you want to impress and money is no problem and you're not quite certain about your friend's reading habits (or lack of them) — why, a big, handsome picture book is just the answer.

So that's what Canada decided upon as a Bicentennial gift to the United States. The National Film Board dispatched 26 of this country's best still camerapersons to photograph the people and the landscape of an arbitrarily set 40-mile-wide zone straddling the boundary across the continent and in the Arctic northwest.

The total cost of this endeavor has been estimated at $1 million, and as we have a right to expect after the expenditure of that kind of taxpayers' money, the result is suitably grand. The photographs are almost all excellent, the design dramatic. And yet the over-all effect is curiously disappointing.

Perhaps we've become satiated by the number and artistic quality of these glossy coffee-table behemoths that keep appearing in ever-increasing numbers and prices. They were more of a novelty when the Film Board produced Canada — A Year of the Land to mark our centennial in 1967, and that may be why it was more gratefully received.

It could be that the border theme is simply too nebulous. Many of the pictures don't bear any relationship to it at all, and could have been taken anywhere in either country. The photograph of a Victoria second-hand store dealer in front of his shop, an excellent character study, is a case in point.

The faces of other interesting people are caught in carefully posed studies, but why are they here?

Maybe what's missing most is words, the glue which could have held the project together. Some of that $1 million could have been better spent commissioning a few of our best writers to tell us something about the state of the relationship between the two countries in 1976.

But that would have involved controversy, something the editors and photographers have studiously avoided. There's no hint of any of the tensions and common problems afflicting the neighboring countries. It's all very bland — and unreal.

What the book does have scattered throughout are quotations from a variety of sources, such as "Country, like conscience, is something that all of us have deep within ourselves," which contribute little except pretentiousness.

And their use raises another issue, the old bugaboo of picture books — captions. I always assumed they were stuck in the back like an index by the design experts who didn't want type cluttering up their pristine pages. But if they can mess it up with superfluous quotes, why not tell us briefly what the picture is all about and avoid that annoying flipping back and forth?

Enough of this niggling. As they say, with a gift it's the thought that counts and we hope the U.S. will accept it in that spirit. (Some 20,000 copies are being distributed free to libraries and institutions.)

Happy birthday, U.S.A.!

By JULIAN REID

"Weren't you bragging just a little, Yamamoto?" the Saturday Evening Post demanded rhetorically. "Your people are giving their lives in useless sacrifice. Ours are fighting for a glorious future of mass employment, mass production, and mass distribution and ownership."

The year was 1942, and the Post was pledging its wholehearted dedication to the U.S. war-effort. Its words were less eloquent than those in which, the previous year, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt had proclaimed his celebrated Four Freedoms — but they cut closer to the American home. After more than a decade in the toils of the Great Depression, the average citizen was eager for the "glorious future" the Post and its advertisers promised.

Roosevelt's New Deal policies had alleviated the worst pangs of the Hungry Thirties, but failed to cure the ailing economy. What the still-controversial economics of John Maynard Keynes prescribed was a massive dose of government spending, wrapped up in a deficit budget; the war-effort was just what the doctor ordered. As FDR himself jauntily explained to the press. "Dr. New Deal,' a specialist in internal medicine, had been succeeded by an orthopedic surgeon, 'Dr. Win-the-War.' "

In V Was For Victory, Yale historian John Morton Blum studies the interplay of popular expectations and political policies in the wartime U.S. Like most academic history, the book is over-long, overly impersonal, and reluctant to advocate conclusions. But from between its lines emerges an illuminating study in the politics of expediency.

For all the plethora of broadly liberal programs with which he was associated, FDR had no firm ideological commitments. His policies were pragmatically arrived at, dictated by whatever he perceived as the immediately imperative goal. Throughout the 1930's that goal was clear: economic recovery. And so he became "Dr. New Deal," champion of liberal causes and scourge of heel-dragging reactionaries.

After Pearl Harbor, he became obsessed with a new goal: "total victory." In its cause, he consistently "sacrificed principles to expedients." A typical example, treated at length by Blum, was his unwillingness to support legislation curbing the "Jim Crow" practices prevalent in the defence industries and the armed forces. Victory abroad took precedence over civil liberties at home — after all, the latter would certainly stir up trouble, which might somehow hinder the nation's war-effort.

Meanwhile, as Blum remarks drily, "the war did wonderful things for the American people." They began to dream again — dreams tinged with a glossy nostalgia. Their collective vision of postwar paradise, the Office of War Information reported to FDR, was "compounded largely of 1929 values and the economics of the 1920s, leavened with a hangover from makeshift controls of the war." As for the Depression years, the public preferred to forget them. And so, inevitably, "Dr. New Deal" metamorphosed into "Dr, Win-the-War."

When the electorate voted in the reactionary 1942 Congress, which proceeded to liquidate numerous New Deal programs, it was hardly the president's fault — though supporters felt that he might have fought harder on their behalf. Plainly, too, most of his concessions to expediency, however debatable, were more or less justified in their wartime context. Excessive they might be, but not blatantly so.

Yet it is in the nature of small excesses that their impact is cumulative — and sometimes disproportionate. This became dramatically clear in the election of 1944, when the ailing president, reluctant to alienate anyone, mounted a campaign of "calculated blandness." This dictated that his outspokenly liberal vice-president, Henry Wallace, be dumped from the ticket, though his presence on it would hardly have jeopardized its chances of re-election.

And so, the following year, when FDR died in harness, he was succeeded not by Wallace but by Harry Truman. The new president let the last vestiges of New Deal liberalism fade quietly away; Wallace would have fought for them. The ravens of expediency had flown home to roost.

FDR had led America into war with a fanfare of promises — promises of a comprehensive postwar program in the New Deal spirit, guaranteeing for all the most basic of his "Four Freedoms," Freedom From Want. As late as 1944, he reiterated those promises, — now they took the form of a "Second Bill of Rights" safeguarding the economic welfare of all, to be formally instituted once the war was over.

Needless to say, it never materialized. Instead, Americans found themselves in the glorious Saturday Evening Post future they had dreamed of — "mass employment, mass production and mass distribution and ownership" with a vengeance, supported by the war-born Military-Industrial Complex and fed with the burgeoning paranoia of the Cold War. Aptly, Blum cites the ironic admonition of another Roosevelt, Theodore: "God save you from the werewolf and from your heart's desire."
